Ford Warned Code Terms Must Stand, Or Go Alone

Rules Made Clear To Motor Magnate

Ultimatum Is Sign Auto Regulations or Get No Blue Eagle.

Henry Ford will sign the automobile industry code or go his own way without the aid and protection of the NRA Blue Eagle.

This was made clear yesterday by Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, while President Roosevelt, at Hyde Park, initiated control of the oil industry, relaxed gold export restrictions, and recovery officials discussed apparently increasing need for inflation to boost lagging national purchasing power.

Mr. Ford will not get the Blue Eagle unless he signs the code, despite whatever he may do to exceed the minimum wage and reduce the maximum hour provisions of the automobile code, Gen. Johnson said.

Once he has signed, Mr. Ford can set his standards above the minimum requirements if he wishes.

Up to Consumers.

"Although I have the widest discretion in fixing codes for subdivisions of an industry, I shall not exercise that discretion in the case of Mr. Ford," Gen. Johnson said. "I think the American people are going to handle the situation, I believe they are going to buy the products of manufacturers who display the Blue Eagle."

The automobile code was sponsored by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, an organizaton with which Mr. Ford was said to have little to do. Mr. Ford is said to be vacationing in Canada and Edsel Ford in Maine.

Work went forward yesterday on codes for the bituminous coal industry and for retailers. There were prospects that the coal code might be finished by tonight or early tomorrow. It still is to be determined whether there shall be a general retail code or whether the exemption-seeking retail drug store operators shall be permitted a separate code. Pressure may be exerted to force the drug stores under the general code.

Pledge Drive Continues.

Recovery officials announced further encouraging reports from all sections of the country on progress of the drive for consumers' pledges to buy from sellers who display the Blue Eagle. Gen. Johnson has conferred with the heads of drives in 14 cities who reported success in their sections.

Officials are discussing privately possible steps to boost purchasing power. They are counting on increased public works and easier commercial credits to help. These, however, are not going to operate quickly and broadly enough, many believe, to prevent a sag. Inflation remains the answer in the opinion of many. The question is how to bring about the desired inflation and how much.

Gen. Johnson repeated yesterday his former assurance that when the time was ripe he would launch a campaign to persuade the public to increase its buying.

Fairfax Father Killed by Son

A father, who threatened eight members of his family with a razor, was shot and killed by a 23-year-old son last night, in their home on the Lee Highway near Fairfax, Va.

In a drunken rage, police said, Calvin J. Newman, 59, attempted to attack his wife and their seven children. He was shot twice through the heart by Benford Newman, who is held pending a hearing today.

Police said Benford shot in self-defense. A .38-caliber revolver, with which the elder Newman is alleged to have fired at another son, William, some months ago, was used in the shooting.

Failing eyesight nearly cost the life of Philip J. Stombock, 72, of 3278 M street northwest. He plunged 10 feet into the C. & O. Canal at the foot of Wisconsin avenue northwest, after stumbling last night.

He was pulled to safety by two unidentified colored men, who disappeared after the rescue. He was treated for shock at Georgetown Hospital.

His cries had attracted the two colored men, who dove and dragged him to safety.

Post Staff Photos.

Inspired by the presence of Mrs. Eleanor Washington Howard, last member of the Washington family born at Mount Vernon, and the administration's NRA leader, Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, 100,000 Washingtonians cheered the progress of the Blue Eagle last night as it was depicted in an elaborate parade and optimistic speeches. Left, Mrs. Howard plants a tree from Mount Vernon on the Ellipse commemorating the event. Right, Gen. Johnson tells radio audience that 2,000,000 individuals have joined the ranks of the employed.

100,000 Cheer Mighty March For Prosperity

New Deal Heralded Here as Thousands Parade and Bombs Burst.

The footsteps of many a parade have echoed along Pennsylvania Avenue. Parades of the victorious. Parades of the dead. They have been significant parades, heralding changes in civilization.

Last night the old street echoed to a new parade—the forward march of the New Deal—a march dedicated to prosperity, jobs, a new economic era.

Singing, bands blaring to the tune of "Happy Days Are Here Again," 10,000 marchers moved up the avenue in a demonstration of business, industry, labor, government—all pledging adherence to the Roosevelt recovery program.

"Cooperation, not competition
Is the life of trade"
"There are no bargains—
cutthroat prices mean cutthroat work."

Workers Spread Gospel.

These were the banners carried by laboring men—men who a short time ago considered the ability to purchase cheaply their salvation.

Such banners would have been unthought of a few years ago. Last night a new order was in the saddle. A new theory was being tried. It must be better than the old, the marchers felt. Anyway it was worth a try.

With bands blaring, marchers singing, bombs bursting overhead, the enthusiasm spread until among the 100,000 Washingtonians looking on there was cheering and singing, too.

More jobs. Prosperity.

"Happy days are here again," the song went. And the skeptics here and there were drowned out.

It was an elaborate, patriotically inspired attempt to focus still more public attention upon the NRA and its aims. And it suceeded.

Concerts, Speeches, Fireworks.

But the parade was merely an incident in an evening dedicated entirely to inspiring success for the Roosevelt effort. Between times there was a concert by the Marine Band, speeches and a giant fireworks display.

The parade, scheduled to begin at 7:30 p. m., got under way late, but with a fanfare of trumpets. From Third street and Pennsyl-

Plan of Reorganizing Restricted Banks Urged

(United Press.)

A plan under which all national banks still operating under restrictions would either be opened for full business within 60 days, or else liquidated, was proposed to the Comptroller of the Currency yesterday by A. Mitchell Palmer, counsel to the national depositors committee.

Most of the 2,000 banks not yet operating normally could be reopened under the plan, Palmer said. He charged conservators of many banks showed no desire to straighten out their affairs because they were receiving higher salaries than as cashiers or tellers.

Wholesale Action Urged.

"It is important to the administration's recovery plan that frozen deposits be released as soon as possible," Palmer said. "Banks should be reopened wholesale and not piecemeal.

Palmer held there was no warrant in law for a restricted bank. He asked the comptroller to issue a general order requiring conservators to call meetings of stockholders' and depositors' representatives to classify restricted banks in one of four classes.

Plans for reorganization where assets justified would be required within 60 days, and banks failing to submit a plan would be liquidated.

Four Classifications.

The classifications suggested by Palmer were:

Banks whose surplus and reserves have been entirely wiped out by depreciation and losses directed by the examiner to be charged off, but the capital not impaired.

Banks whose surplus and reserves are entirely wiped out and the capital partially impaired.

Banks whose capital, surplus and reserves are entirely wiped out, but the remaining acceptable assets sufficient to protect creditors.

(Associated Press.)

The State Department said yesterday the commander in chief of the Asiatic fleet has been requested to send a naval vessel to Foochow, China, where three Americans were reported to be in the danger zone of operations by Communist forces.

The request for a warship was made by the American minster at Peiping. The department said the purpose of the vessel was "to be available for the protection of Americans in the event of an emergency."

The three Americans reported in the danger zone were Father Paul Curran, Father Bernard C. Werner, whose addresses were given as in care of the Dominican Fathers, New York, and Father John H. I. Werner, address not given.

Japanese Ships to Foochow

Tokyo, Aug. 29 (AP).—An announcement by the navy office that three Japanese warships were expected at Foochow, China, to protect Japanese interests because of recent communist warfare in that region was coupled with a foreign office statement that the American consul at Foochow also had asked assistance for his nationals.

The Japanese consul at Foochow reported that the Communists were approaching that city after occupying Yenping Sunday.

Insull Is Denied Release on Bail

U. S. Victor in Skirmish With Utilities Man on Extradition.

Athens, Aug. 29 (AP).—The United States won a victory today when the Athens appeal court sanctioned the detention of Samuel Insull, pending an extradition hearing.

Despite appeals by his lawyers for liberty on bail and arguments that the extraditon proceedings were unconstitutional, the former Chicago utilities operator was sent back under police guard to a private hospital, where he has been held since Saturday.

The United States is seeking the elderly expatriate's return for a second time on a new indictment charging violation of the bankruptcy act. The previous extradition attempt which failed was based on mail fraud charges.

Asked about his nationality, Insull said he was a native of London but did not know his present status because the American Government had cancelled his passport.

An Insull attorney said there was no fear he would attempt to escape because he had already expressed a wish to become a Greek citizen.

The prosecutor replied the court would decide the question of extradition on the basis of papers to be submitted. He announced he would issue a formal writ for the arrest on the basis of an American legation note charging Insull with bankruptcy. The note said the necessary documents for extradition would be deposited within 60 days.

Ecuadorean Laborers Vote Political Strike

Quito, Ecuador, Aug. 29 (AP).—An assembly of laborers today voted to strike as the latest turn in recent political developments resulting in two demands of Congress that President Juan Martinez Mera resign.

The second request was made and refused last night. The last resignation demand was based on the declaration that the peace of the country demanded it.

Kidnap Theory Held In Denver Vanishing

Denver, Aug. 29 (AP).—Chief of Police Albert T. Clark tonight said he believed Barnard Bitterman, young Denver department store executive, who vanished last Thursday after getting a telephone call, had been kidnaped.

Clark said he still held to his first theory that Bitterman was kidnaped in the mistaken belief he was a relative of Alfred Triefus, general manager of the May Co. here.

NRA Campaign Credited With 2 Million Jobs

Billion and Half More Pay; Johnson Tells Nation Drive Just Started.

Two million people have been removed from the unemployed ranks and are again self-supporting, Gen. Hugh S. Johnson told Washington and the Nation last night as the Capital paid tribute to the recovery program with a triumphant business parade and pageant.

"Two million people represent at least $30,000,000 more in pay rolls each week, a billion and a half dollars more a year, and this money goes back into the hopper of trade and is spent over and over again," the Recovery Administrator declared.

"That means more work, comfort, happiness. And yet this great effort has just started.

"Amid the turmoil of the substitution of the new system for the old, of cutthroat competition, which was the father of child labor, low wages and business destruction, it is perhaps not easy to appreciate how far this movement has gone. It is plain enough in factory towns where smoke is rising.

Bread Lines Shrinking.

"In cities our progress is not so obvious, but there are more people in the stores, both before and behind the counters. In Cleveland, 1,000 people are going back to work each day. The bread lines are shrinking.

"What the National Recovery Administration is doing is to check the

Aid Rushed Boys Marooned on Cliff

Up 400 Feet on Adirondack Mountain, Have No Food or Water.

Lake Placid, N. Y. Aug. 29 (AP). Three hungry youths awaited rescue tonight as they huddled on a narrow ledge on Wall Face Mountain in the Adirondacks.

Rescue parties set out but they held little hope for rescue before morning. The youths had had no food or water since early in the day.

Firemen and Police Will Back Entries in Knight-Godwin Tilt

For three weeks they have been preparing for the fight, only to have it called off, once because of an injury to Knight and the second time owing to rain.

But everything is in readiness. Matchmaker Charley Cornell has plenty of extra seats. He's got a great card of supporting bouts, and he's expecting the greatest turnout of his season.

A portion of the receipts will go to the National Firemen's Labor Day parade and many volunteer firemen are expected to attend the fight. Godwin, is a member of the Herald Harbor Department besides being one of the three highest ranking light heavyweights in America.

As Knight is a former minion of the law in Cairo, Ga., some of the boys in blue are expected to be on hand to shout for their entry. Add to these the rank and file of boxing fans and those who want to swell the parade fund, a good audience is promised.

The first bout will start at 8 o'clock, with the main fight at 10, or 10:30. Twin City Arena is located on the Washington-Baltimore Highway, a mile north of Laurel. There is parking space for hundreds of cars. There are no side roads to drive down.

Hundreds have made reservations, but tickets are still available.

Declares Administration Can "Go to Hell" With Patronage.

Milwaukee, Aug. 29 (AP).—Fresh talcum powder brushed over a 2-inch cut above his left eye, Senator Huey P. Long, of Louisiana, today lambasted Milwaukee newspapers, Wall street and certain policies of the Roosevelt administration.

Newspapers which had commented concerning the source of his injury were termed "skunks and polecats," Wall street was charged with attempting to "make the world safe for plutocracy," and the administration was told to "go to hell with its Louisiana patronage."

Cameras Bring Outburst.

Long spoke before 4,000 Veterans of Foreign Wars. After his speech, the convention adopted unanimously a resolution commending the Milwaukee newspapers for "wholehearted and earnest cooperation."

When he arose, Long found himself staring into a battery of cameras. Whereupon he assailed the papers. The veterans cheered. Long complained of the photographers and a force of sergeants at arms rushed them out. Then the senator glared at newspapermen, saying that anyone believing what they wrote "should be bored with a hollow horn."

Veterans Go Wild.

Veterans stood on their chairs and surged down the aisles. For several minutes the confusion was so great there was some doubt that the meeting could continue. When order was restored the senator sailed full tilt into "Morgan, Wall street, the Rockefellers and the Baruchs."

Turning to the Recovery Administration, Long asserted the Government itself is a "traitor" because it cut the pay of Federal employes and discontinued some pensions.

Long told the veterans he harbored no ill will because he is not allowed to manage Louisiana patronage.

"To hell with it," he shouted.

"Socker" Is Sought.

New York, Aug. 29 (U.P.).—Members of the fashionable Sands Point Beach Club on Long Island today were making an earnest endeavor to find the man who struck Senator Huey P. Long, of Louisiana, above the eye.

Meanwhile, half a dozen versions of the affair were in circulation. Jack Curley, promoter of wrestling matches who attended the party, tonight said:

"The senator was feeling pretty good at about 11 o'clock. He left my table and I didn't see him for about 45 minutes.

"Then Gene Buck touched my shoulder and said: 'My God, Jack, Huey has been socked! Come along!'

"We took the senator into the wash room, washed the blood off his face, then put some ice on his head. Then we put him in my car and drove to Great Neck looking for my doctor, who wasn't home All the time we tried to get the senator to make a statement, but he wouldn't say a word.

"Finally he said: 'Some gangsters did it.'

"So I said: 'That's a lot of bunk, senator.'"

Former Police Commissioner Edward P. Mulrooney, another guest, said he did not see any gangsters at the party.

Roberts B. Thomas, New York attorney who was named in gossip as the man who struck the senator, offered a vigorous denial.

"I am not the man who hit Senator Long," said Thomas. "But if stories I have heard are true, I see nothing wrong in the actions of the man who did."

"Evil Eye" Seen When Irish Lake Waters Return

Geevagh, Irish Free State, Aug. 29 (AP).—Waters of Lake Nasuil, which recently ran out through a cavern, returned last night with a roar.

The lake, covering 45 acres, was 30 feet deep before the water disappeared, leaving dead fish and mud flats.

Sligo County inhabitants recalled a superstition that the lake was associated with King Balor "of the evil eye," who was buried on its shores.

Berle Ouster Move Disrupts Sugar Hearing

Refiners Demand Removal of 'Brain Trust' Aid on Bias Charge.

Demands for removal of Adolf A. Berle, jr., one of the Roosevelt "brain trust" members, as legal adviser to the Farm Administration in the framing of sugar codes, were made in open hearing yesterday.

The request was by Wilbur Cummings, attorney for sugar refiners, who charged Berle with "bias and prejudice."

Frame Letter to Wallace.

Determined to follow up their fight, the sugar refiners last night were in session at the Shoreham Hotel, drawing a letter to be sent Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, citing why Berle should be displaced.

The flare-up was regarded as ending hopes for a quick solution on the tentative sugar producing and marketing agreements, held by the administration as essential to its recovery program.

Cummings, at the outset, had declared Berle was counsel for Charles W. Taussig, president of the American Molasses Co., of New York, who is interested in sugar refining in Cuba in competition with the American industry. Taussig has been advising President Roosevelt on economic matters.

Admits Connection.

Berle replied he was a director of Taussig's molasses company, and for this reason at first had declined the Department of Agriculture's request that he serve in the framing of the sugar agreement.

"Notwithstanding this disclosure," he added, "the department requested me to act as adviser, considering the disclosure of interest would be enough to protect the secretary."

This information, he added, had been passed to the sugar refiners at his request.

Cummings declared he wanted to "take exception." When the presiding officer refused the plea, the confusion resulted in a recess.

Repeal Ahead In Washington

Foes of Dry Law Claim 3 to 1 Majority on Early Returns.

Seattle, Aug. 29 (AP).—Washington's voters showed a strong trend toward repeal of prohibition tonight as early returns from today's special election were tabulated.

Reports from 86 of the State's 2,682 precincts gave wet delegates to the repeal convention, October 3, a total of 16,113 votes to 5,844 for dry delegates.

Although the State-wide total will have no bearing on determining whether Washington will become the twenty-fourth State to vote for repeal, or the first to reject it, since delegates are chosen by legislative districts, the district votes in all except one instance followed generally the total vote.

The one district so far to cast a majority against repeal was the Forty-first, in Whatcom County. Three of 58 precincts in the Forty-first voted 512 for the drys, to 485 for the wets.

Mine Shares Skyrocket; Order Boosts Profits by $15,000,000.

(Associated Press.)

Stock and commodity markets strengthened yesterday when President Roosevelt modified the gold embargo to permit exportation of newly mined ore and at the same time clamped down harder on hoarders.

The Chief Executive's order had repercussions in this country and abroad.

Gold mining stocks shot upward on the New York exchange, carrying other stocks and commodities higher.

Treasury and Justice Department officials said the orders would stimulate the gold mining industry and provide an effective means of preventing hoarding.

Experts in London said they did not expect the order would affect foreign exchange rates to any marked degree, as the United States' gold reserve would retain its status quo.

Hyde Park, N. Y., Aug. 29 (AP).—President Roosevelt late today relaxed the gold embargo to permit sales of the newly mined metal in foreign markets where prices are higher.

The President also tightened restrictions against hoarding by requiring persons holding gold coin, bullion or certificates, in excess of $100, to file statements within 15 days.

After 30 days all private gold holdings of more than $100 will be prohibited unless valid reasons are shown why the metal can not be replaced by currency.

The decree, effective immediately, was issued just before Mr. Roosevelt started on an automobile tour up-State.

Gold Stocks Soar.

Gold mining shares immediately shot upward on the New York exchange, one issue advancing more than $15 to a record high.

Treasury officials foresaw quickening of activity in the gold mines of the West, with profits increasing by more than $15,000,000 a year, as the President reopened the export trade.

Under the order, foreign sales of newly mined gold will be under supervision of Secretary of the Treasury Woodin. Sales may be made, first, to foreign purchasers and, second, to persons licensed to acquire gold for use in the arts, industries or professions.

Lifting of the embargo was the second important act of the President today. Earlier, he named Harold L. Ickes, Secretary of the Interior, as the administrator of the new working agreement for the oil industry.

Dictator of Industry.

His new powers will make Ickes virtually a dictator of the oil industry in addition to administering the $3,300,000,000 public works program.

In tightening the hoarding regulations, Mr. Roosevelt authorized Woodin to promulgate necessary rules. He is empowered to fix penalties up to 10 years' imprisonment and $10,000 fine.

In reestablishing a free gold market, the President answered the appeal of producers for a chance at higher prices abroad.

Treasury officials interpreted his orders as meaning newly mined gold could be sold in the world market at prevailing prices of around $30 an ounce, as contrasted

Leaders Ask District Plan Of Roosevelt

Board of Trade Seeks Data on Change of Government.

Telegram Voices Hope Representation Will Not Be Denied.

Diplomatically worded requests that President Roosevelt tell the people what sort of government he plans for the District of Columbia were made yesterday by the Board of Trade.

It expressed hope he would institute no new program which would leave the city with less than the one or two local representatives it some times is able to boast under the present commission form of government.

The board asked that the people be allowed to express their views in advance of any change.

Wire Sent President.

The matter was brought to the President's attention in a telegram sent by Claude W. Owen, president of the trade organization, in behalf of the 3,600 members.

"The Washington Board of Trade," he telegraphed, "has read with interest the recurring newspaper accounts stating you are considering changing the form of government for the District of Columbia to a one-man governorship or similar setup.

"The people of the District are naturally considerably interested. They pay between $32,000,000 and $36,000,000 a year in distinctly municipal taxes and Federal taxes in an amount larger than 11 of the States combined.

Have No Right of Suffrage.

"They have absolutely no right of suffrage nor any voice whatsoever in the disposition of tax money so raised from them.

"Under the organic law of 1878 setting up the present commission form of government, it has been possible from time to time for the District to have one or two members of the commission and it is our sincere hope that in setting up any new form of government what little local representation we have in our own municipal affairs will not be further diminished.

"We desire to assure you, Mr. President, that we do not desire this telegram to be in any way construed in opposition to any change, if such change is necessary. The Board of Trade, representing 3,600 business, professional and civic leaders of the community, will stand committed to any needed change for the betterment of the community.

Asks to Hear Plans.

"We express the hope, however, that you may see fit to inform us of any plans you may finally decide upon, so that not only the Board of Trade, but others, may have the opportunity of expressing their views.

"We wish to express to you our heartiest admiration and support, and to assure that we desire to do everything we can to be helpful in the spirit of progress and efficiency.

"We are hopeful, however, that we may look to you to protect even the most negligible voice we have in the affairs of the community, affecting as it does a half-million American citizens who are called upon to do their duty as such in every respect, and who are, however, contradistinguished from other Americans by their complete political impotence."

Vast Throng Hails Recovery Parade

vania avenue northwest, the pilgrims of recovery moved in a solid phalanx up the wide avenue, thence south on Fifteenth street to Constitution avenue, thence west to Seventeenth street and the fireworks display.

Fighting Spirit Living Again.

Twenty-two bands there were to signalize the optimism of another new era, 200 illuminated floats sponsored by business concerns to signalize industry's cooperation, contingents of soldiers, marines and sailors and Army tanks to signalize the fighting spirit of 1933.

And the Government employes, who have been protesting they have not received the NRA benefits, were in there, vowing allegiance to the new order. More than 3,000 employes from the Government Printing Office were the main company of a large delegation of labor marchers led by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor.

"Recovery Tree" Planted.

The exercises began at 7 p. m. when a "recovery tree," brought from Mount Vernon, was planted behind the reviewing stand on Constitution Avenue between Fifteenth and Sixteenth streets, near the White House.

Mrs. Eleanor Washington Howard, last of the Washington family to be born at Mount Vernon, officiated. Maj. Gen. Amos A. Fries, general chairman of the arrangements committee, spoke.

Thomas P. Littlepage, president of the Chamber of Commerce, followed, then Gen. Johnson.

Shortly afterward the Marine Band played a concert, assisted by community singers, glee clubs and soloists. Benedictions by Army and Navy chaplains were timed to end the exercises just as the parade swung into sight.

Navy Colors Bring Cheers From Crowds Viewing Parade

Thousands of Washingtonians lining the Avenue, and struck with a wartime patriotic fervor, cheered the appearance of the Navy colors. Singing and shouting and applauding, the crowds seemed in a holiday mood as the recovery parade got under way.

Ickes Is Named Oil Industry Administrator

Roosevelt Prepares for Return to Capital on Astor Yacht.

Hyde Park, Aug. 29 (AP).—President Roosevelt brought his domestic recovery program up to date today with the designation of Harold L. Ickes, the Secretary of Interior, as administrator of the new deal for the oil industry.

The busy Cabinet member flew back to the Capital from the summer White House to set up the machinery for enforcing the new working agreement and took with him the latest proposals of the President for speeding the public works program.

Mr. Roosevelt today virtually completed his conferences and prepared for a sea cruise back to Washington. He cleaned up his desk by signing the free gold market order, and issuance of stronger antihoarding regulations.

The President is expectantly awaiting the new agreement for bituminous coal which for the first time in history brings this long disordered busines into a common understanding on work and wages.

Before boarding Vincent Astor's yacht Nourmahal Thursady afternoon for the cruise to Washington, the President expects to sign the code and to name the other 14 members of the oil planning and conservation committee which will rule over the oil business.

Firemen Need Rooms For Labor Day Crowd

Persons living near No. 1 Truck Company, New Jersey avenue, are urged to communicate with Private Fletcher through the Fire Department.

Yesterday he arranged with the Washington Guides Association to help firemen and their families find their way around the city on Labor Day.

"Struttin' Sam."

Last night he nearly stopped the show in front of The Post Building. Heretofore his performances have been confined to an original "cakewalk" and cane twirling act. But last night, before an enthusiastic audience of parade spectators, he changed his routine.

"Struttin' Sam" sang. He brought rounds of applause with a rich bass voice. Clothed to perfection as usual—even to gray kid gloves—he entertained for several minutes. A Post reporter nabbed him between numbers and asked a few questions.

His real name, it developed, is Lord Daniels. He lives on T street, between Thirteenth and Fourteenth streets northwest. He is a retired employe of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing.

Contrary to belief his clothes are not furnished by merchants wishing to display their wares. He has two trunks full of clothing. He paid for them all and wears a different outfit each day.

He is choirmaster of the Shilo Baptist Church, Ninth and P streets northwest, and came here from Helena, Mont.

President's Board Decides Crisis Subordinates Carrier's Rights.

(Associated Press.)

Demands of the national recovery program were cited last night by a Presidential Emergency Board as one reason for a decision in favor of the employes of the Louisiana, Arkansas & Texas Railway Co. in their dispute over pay, rules and working conditions.

In a report, the board, appointed by President Roosevelt, said:

"In these days of 'national recovery', when every effort is being made to maintain wages and to conserve the volume of purchasing power upon which the prosperity of a going industrial system depends, the requirements of national policy become doubly compelling.

"If the interests of private ownership clash with the demands of national policy, the lesser must give way to the greater value."

Hyde Park, N. Y., Aug. 29 (AP). President Roosevelt returned to his home tonight at 7:30 o'clock, after a motor trip up-State during which he visited Gov. and Mrs. Lehman at Albany.

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 29 (U.P.).—President Roosevelt came back today to the scene of his early political triumphs.

After motoring from the summer White House at Hyde Park, he sat again in the Executive Mansion which he occupied as governor eight years. He was given a tumultuous reception.

The President, accompanied by Mrs. Roosevelt and his mother, took tea with Gov. and Mrs. Herbert H. Lehman after inspecting two new bridges across the Hudson.

Mr. Roosevelt, who had not been in Albany since his inauguration, spoke freely with Albert Johnson, Negro, who served him in the executive offices.

"How are you, Al?" the President inquired.

"Fine," he replied.

"How is your rheumatism—has it bothered you much this winter and is your family well?"

Al answered that everything was "fine."

tides of disaster, distress and deprivation, and launch our country on a new era of prosperity. We will do it easily if everybody does his part. We will do it desperately if any considerable number hold back and try to block us, either through lack of faith in the rest program of the President or with the selfish hope that he can evade taking the chances that are his legitimate portion, and so profit by the patriotism of others.

"There is no corporation rich enough, no group strong enough, to block the effort of the Nation. We have no cause for worry in regard to the fellow who thinks he can cut corners and by subterfuge and evasion get his share of the coming prosperity by sacrificing others. There will be methods in the execution of this law to take care of the man who chisels.

People Their Own Law.

"This man may get away with it for a time, but not for long. The people themselves, without incitement from anybody, will know how to visit the proper punishment upon him. He may evade the legal penalties. There may never be a harsh word spoken to him. But day by day he will see the customers pass his doors to buy where the Blue Eagle is displayed and where the pledges for which that bird stands are being honored.

"The doctrine of the new deal is a doctrine of action. The plan is simple. It is based on the proposition that American people can do anything if we only provide them with the means to fight. Franklin Roosevelt has done a simple but a very great thing. He has given back to the American people the conduct of their own affairs and the right to help themselves."

Fries Lauds Johnson.

Maj. Gen. Amos A. Fries, chairman of the national recovery day committee, paid high tribute to Administrator Johnson in presenting him to the assembled multitude.

"As a Regular Army man, it has been a real pleasure to me to see the Government pick another Regular Army man of 16 years' service to head the greatest peace drive in American history," he said.

England Gloomy as Roosevelt Sidesteps Deal With Norman

Hopes of Currency Pact Die After "Tea Party" at Hyde Park.

London, Aug. 29 (U.P.).—Failure of the "Hyde Park tea party" yesterday to live up to forecasts that President Roosevelt and Montagu Norman, head of the Bank of England, would talk seriously on money matters, spread gloom in England today.

The President's gold export order tonight was received with interest in the London money market, but experts did not expect it would affect the foreign exchange rates to any marked degree.

U. S. Reserve to Stand.

It was pointed out that the order concerns only newly mined gold, hence the present gold in the United States' reserves would retain its status quo.

President Roosevelt's turning the meeting with Norman into a social function was regarded as the end of hopes that a currency pact could be formed at least for many months.

Experts reached two major conclusions:

1. An agreement to steady the dollar-sterling fluctuations at present is not considered worth while.

2. Stabilization of the sterling-dollar rate without relation to the gold standard would be unwise.

Britain Cautious.

It was emphasized that Britain would not be willing to link the pound to the dollar unless it is definitely known in advance where the dollar is going.

A third conclusion is that stabilization of the dollar and pound sterling on gold is impossible as yet, in view of President Roosevelt's determination to hold his inflationary powers in reserve.

Canal Trooper Is Held Linked With Moscow

Witness Tells Court-Martial Soldier Asked Him for Secret Documents.

Fort Sherman, Panama Canal Zone, Aug. 29 (AP).—The prosecution rested today in the court-martial of Corpl. Robert Osman, charged with possessing military secrets. Testimony was introduced that he had communistic connections. Corpl. G. J. Baumgart, who had trailed Osman for several weeks, testified Osman requested him to intercept documents from a Panamanian lawyer who offered to make him a member of a secret society.

Sergt. Ralph E. Dietz, a mail clerk, testified Osman had sent letters to Frema Karry, in care of P. Singer, of Brooklyn, and had received in return a letter containing eight $50 bills.

A picture of a girl, another witness declared, was found in Osman's possession as well as a letter in which she wrote, "I am very glad to be a cog in a great wheel."

Osman was questioned during a preliminary examination, the prosecution brought out, about what this reference meant. He replied it probably was "the Communistic Party or the Young Communist League."

The defense will open its case tomorrow morning. Six witnesses will appear. Osman is from Brooklyn.

Roosevelt Raises Gold Export Ban with the fixed price of $20.67 paid by the mint.

Sales of newly mined gold abroad may be negotiated immediately, under license by the Treasury Secretary. Machinery has been set up for this work.

"Such sales," decreed the President, "shall be made at a price which the secretary shall determine to be equal to the best price obtainable in the free-gold market of the world after taking into consideration any incidental expenses such as shipping costs and insurance."

The antihoarding edict exempts gold coin having a special value to collectors, and gold bullion and certificates held under a license heretofore granted.

Mr. Roosevelt acted after consultation with Secretary Woodin and Attorney General Cummings.

Follows Canadian Plan

Toronto, Ontario, Aug. 29 (AP). The decision of the United States to handle gold mined at home in the same manner as Canada has been doing for months, accepting it for export to the best world market, follows a recent plan authorized in Canada permitting the producers to export concentrates and amalgams to Canada or elsewhere for refining and export.

Applications have been made within the last two weeks by leading United States producers to Ottawa for authority to send their partly treated gold ore to Canadian smelters at Trail, B. C., Sudbury and Noranda.

Silver Aid Sighted

Reno, Aug. 29 (AP).—As a result of the removal of export restrictions on gold, Henry M. Rives, secretary of the Nevada Mine Operators Association, issued a statement here today saying the rise in the market price of gold will be reflected in the value of silver.

Dollar Benefit Small

New York, Aug. 29 (AP).—President Roosevelt's executive order permitting export of newly-mined gold through the Treasury Department will have no appreciable effect, most bankers believe, upon the dollar in foreign exchanges.

The amount of gold which actually will be exported is expected to be too small to have any tangible result on the foreign exchange markets.

Coast Market Boomed.

San Francisco, Aug. 29 (AP).—President Roosevelt's order lifting the gold embargo on newly mined metal sent stocks of gold-producing companies soaring on exchanges here today. The news came when the market was in a slump, reversing the trend.

A number of stocks wiped out early losses. At the close most competitive stocks were higher than when the New York market closed.

Rockville Fair Grounds Give Way to School

Old-Timers Fondly Recall Racing Heyday as Site Goes Under Hammer.

Seventy-five years ago farmers near Rockville, Md., began holding horse races down a country road and thus established an institution that survived for three generations—the Rockville Fair.

Friday, under the auctioneer's hammer, the fair ceased to exist and the 34-acre grounds went to a bank to settle a mortgage. Hundreds whose recollections of youth were "fair days" were reluctant to see it go.

Yesterday, from the office of Dr. Edwin W. Broome, county superintendent of schools in Montgomery County, came confirmation of rumors that a new and modern institution would replace the old fair on the Rockville Fair Grounds—an elementary school with a huge auditorium that will house community activities and additional provisions for vocational activities.

School to Be Erected.

The Maryland Legislature has approved the expenditure for the grounds and school. The school board is negotiating with the bank for purchase of the grounds. Additional funds are being sought—and with almost certain success—from the Federal Bureau of Public Works.

The old Rockville Fair did not die without leaving a background unique in its association with the lives of the community it served and rich in humorous incidents.

"Why they gave dishes and rocking chairs and all such household stuff as that to the winners of horse races when the fair first began," said John T. Muncaster, for many years secretary of the Fair Association.

Laid Out in 1855.

"And the races in those days were run right down the middle of the country road. They never had more than two or three horses in a race. After a time they bought a part of the present site and put up some buildings and put a fence around it.

"That first race track—one-third of a mile—looked as though someone had driven a horse and buggy around through the trees and they laid out the track behind him. It certainly was a crooked course. That was about 1855 or 1856.

"When the war came on, the fair grounds was used as a Union campground and by the time the war was over the soldiers had removed every bit of wood on the place—fences, building and all. After much litigation, the Government, several years later, paid the fair association some $3,000 damages, with which they built more fences and buildings."

Nazi Leader Hints At Danzig Union

Dr. Joseph Goebbels Head of Propaganda, Speaks in Free City.

Free City of Danzig, Aug. 29 (AP). Dr. Joseph Goebbels, German minister of public enlightenment and propaganda, said in a speech here today that Germany considered herself indissolubly tied up with the Danzig territory.

He was the first German minister to visit this region since the Nazi revolution.

"Germany and Danzig are animated by one state and one reich to which all Germans wish some day to return," said Dr. Goebbels.

"International Jewry lost Germany," continued the minister, "and is now trying to undermine her from the outside."

Officials Hail Gold Decrees Of President

Declare Hoarding Drive Made Easier and Mines Stimulated.

(Associated Press.)

Federal officials yesterday described the two executive orders issued by President Roosevelt as providing an effective method of combating gold hoarders and a healthy stimulus to the domestic gold mining industry.

The orders placed newly-mined gold outside the ban imposed several months ago on exports of the metal and required that all holders of gold coin, bullion and certificates fill out printed forms so stating.

By permitting sale of gold abroad, Treasury officials said, President Roosevelt enabled the industry to receive at present quotations a price considerably higher than that paid at the mint in this country.

The mint price is $20.67 an ounce, while the world price is approximately $30. Based on last year's production of about $50,000,000 worth of gold, this would represent a gain of $15,000,000.

The Justice Department expressed gratification at the order relating to holders of gold and predicted it would help in the drive against hoarders.

"The order supplies an efficient means of reaching hitherto unidentified individuals who are holding gold, contrary to the public interest," the department said.

It added that detailed instructions and the necessary printed forms would be issued later by the Treasury.

The materials we use have greatly advanced in price. Consequently, we mean it when we say—

Cuban Judges Resign; Cabinet Split Growing

The resignations were tendered as demands for constitutional reforms—with a threatened cabinet crisis—were before the provisional government.

The supreme court has been under fire recently by factions opposed to the Machado regime for actions during that administration.

The resignations of Eduardo J. Chibas, public works secretary; Treasury Secretary Joaquin Martinez Saenz, and Minister of Justice Carlos Saladrigas was likely unless reforms were assured.

Official Resigns.

The first cabinet change under the new regime took place today, but was not connected with the constitutional controversy. Rafael Jimminez resigned as secretary of Agriculture to be de facto mayor of Havana.

De Cespedes said while a great movement in favor of constitutional reforms existed, some desired to postpone elections and others wanted them as soon as possible.

"I will proceed as the people desire," he said.

1901 Constitution Opposed.

The student directory this morning asserted the 1901 constitution was unacceptable. This constitution was reinvoked in De Cespedes' decree last week dissolving Congress and declaring the 1928 constitutional changes made by Machado unconstitutional.

Two ABC members were ordered to appear in supreme court on charges of making an arrest under false pretenses after President Pasaron of the Havana Superior Court was taken in custody by ABC men and soldiers. His release was ordered.

Machado Leaves Bermuda

Hamilton, Bermuda, Aug. 29 (AP). Former President Gerardo Machado of Cuba sailed today for Canada after British police refused to allow him ashore during a stopover.

Asked what he would do if he had a chance to live over again his rule in Cuba, Gen. Machado said he would do exactly the same thing again.

Machado declined an opinion on the new Cuban government, but he stated the action of the cabinet Thursday in deciding to dissolve Congress immediately was irregular and unconstitutional.

Everything he possessed is still in Cuba, the general said, adding that he had no funds in foreign banks and that a report that he was carrying $2,000,000 was a myth.

(Associated Press.)

The American Federation of Labor moved swiftly yesterday to organize automobile workers under the code of fair competition.

William Green telegraphed William Collins, general organizer, in Detroit, tonight that the right of the auto workers to organize "has been clearly established."

The code, Green said in his message, contains nothing to qualify that section of the recovery act which provides that workers may "organize, bargain collectively and be represented * * * without restraint from employers."

Los Angeles Airport Puts Hoover Field to Shame

Southwest Photo.

Here is the Central Airport at Los Angeles, one of the finest in the world. This type of modern municipal flying field, of which there are many in this country, is what prominent citizens are striving for in Washington to take the place of the present field, described by fliers as "the worst in the country."

City's Airport Should Be Best, Dern Declares

War Secretary Supports The Post's Move for Better Field.

"It would seem to be a self-evident necessity that the City of Washington should have one of the best commercial airports."

This was the written statement made yesterday by Secretary of War George H. Dern in connection with the efforts being made by The Washington Post to obtain for the Capital a bigger and better airport.

The War Department already has put itself on record in each of the congressional hearings on the subject as favoring improvement of the city's commercial air terminal.

Statements by representatives of the department have shown plainly that the Military road, which bisects the Washington-Hoover Field, is a white elephant so far as the department is concerned.

Road Held Obsolete.

To The Washington Post high Army officials said:

"The Military road is obsolete. There are two other better roads to serve the purpose for which it was built. The department would like to get rid of this road.

"This has been said before Congressional committees. It has been said we would like to have the road taken off our hands if a means can be found to do it legally.

"As long as the road rests under our jurisdiction we shall have to use funds which are needed elsewhere to keep it up. Only a few months ago we had to spend $10,000 on repairs.

Try to Give It Away.

"We have expressed the desire to cede it to Virginia, or to anybody who would take it off our hands."

This military road is one of the chief stumbling blocks to improvement of the Washington-Hoover Airport and putting it on a par with airports of cities which have no greater traffic than Washington.

Its removal is the first step essential to a complete utilization of the space already contained within the terminal. So serious an obstacle does it present that at one time it was proposed that traffic gates should be built so as to permit the construction of runways across it, and give heavily-laden planes the advantage of the full length of both fields in their take-offs. This was impractical because, being Army property, it would have been necessary to have Army guards controlling its operation.

Congress Holds Authority.

The paradox exists that the National Capital can not have an adequate airport because an Army road cuts it, and the Army wants to give away the road and can not do it. Only an act of Congress can cut this knot.

Supporting The Washington Post's plea for a better air terminal, E. L. Vidal, director of air regulations, Department of Commerce, said yesterday:

"The finest and busiest airports in foreign countries are located in the capital cities of those countries. European nations are very proud of their airports. The finest and busiest airport in this country should be that of the National Capital. The present airport probably is the most inadequate serving any sizable city in the United States. Yet it is one of the two best located. The closing of the Military road is the first and most important step to enlarge the airport area."

Rex Martin Urges Action.

Rex Martin, assistant director of airways, said:

"Lighted and radio-equipped Federal airways lead to Washington from the North, South and West, but the air terminal at which airlines craft and private airplanes have to land is not a suitable airport for such a junction of air routes.

"It could be made adequate by enlarging the land area and making other improvements. This work should be done as soon as possible."

Plane Crashes Result in Death Of 8 Persons

(Associated Press.)

Eight persons perished yesterday in two airplane accidents in New Mexico and Texas.

A trimotored transport of the Transcontinental & Western Air, Inc., crashed into a mountainside while an Army flying instructor and two cadets lost their lives in a mid-air collision of two pursuit training planes at San Antonio.

Transport Plane Wreck.

Clovis, N. Mex., Aug. 29 (AP).—A trimotored mail and passenger plane, flying virtually blind in a fog and storm, crashed early today into a mountain, 60 miles from here and its five occupants died in flames. The ship, whose pilot was believed to have lost his bearings, smashed into the south end of Mesa Mountain and instantly was in flames.

The dead are Pilot H. R. Morgan and Copilot W. G. Barcus, both of Kansas City; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Gore, of Albuquerque, N. Mex., and their 3-year-old granddaughter, Evelyn Gore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Gore, of Amarillo.

The craft was equipped with both sending and receiving wireless apparatus, and the last report was when the pilot reported his position over an emergency landing field 6 miles east of Tucumcari. The laconic message gave no intimation of trouble.

Crash of Army Planes.

San Antonio, Tex., Aug. 29 (AP). A spectacular midair collision of two Army pursuit training planes sent three fliers to death at Randolph Field today. One aviator escaped by using his parachute.

The dead are Lieut. Harley R Grater, Lebanon, Ind., flying instructor; Cadet William Pasche, Chicago; Cadet H. R. Sandberg, Denver.

Lieut. Louis K. Vaupre, an instructor flying with Pasche, leaped at 500 feet and landed with only a broken ankle. Cadet Pasche attempted a parachute jump, but he fell within a few feet of the ground before his chute opened.

Sandberg and Grater were not sufficiently high to use parachutes Lieut. Vaupre said the other ship zoomed up and struck his plane as he tried to straighten out in a traffic lane.

7 Die, 40 Hurt In Train Leap; Many Missing

Tucumcari, N. Mex., Aug. 29 (AP). seven persons were killed, more than 40 injured, and an unestimated number were missing as the result today of a storm-caused train wreck.

Seven were killed when the Golden State Limited, crack transcontinental passenger train, plunged through a weakened bridge into a flooded arroyo 5 miles west of here at dawn. Of more than 100 passengers en route from Los Angeles to Chicago, about 40 were hurt and others were believed to have been washed away.

Hours after the rail tragedy the body of C. J. Crost, Tucumcari, the engineer, was the only one identified among the six recovered.

The engine and six coaches hurtled into the flood waters, swollen by 4 inches of rain last night. Five sleeping cars remained upright on the broken bridge. The wreck was an hour old before railroad officials and townspeople in Tucumcari learned of it by Chauncey Depew, conductor, who struggled through waist-deep water to summon help.

Ambulances, motor cars and trucks soon were hurrying to the scene over almost impassable roads. Many passengers had clambered up the steep walls of the canyon or had sought safety on the tops of partly submerged cars.

Shoe Code Hearing Will Be Speeded

Differences Among Plants to Be Disregarded in New Pact.

(Associated Press.)

Recovery officials moved determinedly yesterday to speed progress on a code of competition for the boot and shoe industry which has been in preparation for more than a month.

C. C. Williams, deputy administrator supervising shoe and leather trades, ordered a revised code, submitted last week, rewritten to provide wider representation on the industry's coordinating agency and at the same time indicated he would hasten public hearing regardless of remaining differences among manufacturers.

While manufacturers remained in dispute, a controversy was in progress between rival labor unions in the East. Contracts between companies in New England and the Boot and Shoe Workers Union have been assailed by the Brotherhood of Shoe and Allied Craftsmen as depriving its membership of employment and as a violation of the recovery act.

Aid to Couzens Asks U. S. Sift Chain Banking

Wants Senate to Probe Reports of Wide Plan, 'Financial Crime.'

Detroit, Aug. 29 (AP).—A U. S. Senatorial investigation "from top to bottom" of reports an attempt has been made to establish branch banking in the Nation's key cities during the recent banking crisis today was proposed by Arthur J. Lacy, attorney for U. S. Senator James Couzens (Republican), of Michigan, before the one-man Detroit bank jury.

The jury, which has been airing Michigan's financial troubles, heard Lacy declare that if rumors of such an attempt are true, "it would constitute one of the highest financial crimes in the history of the country."

Would Control Credit.

"If new banks could be started in each of the key cities, on the ruination of the old banks, and if they were controlled by Eastern capital, that would mean control of the banking system and the credit of the Nation," he said.

"I have always had a suspicion that inasmuch as the resistance of Detroit was very low at the time of the bank holiday, it offered the richest field for the beginning of that sort of thing."

Lacy declared an investigation of the report was entirely outside the jurisdiction of the jury, but he thought "in view of statements made there should be a senatorial investigaton."

Banker Blames Chain.

Herbert R. Wilkin, Detroit banker, testified he believed the failure of two closed national banks to obtain funds for reorganization was due to an attempt to effect chain banking here, through establishment of a bank with Eastern capital. Closing of the banks, the First National Bank-Detroit, and tht Guardian National Bank of Commerce, is the subject of inquiry by the jury.

Lacy criticized the jury for accepting "hearsay evidence" in a public hearing.

E. D. Stair, Detroit Free Press publisher and former president of the Detroit Bankers Co., holding company for the First National, will testify this week.

Steel Groups To Be 'Policed'

Trade to See Observance of Code, Institute Rules at Session.

New York, Aug. 29 (AP).—Federal representatives of the NRA met today with directors of the American Iron and Steel Institute, mapped out a program for carrying out provisions of the steel code and named committees to supervise the work.

Robert P. Lamont, president of the institute, said the matter of "policing" the industry was discussed and added that a check would be kept on members to see they observed their code.

Below Cost Check Fixed.

Frank Purnell, president of the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co., was named head of the committee on labor. Samuel E. Hackett, vice president of the Jones & Loughlin Steel Corporation, of Pittsburgh, will head the group dealing with commercial matters, and W. J. Filbert, of the U. S. Steel Corporation, was made chairman of statistics.

A general administration committee was appointed with W. A. Irvin, president of United States Steel, as chairman. Six aids will be named.

Problems to Be Taken Up.

Lamont said matters relating to transportation yet remain to be worked out, but gave no indication as to what the problems might be. Further meetings will be held.

Government representatives present were K. M. Simpson, deputy NRA administrator; Donald Richberg, general counsel, and Dr. Alexander Sachs, NRA economist.

Tobacco Law Sought In Virginia Assembly

Chatham, Va., Aug. 29 (Spl.).—Representative Langhorne Jones and State Senator R. C. Vaden, of this district, are being urged to join Representative Schrader, of Amherst, in petitioning Gov. Pollard to permit introduction of a tobacco bill in this session of the General Assembly.

The bill drawn by Mr. Schrader would require all dark-fired tobacco to be passed by a licensed grader before sale. Members of the Bright Tobacco Growers Association want the bill amended to include all flue-cured tobacco.

Tomato Price-Raising Investigation Started

(Associated Press.)

Charles J. Brand, coadministrator of the Farm Act, yesterday opened a canvass of wholesale and chain store companies to determine if they were "cooperating in price raising" of tomatoes.

Canners reported it would be impossible to increase prices in many cases unless they could pass the cost rise on to wholesalers.

1,500,000 Men Back at Work, Rainey States

Full Force of NRA Not to Be Felt for Some Time, However.

Kansas City, Aug. 29 (AP).—Henry T. Rainey, Speaker of the House, said here tonight the national recovery program already has put 1,500,000 persons back to work but that two or three months more must pass before its full force is apparent.

Speaking at an NRA rally, Rainey said "two or three months of sacrifice and effort ought to result in restoring buying power so that consumption can catch up with production."

Pointing out that President Roosevelt has been given the power to revalue the dollar and inflate the currency, Rainey said "it may not be necessary to use these extraordinary powers but the occupant of the White House will not hesitate to do so if it is necessary.

"We can not compel by law employers to raise salaries or to increase the number of their employes. It must be done voluntarily and we must create in the United States a sentiment favorable to that. The individual or the company that does not cooperate must feel the adverse effect of public criticism."

U. S. Buys Hogs In Reduction Plan

(Associated Press.)

Government purchases of pigs during the first six days under the emergency hog marketing program brought in 550,000 animals.

Dr. A. G. Black, chief of the corn-hog production section of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, described this as "a highly pleasing record."

The Government expects to purchase 4,000,000 pigs weighing up to 100 pounds and 1,000,000 sows in an effort to reduce swine numbers in line with this year's shortage of feed.

Free State Leader Visiting New York

Councilman Sean O'Kelly Discounts Power of Blue Shirts.

New York, Aug. 29 (AP).—Sean O'Kelly, vice president of the executive council of the Irish Free State and minister for local government and public health, arrived today on the liner Laconia.

He was interested in reports from Ireland indicating a fusion of William T. Cosgrave's Center party and the Blue Shirts, headed by Gen. Eoin O'Duffy.

"The objectives are the same," O'Kelly said, "so there is nothing especially startling in the suggestion." He added he was satisfied that instead of losing strength since he took office, President De Valera "is growing in strength steadily."

Tappahannock Street Included in Highway

Tappahannock, Va., Aug. 29 (Spl.). Virginia highway engineers are making a survey of the streets of Tappahannock included in State construction. Tappahannock has obtained $3,500 under the Federal emergency act for this purpose.

Tappahannock, on route 13, is one of the oldest towns in the State, dating back to 1653. Investigation disclosed a plat of the town made in 1680 and recorded in one of the deed books in the clerk's office of Essex County in 1681. This plat provides for a 90-foot street, but only 35 is used. This street will be tremendously congested when the proposed bridge across the Potomac is built.

Relief Seekers Decrease Here; NRA Credited

For the first time since the beginning of the NRA drive August 1, applications for relief in the District have decreased appreciably, it was announced yesterday by Leroy Halbert, emergency relief director.

Last week's applications totaled 557, about 200 less than the average during the summer, Halbert said. The only reason for the drop he could give was increased employment under the NRA.

470 Are Registered.

Of the 557, only 470 were registered as destitute. The remainder of 87 were rejected.

The District Commissioners applied yesterday to Harry L. Hopkins, Federal Relief Administrator, for $60,000 to aid needy transients.

$9,500 Monthly Budget.

The bureau would be administered by the Board of Public Welfare. A tentative monthly budget submitted for the proposal totaled $9,500, with $1,635 for salaries and remainder for relief.

In addition to providing lodging, food and transportation for transients, case workers to make attempts at rehabilitation would be provided.

It is proposed that the staff of the bureau be manned with workers now being used by the Travelers Aid Society and the Salvation Army.

Gladys P. O. List Closes Sept. 15.

(Associated Press.)

The Postoffice Department yesterday set September 15 as the deadline for receiving applications for appointment as postmaster at Gladys, Campbell County, Va. The office carries $1,100 yearly pay. The department also directed an inquiry about naming a postmaster at Darwin, Dickenson County, Va.

The Federal Diary

(Trade-mark Applied For)

By Morgan Baker

WADING through a mounting stack of ballots in The Washington Post's Federal Diary Popularity Contest last night, we found the standings little changed. Miss Beulah Myles, Veterans' Administration, maintained her lead over Miss Janet Stevens, Agriculture. In the men's division, Francis O. Panneton, G. A. O., kept his lead, with William E. Mitchell, Veterans' Administration, gaining.

This tabulation was to have been the last until the final. However, due to a flood of requests from friends of the contestants, we will run their standing again Friday.

With the contest nearing a close, we will be able soon to devote more space to details of the all-expense-paid tours to Chicago and Virginia Beach and other prizes.

Bowlers Organize

BOWLING pow-wows are a sure sign that autumn is just around that sandy corner of Tempus and Fugit streets. We know spring is on the way when we see determined robins skimming across Washington lawns in February. By the same token we know cold weather is nearing when we see Government clerks talking bowling.

Faces bear a more serious stamp this year that even bowling and all its happy evenings can not erase. Well, pay cuts, long hours and a rainbow standard of furloughs belong in another story.

Probably the first league to organize for the 1933-34 season is the Miscellaneous Tax Unit, Internal Revenue. Representatives of 12 teams met yesterday. Joseph M. McKenna was elected president; T. Walter Clark, official scorer, and G. Morgan Van Hoesen, secretary-treasurer. The teams will play every Thursday night beginning September 21 at the Lucky Strike Alleys.

Shout Caused Newton Death

Commander's 'Look Out' Cry Brought on Crash, Wife Testifies.

Funeral services for Commander William F. Newton, U. S. N., retired, 1511 Thirteenth street northwest, killed in an automobile accident Monday near Montreal, will be held at Arlington National Cemetary at 11 a. m., Friday.

Arrangements are tentative, subject to word from Mrs. Newton, driver of the car in which the commander was killed.

A coroner's jury decided last night the death was accidental.

Mrs. Newton, who received only bruises, testified, her husband shouted "look out!" and when she turned to see what danger threatened, the car ran into a ditch. Previous reports said a dog bumped Mrs. Newton's elbow. She denied this.

Democracy's Heavy Guns Go To Kansas City

Campaign to Keep Power Will Be Directed at Young America.

Democrats this week are interrupting recovery efforts long enough to send wheelhorses to Kansas City and there launch the campaign to insure party victories at the next congressional and Presidential elections.

The campaign will be addressed to the youth of the country, 25,000,000 of whom will be of voting age in 1934, with an additional 1,000,000 two years later.

The scene, set by Postmaster General James A. Farley, will be the national convention of the Young Democratic Clubs of America, from Thursday to Saturday.

The announced aim will be to have the clubs enlist every youth nearing voting age in a "youth movement" designed to make them crusaders for the NRA program in every city, town and village throughout the land.

Would Offset Critics.

As NRA crusaders, they are expected to become Roosevelt boosters, offsetting to a large degree anti-Roosevelt sentiment which might develop among older voters in the event of a slip-up in the recovery drive.

Each speaker will recount some phase of the administration's works, to the end that every convention-goer will leave Kansas City a post-graduate of civil government, eager to pass along the new deal's philosophy and preach that the new Government is the hope of American youth.

With this in mind, the party is sending to Kansas City by airplane officials it believes possess enough youth to awaken the imagination of those still younger. There will be some older folk along to give balance and directions.

Administration Galaxy.

The speakers—by far the largest group of any administration spokesmen assembled on a platform outside of a political campaign year—include:

Charles F. Horner, a lieutenant of Brig. Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator; E. W. Jensen, secretary of the Special Industrial Recovery Board; Turner Battle, assistant to the Secretary of Labor; Assistant Attorney General Frank J. Wideman, Robert Fechner, director of emergency conservation work; Assistant Secretary of War Harry Woodring, Director of the Mint Nellie Tayloe Ross, Jesse Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation; E. Edward Hurja, administrative assistant of the public works administrator; Assistant Secretary of the Treasury L. W. Robert; Comptroller of the Currency J. F. T. O'Connor, W. Forbes Morgan, assistant to the governor of the Farm Credit Administration; A. E. Hutchison, manager of the Home Owners Loan Corporation; Eugene Vidal, of the Commerce Department's aeronautics bureau; W. W. Howes, second assistant to the Postmaster General; Maj. Carroll Cone, of the Commerce Department's aeronautics bureau; Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper and Postmaster General Farley.

Brick Plants to Pay 40 Cents in North

Code Agreement Provides 30 Cents Per Hour in Southern Area.

Chicago, Aug. 29 (AP).—Brick manufacturers today composed differences over three disputed sections of their code and were ready to offer their plans for final approval by NRA officials.

After Southern manufacturers had yielded on their contention that Southern kilns should have a 20-cent differential in wages, the conference voted minimum wages of 40 cents an hour in the North and 30 cents in the South.

Costs will mean "cost at the plant," the manufacturers agreed. One group had urged that cost at destination should rule.

Ralph Stoddard, secretary, said the industry now has 20,000 employes.

Hitch Develops In World Pact Limiting Wheat

Argentina Seeks Increase in Its Allotment in Export Quota.

(Associated Press.)

Fears arose yesterday at the Department of Agriculture that jubilation over the signing of the world wheat agreement by 21 nations last Friday might prove premature, as further delay was reported in signing a supplement dividing the quota of exports among the four chief exporting nations. Argentina's new minister of agriculture has instructed its delegate to obtain an increase of more than 11,000,000 bushels in its export allotment.

The four principal exporting countries, Argentina, the United States, Australia, and Canada, are required to limit their total export for the year, which began August 1, to 560,000,000 bushels. The supplement is to divide up this aggregate quota and it is here the hitch has developed.

Secretary Wallace says the main agreement is conditional upon the supplement and that if the four nations failed to sign the latter, the general agreement would not prove workable.

Under the supplement, United States exports this marketing year would be limited to about 47,000,000 bushels or about 8½ per cent of the total quota. For the following year the supplement contemplates this country's exports would be about 20 per cent.

It is estimated that the United States would be able to export about 100,000,000 bushels the second year.

Meanwhile, the campaign to obtain contracts from farmers agreeing to reduce by 15 per cent their plantings of wheat for harvest next year was speeded up.

Drought Ruins Major Crops Over Country

(Associated Press.)

A severe drought is sweeping the Nation this summer, bringing parched crops and dried-up pastures to much of the country.

Major crops except cotton and tobacco are far below normal and pasturage through the grazing area is in the worst condition on record.

Bureau records show the drought has extended over most of the United States, although more severe in some parts.

Worst sufferers are the wheat and corn areas, says J. B. Kincer, chief of the Bureau's climatology division.

Valley Wheat Damaged.

During June, when the Ohio Valley wheat crop was most in need of rain, the valley had only 30 to 50 per cent normal rainfall. Parts of the Southwestern wheat area, received as little as 11 per cent normal rain.

The Southwest drought was broken slightly in June, but moved to the Northwest, damaging prospects of the spring wheat crop.

The Ohio Valley drought appears to be broken, but the rains have come too late to benefit wheat and corn. Experience has shown, says Kincer, that crop predictions issued by the Department of Agriculture are closely related to rainfall.

Cotton and Tobacco Escape.

Cotton and tobacco areas of the South have escaped somewhat. They had dry weather in June when the plants needed little moisture. July rains helped and both crops are close to normal.

The Ohio Valley and Western plains have been abnormally hot, so corn has been burned. Pastures entered August, says Kincer, in worse shape than in 1930. In that year the worst effects of the drought came in August, while this year late rains are promised to restore the pastures to some extent.

Seventh Street Savings Bank is one of eight merging to form the Hamilton. Its banking house is at Seventh and N streets northwest, and will be known as the Seventh Street branch.

He was graduated from Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking, where he took special courses in banking practice. He is a graduate of Columbus University Law School, receiving his bachelor of laws degree last June. For many years he served as a member of the board of Washington Chapter.

With DeMarco's appointment but one more branch managerial post for the Hamilton bank remains to be filled—the branch to be established at the Woodridge-Langdon Savings & Commercial Bank, 2027 Rhode Island avenue northeast.

Seventh Street Savings Bank was organized in 1912. It joined the plan creating the Hamilton bank June 23, last.

Courts of U. S. Held Unafraid To Rule on NRA

Grand Rapids, Mich., Aug. 29 (AP).—The declaration of a Federal judge that the courts will not sidestep an attempt to challenge legality of the national recovery program marked the meeting here today of attorneys general from every State. It was preliminary to opening the convention of the American Bar Association here tomorrow.

United States District Judge Arthur J. Tuttle, of Detroit, took up an assertion yesterday by Attorney General Patrick H. O'Brien, of Michigan, that "no court in the land would dare to challenge the constitutionality of the NRA program."

"No court in the land," he said, "is going to be dictated to nor is it afraid. The courts of the United States will not stand in the way of recovery, but they will interpret the Constitution of the United States."

The Executive Gold Order.

The President has signed an executive order authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to receive on consignment for sale, subject to such rules and regulations and upon such conditions as he shall prescribe, gold from natural deposits in the United States or any place subject to the jurisdiction thereof.

Sales by the Treasury may be made (a) to persons licensed to acquire gold for use in the arts, industries, or professions or (b) by export to foreign purchasers. Sales may also be made through Federal Reserve Banks or such other agents as the Secretary may designate, subject to such charges as the Secretary may, in his judgment, impose.

The immediate effect of this order is to provide a market for gold mined in the United States or in territory subject to its jurisdiction. If such a market were not provided, it is conceivable that for some of the mines the cost of producing gold under a rising price level would overtake the mint price of $20.67 per ounce, with the result that such mines would be unable to operate, thereby causing unemployment and dislocation of industry.

The order further provides a way by which consumers of gold in the arts may be provided with a source of supply without depleting the store of gold which officially is now supposed to be concentrated either in the Federal Reserve Banks or in the United States Treasury.

As a result of this order there will be a quotation for gold in terms of other currency which will be the price that the Secretary or his duly appointed agents will pay in settlement of the gold consigned to them by producers. This will not, however, be a price at which gold can be bought and sold by anybody and everybody. It will do no more than officially record the price for gold in world markets—a price already registered daily by the quotation of the American dollar in terms of foreign gold currencies.

Montagu Norman at Tea.

Dispatches from Hyde Park give some details of the visit of Montagu Norman, Governor of the Bank of England, on Monday, when he was cordially received by President Roosevelt. It appears that several ladies and gentlemen were present, and that tea was served. Among the guests was Prince Louis Ferdinand, grandson of the former Kaiser, who has been in the United States some time, engaged in studying the automotive industry. It was a pleasant occasion, in which conversation was general, although Prince Louis Ferdinand doubtless recounted some of his amusing experiences in America.

As the British are deeply interested in all that concerns America, it is presumable that Mr. Norman will make a very thorough report of his meeting with the President. He can inform the directors of the Bank of England whether Japanese tea, Chinese tea, or Ceylon tea was served, and whether it was weak or strong, stable or unstable. The varied topics of conversation at an American tea table could not fail to interest the British directors, who may learn from Mr. Norman the exact location of the American Hyde Park. It is in reality up the Hudson, and not down Piccadilly way.

The meeting of busy public men for a few minutes of wholesome relaxation at tea, in conversation with the ladies, affords them some relief from the incessant grind of business. Mr. Norman is now in a position to give his colleagues a vivid picture of the settings and circumstances of a typical American home, in which the host happened to be the President of the United States, freed for the moment from perplexing cares, and happy in the society of his friends.

China's Flood Toll.

Breaking dikes and the flooding of farm lands and villages along the Yellow River continue to spread desolation in China. In western Shantung Province alone 3,000,000 persons are reported to have been driven from their homes, with great loss of life and as yet incalculable destruction of property. Receding waters frequently leave farm lands covered with a deep layer of sand which renders them useless for agricultural purposes.

A number of magistrates in the inundated area of Shantung have petitioned Nanking for relief and for the punishment of Governor Liu Shih of the adjoining province of Honan, whom they charge with having sent troops to cut the dikes in the Lanfeng district for the deliberate purpose of flooding western Shantung to avert the threatened breaks further west, which would have loosed the flood waters upon Honan.

The danger of floods in Honan, notwithstanding the release of the Yellow River's swollen tide further east, as charged, has not yet been entirely avoided. Kaifeng and other walled cities in Honan are more than twenty feet below the crest of the Yellow River's present flood tide. Late reports bring word of a renewed rise of 12 to 14 feet in Kansu Province, further west.

What the result of this added volume of water will be when it reaches the dangerously strained dikes at the great bend at Kaifeng can not be foretold. The danger still persists that the river may break through and seek its former course to the Yellow Sea. This would menace Suchow and many towns built along the old river bed. Thousands of soldiers and impressed civilians are reinforcing dikes in a final effort to avert this calamity.

Railroad Spending.

The gross earnings of railroads show some very gratifying increases. But the increases in the net earnings are even greater, which is natural in the circumstances. For many months it has been estimated that, as the result of economies in operating expenditures, increases in gross earnings would mean relatively large increases in the net earnings.

Gratifying as this may be, it would be in the public interest, from the point of view of employment and of further increases in net earnings, if the railroads would increase their expenditures for necessary maintenance of way and equipment and for other needed improvements.

Federal Coordinator of Transportation Joseph B. Eastman has requested the railroads to make a canvass of their freight car equipment with the view of replacing worn-out and obsolete cars. The Reconstruction Finance Corporation is authorized by law to make loans to finance such replacements. Here is logical and economic use for public funds of which the railroads would do well to take advantage wherever circumstances permit.

Successful Diversification.

In the midst of farm distress and widespread distribution of Federal relief to agriculture it is interesting to note the progress that one community has made in solving its own problems. Cairo, Ga., is the center of an agricultural section which has displayed a capacity for organization and an initiative in meeting changing conditions. The transformation has been accomplished by changing the cultivation of crops already produced in over-abundance to the cultivation of foods needed largely for local consumption.

For generations the farms about Cairo had been devoted to cotton, tobacco, peanuts and pecans. A group of intelligent citizens figured out the advantages of a complete change of farm operation, and it is said that both countryside and town have prospered since the farmers took to producing fruits and vegetables, live stock and dairy products. Organization, not only of farmers, but of business men and bankers, was necessary to insure capital and markets, but the requisite cooperation was forthcoming.

A canning factory was established to take care of surplus stocks. It has added to town employment and its products have attained more than local reputation, since it does not confine its output to the usual tomatoes and string beans, but packs okra, peppers, lima beans, sweet potatoes and other vegetables less commonly preserved.

Cairo farmers grow tomatoes in huge quantities for Northern use. Grady County produces more than $4,000,000 worth of its new crops every year, and they have transformed the community. The secretary of the Cairo Chamber of Commerce reports that before the diversification program was adopted more than 400 farmers in the county had no chickens, hogs, gardens or milch cows. Now the improvident farmer is said to be a rare exception there, and bank credit is in no small measure based on a farmer's ability to supply his own table and feed his stock with the products of his own land.

Occupying New Leisure.

The use to which increased leisure will be devoted with the coming of shorter working hours has concerned many communities for some time. New York is preparing to do something about it without delay. The metropolis has nearly 14,000 acres of parks within the city limits whose upkeep require a net expenditure of $6,000,000 a year, yet it is contended that the parks offer only limited opportunity for recreation and amusement such as should be provided for the city's millions.

The New York Park Association, under the leadership of Nathan Straus, jr., will seek legislative authority for the creation of the Greater New York Recreation Authority. If this movement is successful it will permit the borrowing of $25,000,000 in Federal funds for the construction of recreation centers in various sections of the city park system. The park association has long had such a development in mind, patterned somewhat after the Westchester County centers and those found in so many parts of Germany.

It would not be the intention to invade Central Park and smaller areas of the midtown section, but the larger parks of Brooklyn, the Bronx, Queens and Richmond, as well as Riverside Drive, offer opportunities for the plans under consideration. They include provisions for all kinds of sports, such as tennis, baseball, swimming and croquet and the newly popular sport of horseshoe pitching, while restaurants, music and dancing would be provided at small cost.

It is estimated that such centers can be made virtually self-supporting by charging small fees. Many European cities are found to provide recreational advantages for as little as $2.50 per capita per year. Westchester County, which has been a leader in public support of recreation, supports more than 17,000 acres of parks with a net cost to the taxpayers of $272,000, due to the fact that collections from concessions and the small fees paid by the patrons of recreational facilities bring an annual income of $1,657,000.

A committee has just been appointed by the New York leaders of the NRA movement to consider all the problems connected with providing beneficial ways for the employment of idle hours.

Local Sewer Systems.

Residents of Arlington County seem to be united in favoring construction of a general sewer system, to be financed in part by an advance of public works funds. Preliminary surveys to lay out a system composed of 150 miles of trunk lines and about 220 miles of laterals have been undertaken. The total estimated cost of the system would be about $2,250,000. If assurances can be obtained of an advance of 30 per cent from the Public Works Administration, it is proposed that a bond election shall be held after the survey has been completed and the question of disposal settled.

Under the allotment of $40,000 for study of a suitable disposal plant for the District of Columbia a comprehensive survey is to be made immediately. In some quarters it is held that this disposal plant should be planned to take care of the Arlington County system, and possibly of other neighborhood sewer systems, so that the pollution of the Potomac River would be prevented once for all. At present the Potomac is receiving raw sewage not only from the District of Columbia but from Arlington County.

Sewage disposal need no longer constitute a steady drain upon taxpayers and a menace to public health. Science has solved this question for many cities, notably in Europe, and it can solve it for the District of Columbia and Greater Washington. Extension of the District sewer system is provided for in an allotment of public works funds, but these extensions merey emphasize the necessity of providing a satisfactory disposal plant which will utilize sewage and safeguard the purity of the Potomac. As matters are now going, the Potomac itself is the principal sewer of this region, and its waters are becoming fouler every month. Tidal action throws sewage back to the District limits and even as far up as Georgetown. It is becoming an intolerable nuisance.

Camels in Texas.

A tablet was placed a few days ago at Camp Verde, Texas, by the State division of the Daughters of the Confederacy to mark the site of a frontier post. Among the many interesting associations of this spot probably no other is as picturesque as the fact that it was here that a herd of 125 camels, imported by order of Jefferson Davis, was established.

It was while Davis was Secretary of War in 1855 that he had these ships of the desert imported to test their value for transportation purposes in the arid regions of the Southwest. The camels at Camp Verde numbered only 85 in 1861. The old records show that they were considered a valuable asset of the frontier fort, but the outbreak of the war interfered with the development of the plans for this transport unit.

The State of Texas took over the herd during the war, but did not make use of them, although they were not disposed of until 1868, when the number had increased to 125. The original Federal appropriation for the purchase of the camels was $30,000 and two Army officers went to Egypt to bring them to the United States. In the brief period of experimentation with their use the Army found the camels more useful for scouting than transportation. In the supply trains they frightened the mules into a stampede every time they appeared. The camels, which cost about $75 each, were sold out at $14 a head, part of them going to form a camel ranch to supply circuses, while another purchaser produced camel hair. Today nothing remains but the new marker for old Camp Verde.

Editor Moley and Editor Smith may be depended upon to provide inter-magazine stimulus for each other.

Action Against Crime.

From the Detroit News.

Probably the least valid of the arguments against the extension of Federal law to cover crime and the prosecuton of crime in all its interstate phases, and the creation of an American "Scotland Yard" to act in cases which for one reason or another are beyond the capacity of the community to handle with effect, is the citing of the Nation's unhappy experience with prohibition and the agency charged with its enforcement.

Prohibition from the start failed of anything like unanimous approval on the public's part. The quality of its enforcement may have added to the momentum of the sentiment for change, but the sentiment was there. The seeds of its destruction were in itself, that it never enjoyed the whole-hearted and loyal support of a great and intelligent part of the public. In dealing with the kidnaper, the murderer, the bandit, there is no division of sentiment among honest men. No one but the criminal himself condones the abductor and gunman. Federal action against them and their kind would have with it the undivided backing of all good citizens, many of whom were either apathetic or actively hostile to liquor prohibition and its perpetuation. The fear that Federal enforcement of law against violent crime would be a repetition of its sorry showing in prohibition simply ignores a vast difference in public sentiment in the two cases.

In the hearings of the Senate special committee on rackets and in other forums of the kind, the idea of broadening Federal law to include all crimes with implications that reach beyond the community, and the rearing of an agency to deal with these crimes is receiving serious attention. It is being more and more recognized that the mobility of the modern criminal gives him far too great an advantage over local forces of law, hedged in by restrictions which, while they were no obstacle in stage coach times, are unendurable in a day when any one, criminal or otherwise, can cross the continent in less than a day.

The Once Over.

By H. I. Phillips.

THE WAR OF 1933.

("Not since 1917 has such unity ruled America."—President Roosevelt.)

The drums that rolled in seventeen
Are rolling; can't you hear?
But now it isn't "Over There"
That makes the Nation cheer.
The bugles once again are heard
As marching millions cheer,
For now we've taken "Over There"
And made it "Over Here!"

II.

The fighting urge that swept the land
Is sweeping it again!
The spirit rides upon the wind
With force of hurricane.
This time the goal is not obscured—
Nor purpose filled with doubt—
The millions in the war today
Know what it's all about!

III.

The homes that felt the vibrant call
For sacrifice and stint
Are meeting it as ever with
No trace of saffron tint.
The tramp of marching feet is heard.
The rhythm fills the air,
But now the morrow's goal is known
And no one questions "Where?"

IV.

From tenement and hovel come
The thousands to a war—
From mansion, cottage, penthouse, hut,
As they've all come before.
The same old battle spirit rules,
The same old will to win,
And 'neath the set expressions you
Can see the same old grin.

V.

The wives and mothers fall in line—
(Who ever thought they'd not?)
Right on the same old spot.
The specters and the banshees fade,
The spooks all take to flight—
For now a Nation unafraid
Cries, "Hey, there! Where's the fight?"

VI.

The air is cleared of selfishness
And pettiness and greed;
The "Me first!" fellow looks around
And feels quite small indeed;
The guy who cried, "The country's sunk—
We'll hoard up what we can,"
Now hears the drums and says, "I guess
I'd better be a man!"

VII.

The chiseler and privateer,
The pirate and his crew,
They see the writing on the wall
And see that eagle blue.
Oh, boys, there's this to say about
The crisis grave and great:
The cause will be worth fighting for
To see these birds go straight!

VIII.

Come on there, kid! It's "Forward march!"
There'll be no shirts to "comb,"
No sodden trenches for your bunks,
No years spent far from home.
Once more we're in a finish fight,
But if we're true to type,
Say, Flanders back in seventeen
Will make this war a pipe!

A golfer competing in the Western open at Chicago was arrested the other day on a vagrancy charge as a gangster. The conduct of the golfers on so many courses these days being what it is, it would seem that a gangster would appear positively sissified.

Up around our old home in Connecticut, for instance, the fivesome is held to have supreme rights over all other players, even the club committee members.

The man arrested as a gangster was playing par golf, says a dispatch, but the appearance of the police so unsettled him that he took an eleven on the next hole. It was a short hole, calling for an iron, probably, but the cops were using their woods.

You Must Use the Egg Money to Buy Chicken Feed if You Want More Eggs

By Robert Quillen.

THERE was a time when people starved because they were unable to plant and harvest enough grain for all.

Through all the ages, mankind has struggled desperately to obtain the necessities of life.

With the coming of machines—most of them invented within the memory of men now living—the problem of the ages seemed to be solved.

For the first time in history the people of this country were able to produce abundance of everything for everybody.

But the machines that produced abundance were owned by the few.

The manufacturer employed 100 men to operate his machines and these did the work of 1,000 men.

But the machines that did the work could not consume the goods. And the manufacturer, with the income of a thousand men, could not consume as much as a thousand.

Men replaced by machinery had no money to buy the products of the machines. And thus the dream of universal abundance ended in tragic frustration.

Is that the end? Will men rest content with a system that enables them to produce abundance and yet affords them no way to obtain it?

You know they will not. They will find a way out.

No man yet dreams what the way will be. But this much is certain. There will be no going back. The machines are here; they will be utilized to the utmost. Men will not continue to live in want while abundance lies within reach.

At present, though we hide the truth from ourselves, the machines are taxed to provide a dole for the men they displaced. That plan is bad and can not last.

The only alternative that now appears, short of complete socialization, is a readjustment of hours and wages to provide work for all and a living for all who work.

Like it or hate it, the new way seems inevitable.

So long as private ownership endures, the capital invested in machines must pay a profit; there can be no profit without a market; and as the farmer plants seed to insure a harvest, so the machines must somehow support an army of workers sufficient to consume their products.

Comment of the Press

"Back to the Constitution."
St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Senator William H. Dieterich, of Illinois, one of the New Deal senators sent to Washington in the electoral revolt last November, is quoted as saying in an address at Springfield, Ill., that the United States Government will "go back to the Constitution as soon as conditions are normal." It is clear from this statement that the junior Illinois senator thinks we have turned our back on the Constitution, or at least that we have departed from it in certain instances. Perhaps he will oblige the country with an enumeration of the ways in which the recovery program breaks with that great document.

What Senator Dieterich overlooks is that the Constitution at a given time is what it is interpreted to be by the United States Supreme Court. As the notions of men have changed through a century and a half, so have the interpretations of the Constitution been changed. Constitutional concepts of many kinds have been modified, enlarged, expanded—in short, brought up to date. What the Justices of the Supreme Court of one period, with limited knowledge in a new field, have declared to be unconstitutional, the judges of a later date have sustained, in the light of fuller information and social advancement.

Little Fellows Need Help.
Redfield (S. Dak.) Observer.

The Government has gone into partnership with big business and it is a wise move. But there are scores of little businesses in every State that need assistance just as vitally as the big fellows and who are in every way worthy of it, and yet so far the Government, while expecting them to carry on just like the big fellows, has provided absolutely no financial assistance. Here is an oversight that it would seem the Government would move to help in some manner.

Labor Leadership.
Topeka Capital.

The responsibility of labor is weightier than before, and it will need able, fair-minded and liberal leadership. Employers have learned that labor is something more than a factor in production; it is a cardinal factor in consumption of goods, in maintaining markets for production and thereby keeping labor itself employed. This, if a lesson to employers, is equally one to labor. How it uses its rights and power will affect labor as well as capital for good or ill.

Railroad Prospects.
Brooklyn Eagle.

Quite lately a change for the better has shaped up in the railroad business. One can not yet say how far this change for the better will go. On the assumption that it will carry the railroads back to the satisfactory days of 1926 or thereabout, they will evidently have to hire more workers and pay higher wages than now, code or no code. Their workers can look forward to better times, and to Federal help in getting these, as soon as railroads commonly earn what they need in order to foot the bill.

Domestic Tragedy.

He married her, and then there came Across his path, some 10 years late
A woman, young, with eyes aflame,
Who made his wife appear sedate.

And he who should have shut his eyes
To beauty such as hers, went mad
Seeking a second paradise,
Forgetful of the one he had.

Of blunders such as this is made
The tragedy of human lives.
Love only fully is repaid
When men bestow it on their wives.

Afraid, the second woman grew
That she might suffer such a wrong.
How soon or where she never knew

Along the Potomac

With

Carlisle Bargeron.

IT is highly indicative of the part the Youth Movement is playing in our present government, I think, that there should be so much concern in the press at this time about what is to become of young Mr. Arthur Mullen, who was associated with Prof. Moley in the latter half of the professor's meteoric public career.

Bargeron.

The story of the professor's demise has been running in the papers since Monday morning and it triangular fashion. I mean to say, that one picking up his morning or afternoon paper reads the Washington story on the matter, then the Hyde Park version and, because of the impress, apparently, of the Youth Movement on the administration, an Omaha, Nebr., version.

We read in the Washington story that it is a big victory for Secretary Hull, from Hyde Park that Mr. Roosevelt will always have a high regard for his friend Raymond, and then from the Nebraska prairies, like that wail of the farmer which we have been hearing for so many years, there comes the cry, "What is to become of Young Arthur?"

• • • •

I TELL you, this is one of the phenomena of the times. The concern for Young Arthur is not confined to the wail from the prairies, either. Even in the Washington accounts there is almost as much reference to him, as to what will become of him, as there is to the professor himself. And from Hyde Park, too, the dispatches report that it was a matter which the professor took up with the President.

If I have a clear picture of it all, in fact, the matter of young Arthur's future was as much discussed, was of as much prominence in the Hyde Park conference as was Mr. Vincent Astor's national magazine and the professor's editorship of it.

• • • •

AND one gathers that in this particular piece of planned economy which the professor insists the whole episode is, that young Arthur was left out of the pattern. This, of course, was nobody's fault. The pattern was laid out, according to the professor, even before Mr. Roosevelt assumed the Presidency. The professor's coming to Washington and taking a desk in the State Department and his subsequent trip to London and finally his retirement and announcement of his editorship was all part of the plan.

Naturally young Arthur could not have been placed in it because his association with the professor had not developed when the plan was formulated.

• • • •

NOW I am merely citing this as illustrative of the times. It is in no way intended in disparagement of young Arthur. He is carried on the books as the young legal adviser of the professor, though just what he ever legally advised the professor on, I don't know.

The point is, though, that heretofore we have not been so much concerned as to what happened to the young Arthurs when the professors went out. This would have made the reporting of the comings and goings of Government officials an entirely too arduous task. We would have assumed that the subordinates went with them or were fitted in the Government fabric somewhere else.

In this instance, it is different. The future of young Arthur Mullen is an incident equal in importance, apparently, to that of the professor himself.

• • • •

IT may be, of course, because of the plans which young Arthur had for punishing the State Department career men for what they are considered to have done to the professor. In this event, young Arthur's going does assume an importance. It means that the career men are safe, that young Arthur will not have the opportunity of carrying out his plans or his punishing.

What is more likely, however, is that since the Youth Movement has made its presence in the Government so pronounced, we naturally give more attention to those who are prominent in it. And in the Youth Movement Young Arthur was that.

His father, Arthur senior, now is entirely different. There is none of the Youth Movement about him, none of the Youth Movement's aspirations and ideals. Arthur senior is engaged in that game of political money-making which is as old as government itself, and has about it none of the youthful ideas and experiments.

It is, in fact, a tried and proved business.

EXIT THE BARKER.

Charlie Dodson, veteran Coney Island barker, the other day described the fine points of his profession, according to the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, which his genius had made the applied science of mob psychology. Concluding, he said he had turned down a chance to go to the Chicago fair and talk about the dinosaurs. It may be well that he did, for at Chicago he would have found himself among the last of a dying tribe. The machine age, which the Century of Progress exalts, has made the barker a relic of the dim past, ousted by mechanical contrivances.

Unions Battle And Postoffice Job Is Tied Up

Iron Workers, Masons Quit in Row Over Crane Operation.

A dispute over the movements of two hoisting cranes yesterday threatened to halt work on the new city postoffice addition. More than 200 iron workers and stone masons were forced by their unions to cease work until it was decided which faction should control operations.

Officials of the B. W. Construction Co., general contractors on the building, wired President Roosevelt, at Hyde Park, asking aid in the dispute. The Labor Department refused to intervene.

Iron workers, it was pointed out, originally held the signal positions for the two cranes. A protest by stone masons resulted in a shift. The issue came to a showdown at 2 p. m. yesterday when both factions refused to work, pending settlement.

In the event a settlement is not reached by tomorrow morning, it was declared, work will have to come to a complete halt. Bricklayers will have finished work and operations can not be resumed until iron workers and stone masons continue.

Nearly every type of building labor is affected. It was estimated the general contractors will lose $200 a day until a settlement is reached.

College Life

Maryland Students to Be Under Control of Faculty Group.

An experiment in liberal government of student life is being put into effect at the College Park branch of the University of Maryland this year, according to President Raymond Allen Pearson.

A faculty committee of 14 on student life, to supervise extracurricular activities, has been chosen by Dr. Pearson.

Dr. Pearson believes this group will be of material help to students in affording them the benefits of mature judgment.

"I believe that the closer contact of undergraduates and faculty will be not only of value to our students during their years at the university, but also after they have graduated," he said. "It is a new experiment, but one, I feel, will prove successful if given the cooperation of the student body."

National Dairy Head to Testify

McInnerney Call Decided Upon as Bowman Dies in Baltimore.

Thomas McInnerney, president of the National Dairy Products Corporation, which controls 60 per cent of the milk distribution in the Capital, will be called when the Senate milk investigation is resumed.

Decision to call McInnerney was made yesterday by Elwood H. Seal, special counsel to the committee, when word was received from Baltimore of the death of Charles Bowman. Bowman was to have been the principal witness to tell of the acquisition of a score of local dairies by National Dairies.

Bowman was president of the Western Maryland-Fairfax Farms Dairy of Baltimore, a subsidiary of National Dairies. He also was a vice president of the parent corporation. It was Bowman who negotiated the sale of the Chevy Chase dairy to the corporation.

Auditors under Mr. Seal yesterday began an examination of the books of the independent distributors.

Lobby Lovers, Who Held Hands In Same Spot 3 Years, Missing

Reporter Frightens Away Old Couple Who Met in Hotel Daily.

A stranger's curiosity has frightened an old man and woman from their rendezvous in the Willard Hotel lobby.

Who were they? No one knew.

The stranger was the reporter who tried to find out.

He seemed about 60 years old. She must have been 70. For at least three years hotel employes hav seen them meet there daily. They sat in out-of-the-way corners of the lobby. Mostly they talked, but sometimes his arm would slip casually around her shoulders, sometimes she would hold his hand and sometimes, when no one seemed to be looking, they would quickly kiss.

Allowed to Stay.

Though lobby sitters are normally discouraged by hotel managements, the Willard officials showed little concern over the old man and woman.

So regular was their attendance—they came each afternoon about 2 o'clock and left about 5—that the hotel people came to regard them as a part of the scenery.

Only once was it found necessary to speak to them. That was when Jack Kemp, the house man, found them eating lunch in one of the rooms that adjoin the Willard's famous "Peacock Alley" promenade The next day they came without lunch.

Curiosity Aroused.

The more constantly they met, the more did they arouse the inquisitiveness of the hotel staff. All who had seen them asked the same question. "Who are they?"

A telephone operator offered the only clew. The man she remembered as a conductor on the street car she had ridden on for many years.

Recently they had occupied an obscure seat just inside the Fourteenth street entrance. There when the weather was extremely warm they alternatly fanned each other. It was on one of these days that the reporter asked them questions. They departed that day before their usual time and never returned.

They have been seen since in other downtown lobbies, but never for more than a day at a time.

Legion Riding Tourney Put Off; Field Boggy

U. S. Employe, Wife Arrested In Drug Drive

Heroin Is Reported Found on Postal Worker; Third Pleads Guilty.

The start of a drive by Federal and local narcotic agents yesterday resulted in the arrest of three persons, including a Government clerk and his wife, and confiscation of a small quantity of alleged drugs.

Agents arrested Walter E. Farnsworth, 36, Postoffice Department employe, and his wife, Dorothy, at their home in Hyattsville, Md. The Narcotic Bureau said several purchases had been made from Farnsworth.

The man will be arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Turnage today. His wife is being held at the Prince Georges County Police Station.

Farnsworth was arrested yesterday on Rhode Island avenue northeast, as he crossed the District line. Agents L. B. Connell and T. F. Maxwell said they found fifty grains of heroin on him.

The third arrested, John H. McKay, 400 Tenth street northwest, was seized Monday by Detective Sergt. D. H. Jones, who had followed him from the Farnsworth home. He pleaded guilty yesterday before Turnage on a charge of possessing narcotics and was held on $2,000 bond.

Farnsworth had been under observation three years. The drug squad expected more arrests today.

Court Asked to Compel Closed Institutions to File Incomes.

The District Commissioners yesterdy took steps to force the Federal-American National Bank & Trust Co. and the Bank of Brightwood to file with them tax returns showing gross incomes for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1933.

In a suit filed in District Supreme Court it was claimed that John Poole, conservator of the Federal-American, and Claude H. Woodward, receiver for the Brightwood bank, have "neglected or refused" to file the returns.

Lacking these returns, the Commissioners declared, they have not sufficient information upon which to base a claim for personal taxes. Justice Daniel W. O'Donoghue signed an order requiring Woodward and Poole to show cause October 2 why they should not be compelled to file the desired information.

Indian Chief Asks To Release Deer

Bridge Being Built Across Gorge to Free Buck Trapped on Ledge.

Watkins Glen, N. Y., Aug. 29 (AP). If modern engineering methods fail, a Mohawk Indian chief may be called upon to extricate a buck deer, trapped on a precarious ledge in Watkins Glen State Park since Saturday.

Chief So-Lat-Cowanee today sought permission to use his knowledge of wild animals to save the buck from following his mate to death in the torrent 150 feet below.

Park authorities said they first would try to free the animal by building a bridge across the gorge. The buck is believed to have been chased over the cliff by dogs.

Sewer System Plans Checked For U. S. Loan

Engineer Prepares Plans for Arlington Project Asked by Board.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Work of checking data and preparing detailed plans and specifications for the Arlington County sewerage system started yesterday upon arrival of Engineer Allen B. McDaniel, who will be in charge.

Additional information is needed by the State Advisory Committee before acting on the county's request for a $2,250,000 loan under the industrial recovery act, County Manager Roy S. Braden stated. He said he hopes to have all necessary information ready in a few days so the application for the loan can be submitted to the State committee.

With assurance that the county can obtain its Federal loan, Judge Walter T. McCarthy, of the Circuit Court, will be asked to set a date for the special election on the proposed bond issue. Under the law 30 days must elapse before the election can be held.

Leo Lloyd, of Clarendon, was elected president of the Arlington County Democratic Club to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Charles R. Fenwick, of Falls Church, at a meeting last night at the headquarters in Clarendon.

Walter U. Varney was elected secretary, filling the vacancy caused by resignation of Albert M. Jones, and Boardman Munson was chosen assistant secretary.

Fenwick, having been elected chairman of the county Democratic committee, said he felt he could better serve the cause by giving all his time to the county committee.

Plans for Arlington County's NRA drive will be perfected at a meeting in the courthouse tonight at 8 o'clock.

Under leadership of Gen. Harry A. Fellows units will be organized to canvass the entire county to obtain consumers' pledges.

A garden party will be sponsored tomorrow evening by the Payne Co-ed Bible Class of the Ballston Methodist Episcopal Church on the lawn of Mrs. Martin Griffin, on Mulhall road.

The Kiwanis Club of Arlington County will hold its luncheon meeting today at 12:30 p. m., at Windsor Arms, Glebe road.

Pocahontas Is Accorded Niche in Great Cathedral

Three American women, Pocahontas, Harriet Starr Cannon, founder of the Community of St. Mary, the first religious community of the Episcopal Church in America; and Julia Emery, prominent in the organization of the Woman's Auxiliary of that church, are included in the 20 women representing the 20 Christian centuries pictured in the windows of the Chapel of the Annunciation. Bishop's House, Washington Cathedral Close.

Cathedral authorities explain that the windows of the chapel commemorate 20 women who have contributed to the advancement of Christianity, and each of the 20 Christian centuries is represented, although no attempt has been made to select the 20 outstanding women of Christian history. Nor are the individual women to be considered necessarily as the outstanding characters of their centuries.

Emphasize Woman's Goodness.

The windows are planned not to elevate certain saintly women for adoration, as might be supposed. Rather, they are designed to personify the distinctive types of womanhood that have influenced Christian history from its earliest beginnings down to the present time. The windows are expected to serve as a continuing reminder that saintly attributes are not confined to any single age or generation, but continue as a thread of simple goodness through the centuries.

There are five windows in the beautiful little chapel. Each has four panels portraying a representative Christian woman in each window. Most appropriately the windows were placed in the Chapel of the Annunciation—the gift of a woman in memory of a woman.

The windows and their panels are choice specimens of the art of stained glass. The feminine figures lend themselves gracefully to the artistic development of the windows and the symbolism has been worked out with infinite care and tenderness.

Gazing at the windows, those with imagination can see a procession of noble women marching down the centuries, banner bearers, as it were, of womankind.

St. Phoebe Heads List.

St. Phoebe, the first woman recorded as a deaconess, called by St. Paul "a succorer of men," typical of Christian service and unselfish helpful women, is in the panel of the first century after Christ.

The gentle St. Cecilia, noble Roman maiden, patron saint of music, was selected to typify women of the second century.

Third century womanhood is represented by St. Rhipsime, who embodied the grace of freedom from worldly ambition. St. Helena, symbolizing the spiritually minded, adorns the panel of the fourth century. The fifth century panel bears the figure of St. Ursula, the brave, a tribute to all fearless souls. The patron saint of Paris, St. Genevieve, typical of all those who guard the helpless, was chosen for the panel of the sixth century.

St. Hilda, representative of all true teachers, the abbess of Whitby, England, who was also a Northumbrian princess and who taught Caedmon, first of the English poets to sing his sweet numbers, represents the seventh century.

St. Frideswide, one of the founders of Oxford, representing all patronesses of learning, is recalled in the panel of the eighth century. In St. Ethelgiva, daughter of Alfred the Great, who stands in the panel of the ninth century, is a tribute to all who have kept themselves unspotted in a corrupt world.

Holiness, Gentleness Stressed.

St. Edith of Wilton, symbolic of those whose thoughts are holy, appears in the tenth century panel, while those of gentle spirit find their exemplar in St. Margaret, wife of Malcolm III of Scotland, in the panel representing the eleventh century. The beauty of simplicity is recalled by the individual woman representing the twelfth century, St. Irene of Constantinople, Empress of the East, who set an example of simplicity and plainness in an atmosphere of social excess and luxury.

The fourteenth century panel portrays Anne of Bohemia, as representative of all compassionate women. The glorious figure of Joan of Arc most properly is in the fifteenth century panel, representing all valiant women. Steadfastness in faith is typified in the girlish form of Lady Jane Gery in the panel of the sixteenth century.

Dean Explains Windows.

The Very Rev. G. F. C. Bratenahl, dean of Washington, once wrote of the purpose back of the placing of the windows in the chapel and of the meaning of the chapel itself: "The Chapel was planned not for the purpose of elevating saintly women for our adoration, but with the view to bringing them closer to us, familiarizing us with their sorrows, and their triumphs, and finally reminding us that—

'Such lived not in the past alone,
But tread today the unheeding street.'

"Among the early Christians," continued the Dean, "the word 'Saint' was applied to all who had been baptized into the faith, and it is unfortunate that later ages, in limiting the application of the word, have so emphasized the halo that the humanity of the saint has been forgotten. In the Chapel of the Annuciation one can remember that saints are human and real, and that their lives leaven every generation—even our own."

Lieut. Hunt is the son of Col. and Mrs. William E. Hunt. Lieut. Hunt was graduated from the United States Military Academy in 1932.

The wedding will take place in the fall.

Eight Capital Women On National Committee

Annual Campaign for Social Agencies to Be Backed by Million Women.

Washington women are given prominent representation on the National Women's Committee for the 1933 Mobilization for Human Needs, which is headed by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt. A list of names made public this morning shows that out of a list of 52 women, representing the entire Nation, eight are from the Nation's Capital.

Washington women included on the committee are Miss Grace Abbott, Miss Mabel T. Boardman, Mrs. Cary T. Grayson, Miss Mary G. Hawks, Miss Frances Perkins, Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole, Miss Rose Schneiderman and Mrs. Mary Roberts Rinehart.

With other members of the committee, they will attend the meeting of men and women leaders called by Chairman Newton D. Baker, to meet at the White House, September 8, on invitation of President Roosevelt.

First Lady Interested.

Members of the National Women's Committee were named by Mrs. Roosevelt and Newton D. Baker, chairman of the 1933 mobilization. They represent presidents of some of the largest national women's organizations in America, acknowledged national women's leaders, and State representatives.

The purpose of the committee is to arouse public opinion in support of social work in hundreds of American cities, which will conduct campaigns for Community Chest or other federated social efforts during the fall. It is estimated that through the National Women's Committee from 500,000 to 1,000,000 women will be enrolled in this work.

Mrs. Roosevelt is sending letters to prominent women in more than 400 cities urging them to take part in Community Chest and other campaigns this fall.

Stressing the vital part which private social agencies must pay in the recovery program and in the maintenance of normal community life, she appeals to women to lend their aid in seeing that the campaign in support of these agencies in their community are successful.

Likens Need to War Time.

"During the World War women gave their time and energy unsparingly," says Mrs. Roosevelt. "We have been passing through a period of depression longer than that of the World War and more corrosive in its effects. Before us lies the all-important task of recovery and reconstruction.

"The national women's committee is relying upon local women's crusades to arouse public opinion in support of the social agencies essential to our civilization.

"Women know from experience how to make a little money go a long way in providing for their own families, and they can, therefore, appreciate the task of the community-fund agences in budgeting their incomes so that no essential service is sacrificed. They know, also, how important are the growing needs of babyhood, the playtime of boys and girls, the worries and heartaches of burdened mothers and the anxieties of older folk, for women, after all, are conservators of family life."

MRS. FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT, now writing letters to leaders of women's organizations throughout the country urging support of 1933 campaign in behalf of social agencies and other organizations which help the needy. Mrs. Roosevelt has been named head of National Women's Committee to enlist one million women workers in the cause.

Water Is "Softer" Than 30 Days Ago

If you want to wash your hair today, or rinse out some silk thing-a-ma-gigs, don't fail to take into account that the water has 38½ parts of calcium magnesium per million, according to the official test of the United States Bureau of Mines made yesterday.

A month ago there were 43½ parts of calcium magnesium per million, which, translated into words more easily understood, means the water was harder and required more and softer soap for a lather than it does today.

O. M. Elliott, junior engineer, who makes these tests for the Bureau of Mines, said the rains of the last few days softened the water. After a long drought there may be as many as 60 or 70 parts of calcium magnesium per million in Washington water.

Blue Eagle Evil Omen To Hill Dwellers

Stillwell, Okla., Aug. 29 (AP).—The Rev. W. E. Rockett says the NRA Blue Eagle is interpreted by many hill dwellers of eastern Oklahoma as a spiritual mark "of a beast that will descend upon the world and destroy it."

"John's description in the Book of Revelations of the multiheaded beast that rose out of the sea is the basis for this crude doctrine," said the Rev. Mr. Rockett.

Stillwell merchants report many of the residents of remote communities who visit their stores had threatened to boycott the "stores that are marked by evil."

Staples' Guests For Indian Rite Start for Home

Mrs. Ickes and Mrs. Husband Among Those Enjoying Gallup, N. M., Event.

The crowning event of the season in New Mexico, the Indian ceremonial at Gallup, having closed on August 23, many of the guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Berton J. Staples, at Casa del Navajo, Coolidge, N. Mex., are preparing to return to their homes.

Mrs. Harold L. Ickes, wife of the Secretary of the Interior, has spent most of the summer in that picturesque part of the country, making an exhaustive study of the Indians and their customs. Though Mrs. Ickes has an adobe house on the Staples estate, she spends much time, when not working on her new book, at the Casa del Navajo.

The book, "Mesa Land," inspired by her visits to the India.. country, will be released in October, Mr. Richard Husband, son of the second Assistant Secretary of Labor and Mrs. W. W. Husband, who has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Staples, has read the proofs for Mrs. Ickes' work.

Prior to the Indian ceremonial, Mr. Husband took a trip to old Walpi, one of the towns of the Hopi Cliff Dwellers, to witness the snake dance rite in which about 60 snakes, many of them giant rattlers, were used.

Dr. and Mrs. Melville Herskowitz are still guests of Mr. and Mrs. Staples. Dr. Herskowitz is head of the department of anthropology at Northwestern University, and has spent the summer making researches to throw light on the early life of the American Indians.

Mrs. W. W. Husband, with their son, Mr. Richard Husband, are now en route to Washington, bringing with them stories of Chezzie Nez (Tall Friendly Chief), as the Navajos call Mr. Staples, who is an adopted member of their tribe. Mrs. Husband is the sister of Mrs. Staples.

Hair Made Glossy By Constant Care

A Hollywood beauty columnist has a simpler recipe: First of all, the hair should be kept in good condition through shampooing, brushing and through personal health habits. Second, after the hair is waved and arranged, brilliantine should be sprayed very lightly over the hair with one of the special atomizers made for heavy lotions. Remember, spray it on. Don't rub or pat it in.

The Jump Trump Rebid.

Probably one of the most valuable bids in Contract, when the partnership is reaching after a Slam, is the Jump Trump Rebid, a bid which shows a trump suit of not less than six cards in length, which contains not more than one loser.

An interesting example of the use of this bid, as well as the use of the Four-Five-Notrump Convention, occurred in a recent game at Princeton, N. J., in which Mr. Walter L. Rothschild, jr., a student at Princeton University, held the South hand.

South, Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

South	West	North	East
1♠	Pass	3♡(1)	Pass
4♠(2)	Pass	4NT(3)	Pass
5NT(4)	Pass	6♠	Pass
7♠(5)	Pass	Pass	Pass

1. While the hand does not have adequate spade support, in view of the fact that it has more than 3½ honor tricks and is well prepared for play at notrump, a Forcing Takeout must be made.

2. South is justified in making this bid by two considerations. In the first place, the spade suit is practically solid; it contains six cards, and there is no possibility of losing a trick unless some opposing player holds six to the Ten or nine. In addition, South has adequate trump support for North. Thus the chances of a Slam are extraordinarily good.

3. Showing two Aces and the King of a bid suit.

4. Showing the position of the other two Aces.

5. With a six-card suit headed by the four top honors, South's bid of seven spades is entirely natural.

West chose as his Opening lead the club 7, which was won in the closed hand with the King. South now laid down five rounds of spades. Upon these West followed twice and then discarded three clubs. The Declarer discarded the Knave and Ten of hearts and the trey of diamonds from Dummy and East discarded one club and one diamond. The Ace and King of hearts were next cashed, and the Ace of clubs laid down. The Declarer then returned to his own hand with the diamond Ace and led his last spade. West, of course, was forced to retain the club Queen inasmuch as the club Knave still remained in the Dummy. He therefore discarded a diamond. East was compelled to retain the heart Queen because he knew that South still had cards in that suit. Thus he too was forced to give up a diamond, and the Declarer then made the last two tricks in the Dummy with the King and eight of that suit.

Winter Cover Problem Must Soon Be Met

By Ruth Anne Davis.

During some of the hot days we've been having lately it wouldn't have been the pleasantest thing in the world to think about those winter blankets we'd better be 'tending to pretty soon. Nevertheless, you might as well open up those cedar chests and see what's there. You'll probably find you should add to your winter cover supply, and if you do, now's the time. Prices in this line of goods are considerably lower than they will be even a short time hence. A downtown store is selling two-toned all wool blankets, 70 by 80 inches for $3.95. Next week they're going way up. There's also a nice choice of double blankets, in rose, blue, tan, and peach plaids, which are now $5.95.

She had saved up all her pennies, and a lot of nickels and dimes, It had taken a long time to fill the bank all the way to the top, but one day she couldn't squeeze another cent in, so she opened it up and counted her money. Just exactly enough to buy a watch, and oh, how she did want a watch!

But there wasn't enough for a nice bracelet. She'd have to start saving all over again for that. In the meantime, though, she did a very wise thing. She went down to an F street store and bought a black satin wrist ribbon, with silver stripings along the side. It was very conservative, and very trim looking, and only 13 cents.

A box of candy is always a welcome gift, and a greeting card is sure to warm somebody's heart. Combine the two and what have you? A present de luxe. A downtown candy store is selling attractive boxes of delicious candy, assorted to suit your taste, with a card to suit any occasion placed decoratively across the top. The price is only 90 cents!

Simply Grand!

You may think you've seen everything in the way of cigarette boxes, but we'll make an even bet you haven't seen any like those in an E street furniture store. They're shaped like little grand pianos, but they're all dressed up in green and gilt. Speaking of novel gifts, you can't beat this one, can you?

No matter whether you have a studio apartment, a studio room, or just a studio, you must find a need for a large pillow stool. They serve in one instance as a backless chair, in another as a cocktail table, and oftener yet as a foot stool. No matter what you buy it for, you'll find it has a peculiar way of fitting a dozen other needs, too.

You know how it is when guests have assembled and there simply aren't enough chairs to go around? With one of these pillow stools, you can always be assured that you can call on it in a last-minute emergency like this. A large department store has them in red, orange and green leather for $3.50. They also have somewhat smaller ones in suede, almost any shade you desire, for $2.50. If you don't need one right now, keep it in mind as an ideal Christmas gift.

No matter how attractive your centerpiece is it can still be improved on. A small mirror placed underneath to catch the reflection of the ferns or flowers can embellish your carefully arranged work of art a hundredfold. A mirror such as a Connecticut avenue shop is showing can be your eyes' delight on more than one occasion. You can use it on your dining room table to stand your vase or fruit bowl on; you can use it in the hall, or the living room; on your long tables, or consoles, to brighten up an otherwise dark spot. Buy one now at this store for half price, 50 cents.

Great Care Needed To Clean Fine Rugs

Oriental rugs should have good care to insure their life and beauty. If they are vacuum-cleaned from the wrong side, the deep seated grit will be shaken onto the floor and can easily be swept up. Clean them in this way several times; then go over the right side to remove the surface dirt.

If rugs are cleaned only on the rigth side, the strong suction will sometimes remove the nap and loosen the weave. Rugs should be washed every other year or so, and alwys in a mild soap.

Fine Manners Soon in Vogue, Says Stylist

A return to that fashion era will mean a more gracious manner of living, thinks Kelly, as well as new-old styles in clothes. Gentlefolks may even start dressing for dinner again. New emphasis will be placed on feminine curves. And old-fashioned colors will once more be popular.

New fall colors, the stylist predicts, will include mahogany, elephant, caviar, olive green, rust, burnt rose, iron and eel grey, snuff, cinnamon and chocolate brown, greens from reseda to myrtle, and the berry shades, mulberry, blueberry, blackberry, and so on. For evening wear, prune, Tommy Atkins red, dull pink and blues, gray, apple green and violet will be the best.

"Tubes, tunics and peplums," Kelly calls the big three in today's fashions. Straight, narrow and tubular already, the new skirts may be just barely wide enough to walk in—and any fullness may be placed well below the knees. Even street suits will have tight skirts and tight-fitted jackets.

And here's a note about Hollywood dinner gowns: They will have either elbow length or long sleeves; they'll have bust fullness and back fullness; some of them will be away off at the shoulders, in spite of the sleeves; and many of them will have trains. This from Kay Francis, who apparently is adopting the Edwardian idea too.

Permanent Wave Had Odd Origin

Like many other inventions, the permanent wave as women know it today, and the purpose it serves, is widely variant from the purpose for which it was designed.

The method of hair treatment which was the forerunner of the permanent was designed exclusively to overcome scalp and hair ailments—so the story goes.

A permanent, you know, is wonderful for very oily hair. It seems to eliminate much of the oil. The creator realized that if straight hair could be given the qualities of curly hair, which is usually coarse, crisp and not too oily, the handicap in arranging it becomingly would be overcome.

And so a method was contrived for the purpose. In addition to adding "body" and eliminating oil, however, it was discovered that a lasting wave was also achieved. The result is that today women seek the wave for beauty, rather than the treatment for scalp health, although both are achieved.

College Women Said To Draw Small Pay

Women holding college degrees get salaries ranging from $950 to $1,600, as compared with salaries running from $905 to $2,275 earned by women with business and professional training. Such is the finding of Dr. Roy N. Anderson, personal investigator of the Teacher's College at Columbia University, as the result of a study of the relative earnings of college-trained women.

In reporting his findings, Dr. Anderson asks, "after four years of mental stimulation in the classrooms and libraries of our institutions of high learning, what may a college woman expect by way of a job?"

He answers his own question thus: "It is evident that the range of occupations upon which these college women have entered is very restricted. . . There seems to be conclusive evidence that a business training in addition to regular college education is an asset."

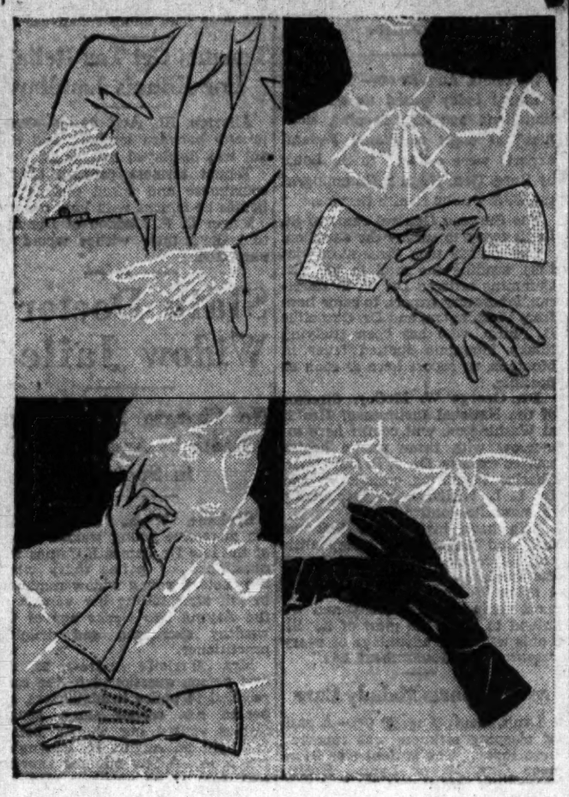
New Fall Glove Wardrobes Keyed to Costume Sleeves

Directed by Amos Parrish.



A bit of timely advice: Don't stock up on new gloves till you know just what your fall costumes are going to be. Why? Because the sleeves of your costumes are an important factor in deciding what gloves will be smartest.

If, for example, you're planning to have an informal coat or suit . . . one with rather wide-cuffed sleeves . . . don't go out and buy nothing but slip-on gloves. Get at least one pair of wrist-length, one-button gloves in pigskin, doeskin, capeskin or fabric.

Fits Under Sleeves.

The slip-ons would come to blows with the wide-wristed sleeve when they meet. While the snug wrist-length gloves slide neatly under the sleeve . . . as tailored as the suit or coat itself, as you can see in the sketch at the top left.

On the other hand, don't make the mistake of buying just these one-button gloves if you're having a new formal coat.

The fashionable sleeves of this type coat are snug-fitting, and gloves should be pulled over the coat sleeve. And that's where those slip-ons come in smartly . . . in five or six button lengths slightly flared, as shown in the lower right sketch.

More Formal Types.

But even that won't be enough. Surely you're going to have an afternoon dress or two.

With those you'll want gloves long enough to pull well up over the sleeves in the formal way—eight-button slip-ons or demi-mousquetaires, like the ones in the lower left sketch.

Still other smart tricks . . . such as keying the glove material to the costume material or its color to the color of the costume, or using bright colored gloves as accents (do you know about the new green, wine, rust and blue gloves?) are described in a new leaflet which contains samples of the new bright glove colors.

Pastor Weds Own Daughter by Phone

Woodsville, N. H., Aug. 29 (AP). A minister in Lajolla, Calif., spoke the words which made his daughter, Vevah Wyer Mears, and James H. Leonard man and wife in the room here in which Leonard was born.

Miss Mears, Leonard and ten witnesses wore head sets to listen to the Rev. Charles L. Mears, pastor of the Union Congregational Church at Lajolla, perform the ceremony over a special long-distance telephone set-up.

The bride was the last of Rev. Mr. Mears' children to be married and he had never performed the marriage ceremony for any members of his family. Miss Mears and Leonard are residents of New York, where Leonard is an executive of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co.

Anne Was 'Go Getter' Reporter; Here's Proof

With so many women reporters crowding about to learn the state of the nation, from statesmen, the story of how Anne Royall, first Washington newspaper woman, got a statement on the banking situation from John Quincy Adams, for which all the papers of the world clamored, is very timely.

Anne waited her chance and when the President was taking his daily swim in the Potomac River with his clothes nicely folded on the bank, she appeared out of the bushes armed with paper, quill pen and ink horn. She refused to leave until she had the statement she wanted.

"'Old Man Eloquent" recognized discretion was the better part of valor and gave this pioneer newspaper woman the story. Historians recorded the fact and the circumstances, but John Quincy Adams, so prolific in writing down the events of every day, carefully did not mention these circumstances in his diary.

Anne was the terror of the politicians of that day for she used any method she could to get news.

American Tourists Declared "Beefers"

New York, Aug. 29 (AP).—It is the opinion of Dr. W. Beran Wolfe, psychiatrist, that Americans do not know how to travel.

Back from a cruise, he said of his fellow travelers:

"In the venerated buildings of Mediterranean cities, instead of drinking in the beauty and lore of early civilizations, they were beefing about this and that and comparing it to the bank building at home.

Gowns Must Glitter in The Evening

Paris Says So—Also Decrees Buttons, Belts, for Day.

Paris, Aug. 30 (AP).—Belts of sparkling stones, beaten gold and silver, and fabrics shimmering with metal threads are launched by Louise Boulanger as the stuffs of which this winter's evening mode are built. The glittering trimmings recall those worn by the chatelaines of the Middle Ages.

Dinner and afternoon gowns are likewise finished with shimmering trims. A crushed girdle of red lacquered satin splashed with tiny gold figures finishes a black crepe dinner gown having similar brilliant touches at the shoulder line. A beaten silver half moon gleams from the draped bodice of another black crepe frock and a purple wool afternoon dress is worn with a triangular scarf of shining silver sequins.

Bird of paradise, osprey, coque and pheasant feathers add a luxurious touch to a third group of gowns designed for this winter's gayeties. A dinner gown of bottle green paysan velvet has pheasant tail feathers swirled about its long sleeves, a brown satin evening gown has a swirl of orange and yellow birds of paradise on the shoulder and an emerald green velvet gown has a splash of dark green feathers appliqued across the front of the bodice.

'Limp' Hair Helped With Cut and Wave

A becoming cut and a good permanent wave is an unbeatable combination for the woman with hair of the type that she "can't do a thing with."

This type of hair is usually fine and soft, of the type known to beauticians as "limp hair." It is seldom satisfactory when worn long, for the reason that, even though firmly pinned in place when dressed, it will not stay in place long.

Older women, particularly with this kind of hair will find a new lease on youthful good looks and hair smartness by lending themselves to the beautician's and the barber's art. Almost any good woman's barber nowadays has acquired the art of shearing locks in such a way as to permit of a soft natural frame for the face, and a gracious back-of-the neck line.

There is nothing like a distinctive change in hair arrangement to transform the entire appearance. Experiment carefully as to style, however, before taking a definite step.

The value of a permanent wave to "limp" hair is that it gives "body" to the hair by temporarily coarsening the texture, as well as making possible a definite and lasting wave.

Oklahoma Man Gets Thin in Big "Weigh"

Oklahoma City, Aug. 29.—J. R. McCarty offers encouragement in a big "weigh" for those who would be thin.

McCarty, head of the Federal State Employment Service here, weighed 565 pounds last December. Now it's 360 and he hopes to be a mere shadow of 220 pounds by February.

He lost 75 pounds while in bed with influenza and that made him feel so much better that he went on a diet.

The Family Marketer

Soaring Price of Eggs Is Compensated by Drop in Fryers' Cost.

The barnyard has the laugh on us, and there's nothing we can do about it. Eggs were 30 and 33 cents yesterday, and they're 33 and 35 today. From now on we stand by and watch them mount. Two months more and they'll be skyhigh. Listen to those old hens cackle in fiendish glee. We might as well smile a little ourselves, so long as we can go to the chain stores and buy fresh eggs—not Government-tested, however—for 25 cents a dozen.

There's a special in several meat markets this week on home-dressed calf liver, 60 cents a pound. Don't let a chance like this slip by. Take home a pound, roll it in flour, cook it smothered in onions, and serve it with crisp strips of bacon. You need only one thing to make this a complete supper, if not dinner—potatoes.

Do You Like Potatoes?

If you like potatoes creamed, you can buy five pounds of the plain cooking kind for 17 cents. If you prefer them baked, don't pass by the Idaho potatoes, five pounds for 24 cents. You might strike a happy medium by baking them, removing the flesh and creaming it, putting it back into the skins, and topping it with cheese. Put back into the oven for about five minutes, to give cheese a chance to spread itself in goodly fashion.

The name roast sometimes belies itself. It sounds like it must be expensive, but you can buy a beef chuck roast today for 15 cents a pound. And if you have "pull" with your butcher, it will probably be juicy and tender. If you haven't, maybe you'd better invest in a pork roast at 18 cents a pound; or a leg of lamb for 20 cents.

Some of the new sweet potatoes now on the market would be just the side dish with your roast pork. Bake them and serve them swimming in butter, or "candy" them with raisins and marshmellows, with a wine flavor, after the Southern style. These new potatoes are sweeter and juicier than the ones we've been buying this summer They're fresh out of the ground and full of natural flavor. You may buy them for 5 cents a pound in the chain stores; or $1.25 a bushel in wholesale stores.

Black Eyed Peas.

Don't try to find a likelier combination with your pork and sweet potatoes than black eyed peas. They sell for 20 cents a pint basket and, although that is rather high, you'll forget the price when you hear your family applaud the dinner.

It costs dearly to bid farewell to blueberries. They're leaving the market at 50 cents a quart. They're extremely small, and not so tasty as their recent predecessors which sold for considerably less.

A rather choice delicacy in the fruit line are nectarines. If you like peaches, or if you like plums, you'll be crazy about this cross between the two. They're 5 cents each.

Crab Prices Climb.

High winds and rough waters have affected the crab flake prices. They used to be 40 cents, small flakes; 60 cents large, whereas today they're 45 cents and 65 cents. Down on the waterfront you can still buy the smaller ones for 40 cents. They're just as good in salads, but not as attractive looking.

The price of frying chickens has reached rock bottom. They're now 30 cents a pound, but it won't last long. According to several poultry dealers, you can expect to pay considerably more in a short time.

Right now may be the ideal time for the fried chicken dinner you like to have ever so often. Don't fail to serve okra with it. Once a fried chicken dinner with okra, never one without. It's on the market for 10 cents a pint.

If you've canned and preserved your peaches, it's time you began on your pickles. Pickling cucumbers are on hand for 15 cents a dozen. You should see the large ones you can buy, three for 5 cents.

What Today Means

"Virgo."

If August 30 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:10 to 11:30 a. m., from 12:45 to 1:30 p. m. and from 5 to 6:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 2 to 3:45 p. m. and from 7:30 to 8:20 p. m.

It is possible that some one will attempt to deceive you on this date. This may come about in business and result in a loss of some big deal involving a good bit of money, or it may occur in your private affairs and result in the loss of a friend. It is probable that the deceit will be practiced by some one very near to you whom you have no cause to suspect.

The child born on this August 30 will quite likely be a reckless little one, mighty hard to keep track of. He will make friends very quickly but at the same time he will not lack judgment in selecting those he likes. He will have much tact. He will not be a great talker, will be discreet and can be trusted with a secret. Many friends among those of the opposite sex.

If August 30 is your birthday, you are not a quitter. Even in the face of the most tremendous odds, you keep on fighting. When you know you are licked, you are willing to admit it, but you do not become discouraged. You cooly change your tactics and are at it again. You are a calm person at all times and in face of danger you never become unnerved. When you know you are in the right you are invincible. You scheme and plan and whenever you go into battle you are thoroughly prepared. You are quick to size up a situation and to analyze your opponents; you know what to expect from them.

Born on August 30, you are a very human person in spite of the fact that you successfully conceal your feelings and emotions. You are more than a little sentimental and you form strong attachments for those of your own as well as for those of the opposite sex. You have many friends in all walks of life and in all parts of the world, for it is more than likely that your duties and pleasures will carry you to the four corners of the globe. You enjoy travel enormously and unlike many people you are able to talk interestingly about the places and peoples you have seen. You are not a very good judge of those of the opposite sex, and unless you are wise in your final judgment, you may find yourself in a divorce court.

Lounging Pajamas Grow More Ornate

Carole Lombard, for example, has a three-piece lounging outfit with trousers of deep maroon velvet. The blouse is of pale shell-pink satin with pleating around the neck and sleeves of scarlet. A wide sash of scarlet, tied in front will have streamers which hang to the bottom of the trousers.

Religious Art At Chicago Stirs Varied Feelings

Chicago, Aug. 29 (AP).—Religious art has gone modernistic and visitors at the World's Fair are differing in their reactions to the collection of ecclesiastical subjects brought from Germany and Austria.

Represented in the collection are objects assembled from churches, studios, museums and the private possessions of high ranking Protestant and Catholic Church dignitaries by Dr. J. P. Hall, Evanston, Ill., formerly a member of the Northwestern University faculty.

Dr. Hall claims the exhibit, housed in the Hall of Religion, is the first opportunity America has had to observe at first hand the fine examples of piety as interpreted in the modern motif abroad.

Receiving the most attention is the 8-foot brass figure of St. Anthony by the sculptor, Hans Habersetzer. The saint is depicted as slim of body with big hands, a large head with a mask-like face and having hollow eyes and features that are a composite of all races.

But there is a purpose behind it. The head was made large to depict the importance of mind, and the hands clasping a Bible, that they may firmly hold the word of God.

The collection is in a section of the building which gets its daylight through six stained glass windows borrowed from the East Liberty Presbyterian Church in Pittsburgh.

Sun Unkind to Older Woman, Good to Youth

Emphasizes Lines, Wrinkles; Eyes Look Smaller in Tanned Face.

Now that the summer is over women have discovered that to tan suddenly is not only folly from the standpoint of destroying beauty, but that sunburn can be positively painful. More, it can actually put one to bed, thoroughly ill. There's such a thing, too, as sunstroke and sun poisoning.

This past summer the question, "to tan or not," was settled with more precision than in former seasons. There was more evidence of individualization in regard to suntan as there has been in most phases of beauty. We see less and less standardized haircuts, coiffures, cupid's bow lips and so on.

Young girls continued to tan, knowing that suntan is more becoming to youth. The young carry it off better; look healthier, more carefree and buoyant, with a coat of tan. And the youthful skin can stand it better. A few creaming treatments and the skin is softened to its original elasticity.

Not so with the older woman, however. Lines and wrinkles show up all the more cruelly on a tanned skin. Effects of exposure are much more difficult for the mature skin to rout. A certain amount of "spring" and elasticity is gone; transparency, too. Its less luminous. Many a mature woman will know better next summer than to expose her skin to the sun without a full measure of protection in advance.

That isn't all. The fat face looks fatter with suntan on it. Did you know that? The eyes look smaller when the face wears a coat of tan.

As a rule, gray-haired women and very dark women are not flattered by tan. And for the titian types, suntan is no beauty trump because it dulls the striking contrast between skin and hair. Young in years, fair of hair, and not too fragile of skin are the requisites for a really successful tan.

Thousands of young girls and women who have been asking for a formula of how to tan without freckling have discovered there is no such formula.

And I hope that these girls and women will remember that just as it is wise to tan gradually, so freckles should be bleached gradually too.

My bulletin on bleaches for tan and freckles will be sent to anyone requesting it.

Choose Nail Tints Either of Two Ways

There are two safe ways of choosing your tinted nail lacquers. One is to consider the tints in combination with your skin tones. The other is to choose them with regard to your costume colors.

When considering the question with regard to costume alone, it is decreed that coral nails are lovely with white, pink, blue, black, brown and beige costumes. Rose is perfect with all pastels, and with black, brown and green. A deeper red is charming with black, white and pastel shades.

Museums Traders Of Extinct Birds

Pittsburgh, Aug. 29 (AP).—The Carnegie Museum now has a great auk and the National Museum at Washington has a cahow—most of a cahow, anyway—and therein lies a tale of barter among scientists.

For one mounted skeleton of a great auk, the Carnegie Museum gave the National Museum a "practically complete" skeleton of a cahow. This bit of trading is recorded in the Carnegie Museum's thirty-fifth annual report.

Both the great auk and the cahow are—or were—birds, now extinct. The auk, a native of Bermuda, familiar to crossword puzzle people, was a very large bird which moved around by night and buried itself in the sand by day. The cahow, a pretty large bird, too, stayed in the Far North.

Contradiction.

By Katherine Smith.

The night may have a thousand eyes
That close before the sun,
And Love may sigh a thousand sighs
To Sorrow's one.

But vision in the world grows blind
When your eyes close in sleep,
And Love has made your smiles too kind,
So I must weep.

Plymouth

By Mary Brook Lucas

After eight days of ocean the sight of land brings a little thrill even to the blase. The younger set has stayed up all night to bid adieu to their friends who dock at Plymouth. Judy braves the 5 o'clock morning breeze in a warm tweed suit, while her friend still wears a velvet evening ensemble.

The tender wearily works its way alongside the liner, gangplanks are let down and the English passengers troop aboard. It's all done so quickly, so efficiently, it's more like a dream to Judy. How quaint are the little fishing boats that sail out to watch the ship that is now flying the flag of Britain!

Merry shouts, hoarse whistles, clanking chains and the chugging of motors make a hearty noise that is practically deafening. One passenger aboard the tender wears a warm coat of brown suede with a gay green and beige scarf. Her hat is one of the new "furry" felts and is trimmed with a bright green feather.

"On our way again! I simply had to come up and see the sunrise. Judy, please go get some sleep. You are simply worn out and you know we dock at Havre this afternoon!" suggests Mother. "A good shower (with salt water) and a few hours' sleep will make you feel wonderful. We're having breakfast at 9!"

Tomorrow—Havre.

Justice Speeds Death Verdict For Murderer

Chicago, Aug. 29 (AP).—Another prompt sentence of death for a police killer, second in a week, was imposed here today on John Scheck.

The young gunman, who killed Officer John G. Sevick a month ago in a courtroom, where he had been arraigned for the slaying of a bank cashier, was sentenced to electrocution by Judge Harry B. Miller.

The jury deliberated only 21 minutes.

Scheck's mother will be tried later on a charge of smuggling him the gun which felled the officer.

Morris Cohen, killer of another policeman, was sentenced to death last week.

A dozen witnesses testified against three other murder defendants—Mrs. Eleanor Jarman, young mother; Lea Minneci and George Dale—for whom the State has also demanded the death penalty for the killing of Gustave Hoeh, aged clothier, in a holdup. Several witnesses testified they saw Dale shoot Hoeh.

Eight of 24 defendants indicted for conspiracy to racketeer on legitimate business appeared in court and heard their cases continued to the September term. Attempts are being made to extradite Attorney Aaron Sapiro, one of the defendants, from New York.

Police were searching for Dr. Peter Swier, who shot his wife four times in their suburban home, set fire to the house and fled. Physicians said Mrs. Swier would recover.

Showers and Fog Check Forest Fire

Portland, Oreg., Aug. 29 (AP).—Gentle showers and a mantle of gray fog rolled in from the ocean today to save the tall forests of northwestern Oregon from further destruction by fire at present.

More than 4,000 fire fighters, encouraged by the respite, drew hasty lines and barriers against further flames, in case the wind changes to dry the moisture.

For 15 days the roaring flames mowed down some of the finest yellow fir in the country. The loss has been counted in millions of dollars in three counties. More than 1,200 square miles, an area equal to Rhode Island, has been burned.

Georgia Triplets Named Franklin, Hugh, Russell

Waves and Ripples of Radio

"Mexico," he said, "is all right."

What he meant was Mexico is swell, great and gracious. Mr. Curtis is a modest man. He didn't say that he'd just returned from Mexico City on behalf of his old friend, Dr. John R. Brinkley, one-time goat gland station operator in Melford, Kans., now big stockholder in a Mexican corporation that operates the Latin XER at Villa Acuna.

He didn't relate (as a lot of them would have) how he's one of radio's most successful counselors at the moment. And he didn't go into detail about the personal angle in Mexico, with the natives doing almost everything but tossing bulls into the streets over his presence.

No sirs, and misses, he's just leaning back with a lot of good things to say about Ambassador Daniels, his corps, hospitality and so on. He doesn't even touch on the stalemated North American Radio Conference gentlemen as they applied themselves to the Mexican conference and Mr. Curtis' client—Station XER.

There are still some Jacks and a few Jills who will take on such roles as Giant Killers. Witness—Three Maids and a Mike bucking Amos and Andy through September 18. That's what makes radio the peculiar enigma it is sometimes (whatter you mean, sometimes). Just one little turn of the fingers and the act's over. No running down the curtain, or hauling out the hook. Just twisting the dial. However, some one has pointed out that also there are no tomatoes and such. But, Three Maids and a Mike need no coaching on killing the big ones. They've definitely got something—that something that if you're listening when they go on, you are likely to keep the dial there, even if Moses and Aaron were fighting with knives, just eight points away.

Elder Solomon Lightfoot Michaux takes his congregation to the muddy waters of the Potomac Sunday evening and WJSV will trail along.

It's a mass baptism, the first time for the Elder via radio. He's done it sans mike on the shores of the James River, near Newport News. With plenty of ballyhoo (and he'll get it if a man we know wants him to get it), about 15,000 should watch the Happy-Am-I Cohorts. How many should hear it? As we've pointed out before, we ask 'em, you answer 'em.

Johnny Marvin, trying to get a passport to Europe, was blocked for a day or so until he could find out where he was born. It seems Johnny first saw things from a covered wagon, and he didn't know what State it was passing through at the time. Maybe that's why he's lonesome.

And while we're whoing—who was the lady radio singer who has offered to do a few solos if that station here ever figures out that Nudist Camp broadcast?

George H. Dern, Secretary of War, is scheduled for a two-minute radio talk from the reviewing stand at the National Firemen's Labor Day parade.

There is something new under the sun. A local mogul is planning a broadcast from a maternity ward at some hospital the night before the old year gives away to the new. He wants to tell about the last baby of 1933 and the first of 1934. (Or are things going to last that long?)

The Lost City Mountaineers have been promised a spot at no less a place than the White House. Representative Randolph, of West Virginia, has done the promising. The Mountaineers, or most of them, are from Lost City, in the Rattlesnake State. Harry Plattner, the bone-beater, hails from Maryland. They still let him play.

Waves.

Evelyn Hayes, who has been the bright moment of more than one program with Herb Gordon's band and also with Georges Carpentier, is nursing a unique idea for a commercial that she won't even tell herself out loud.

It's really true that one of the Funnyboners is getting ready to have a special bed made to take on tour. He's 6 feet something or other.

Radio big shots seldom beef about billing when playing picture houses. This is not a suggestion.

After Al Jolson's recent "Star-Spangled Banner" singing, get prepared for a rendition of the "Stars and Stripes Forever," with Jack Dalton of the Marines coming in on horseback for the finale.

We met a man who said he turned up his nose at Eddie Cantor's plugging of Sam Goldwyn, his movie boss, over the NRA program Sunday night. That's good reason to print the one about the man who said he held his nose at the same thing.

Sidney Skolsky, Gotham scribe who knows a deal more about radio than some of us, is packing bags for a visit to Washington.

Want a glimpse of some of the wives of the Washington pennant packers? Then pay a visit to the sports department of The Post on any of these afternoons when Tony Atchison is "radioing" the hookslides and hits from the Griffs' opponents' ballyards. They have front row seats.

Molasses 'n' January think NRA means no Republicans Allowed.

"Three of America's humorists—Milt Gross, Billy DeBeck and Rube Gildberg—will give their reactions to A Century of Progress over Columbia tonight," says a publicity blurb. That's just how far this thing has gone.

It's a pity some local doesn't put Jimmy Lake and the Firemen's midnight show Sunday on the air. Word hath it that headliners from all points will merge talents.

Headline.—"Fred Allen to Tell All About Movie Moguls." Come on, Fred, we print a lot of that stuff, but after all——

We thank you, Jimmie Harbison! You are fan mail No. 1, and, boy, it helps.

Representative Sol Bloom is back in town after marching up the gangplank to the S. S. Monarch of Bermuda with a group of officials from the Improved Order of Redmen and sticking a bonnet on the Voice of Experience. There's always some way to end a column.

Eight Experts Sent to Battle Sleep Malady

Cumming Issues Orders After Inspection in St. Louis.

St. Louis, Aug. 29 (AP).—The Government today pitted its scientific battalions against "sleeping sickness" as eight additional Federal experts were ordered to St. Louis by Surg. Gen. Hugh S. Cumming, of the U. S. Public Health Service.

The Surgeon General came to St. Louis today to survey the situation.

The malady took three more victims, sending the total to 44. Dr. Cumming ordered Dr. W. T. Harrison, laboratory expert, to come here from Washington, and Dr. Cornelius B. Philip, who has been studying Rocky Mountain spotted fever in Montana, to report here as soon as possible.

Dr. George W. McCoy, director of the National Institute of Health at Washington, will confer here tomorrow with three public health service experts, Dr. J. P. Leake, Dr. Charles Armstrong, pathologist, and Dr. L. L. Williams, jr., specializing in mosquito control.

"We have high hopes that we may find the cause of encephalitis and a cure for it in our work here," the Surgeon General said. "This is a splendid opportunity to make a most comprehensive study and we intend to make the most of it. St. Louis will have advantage of every resource the Government has."

Slain Doctor's Widow Jailed

No Charges Yet Filed in Death by Assassination in Spokane.

Spokane, Wash., Aug. 29 (AP).—An attractive young woman friend of the late Dr. James I. Gaines was questioned by police today while the doctor's young widow remained in jail after telling her version of the slaying two weeks ago of the wealthy sportsman and drugless practitioner.

Mrs. Harriette Andrew, 26, the first person questioned in the case, recalled to police headquarters, repeated her earlier story, saying Gaines visited her shortly before midnight on August 14, leaving at 1:30 a. m. A few minutes later he was shot by an assailant who hid in shrubbery at his home.

Mrs. Andrew was not detained. Her interrogators declined to say whether she had helped solve the mystery.

Victims, Suspected Drug Traffickers, Are Shot in Crowded Cafe.

Hollywood, Calif., Aug. 29 (AP).—Three gangsters who provided Hollywood with its first real life close-up of death-dealing gunmen were sought today for the killing of two suspected traffickers in narcotics.

Detectives were convinced the assassinations grew out of a fight involving the gang of the late Morrie Moll, which had been suspected of committing robberies and murders here.

Walking casually into the Bell Napoli Cafe, a fashionable restaurant, last night, the trio terrorized diners by firing nine bullets into the bodies of Harry Mackley, of New York, and Frank Keller, of St. Louis, as they sat before steaming plates of spaghetti.

Several women fainted and men dashed for exits, but the gangsters covered their retreat with their revolvers. They jumped into an automobile in which a woman and another man were sitting, sped half a block and disappeared.

A pedestrian found a sawed-off shotgun and three automatic pistols in a storm drain about a mile from the scene. Ballistics experts began an examination of the firearms.

Police records disclosed that Mackley once was a suspect with Moll in the holdup of David Antink, a money messenger, here in 1924. Subsequently Antink identified Moll and shortly after the messenger was trapped at his home and slain.

C. & O. Boosts Dividend Rate To 70 Cents

58 Railroads Earn 49 Millions, an Increase of 425 Per Cent.

Cleveland, Aug. 29 (AP).—The board of directors of Chesapeake & Ohio Railway, meeting here today, declared a quarterly dividend of 70 cents per share for the third quarter, against the former basis of 62½ cents. The dividend is payable October 2, to stock of record September 11.

The semiannual dividend of $3.25 also was declared on preferred stock, payable January 1, to stock or record December 8.

The Chesapeake Corporation directors declared the regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents a share on the common stock, payable October 2 to stock of record September 11.

New York, Aug. 29 (AP).—Net operating income of 58 railroads in July totaled $49,454,000, an increase of 424.8 per cent over the $9,423,000 reported for July, 1932. The total was also a gain of 6.1 per cent over June's $46,602,000.

Gross revenues aggregated $229,817,000 against $188,396,000 a year ago, an increase of 22 per cent, and $220,539,000 in June, a gain of 4.2 per cent.

July net operating income of roads whose reports became available today included that of New York Central, with $4,529,619, against a deficit of $161,870 in July, 1932.

Operating revenues of New York State Electric & Gas Corporation for the 12 months ended June 30 amounted to $12,845,049, as compared with $13,281,703 for the same period of last year, a decline of 3.3 per cent.

The annual report of the corporation for the fiscal year 1932 showed a drop of but 1.3 per cent in total operating revenues, which indicates the decreasing trend of earnings. Sales of electricity for commercial and industrial purposes were 5 per cent less than a year ago, while the combined sales of gas and electricity for domestic uses were down about 1 per cent. This trend was in line with that recently indicated.

Total operating expenses of $8,765,358 against $8,786,766 are noted for the June 30 year. Of the items comprising the total, operating expenses were slightly lower at $6,380,578; maintenance jumped from $792,872 to $1,039,890, largely on account of extraordinary repairs necessary because of storm damage. Taxes were $1,070,801 against $983,452. Increases aggregating $264,000 were noted in provision for uncollectibles, advisory services and corporate expenses, thereby accounting for the comparatively slight decrease in operating expenses.

Following deductions for interest on debt and amortization of debt discount and expense, net income remained of $2,459,243 against $2,783,187.

South Bay Consolidated Water Co., Inc., a unit of Federal Water Service Corporation, reports gross revenues of $495,772 for the year ended July 31, 1933, as compared with $529,566 for the preceding 12 months. Operating expenses, maintenance and taxes, other than Federal income tax, totaled $234,616, as against $223,642. Gross corporate income amounted to $261,156, which compares with $305,924 for the year ended July 31, 1932.

Trade Trends.

(Associated Press.)

Gasoline—The motor fuel situation is "tightening," according to trade interests. While demand is only fair, refiners and other sellers show increasing reluctance to accept new business at the present scale of prices, it is said.

Flour—Inquiries in the market are less numerous than they were in the closing days of last week, some mill agents report. Prices have been lowered in adjustment to the recent decline in the wheat market.

Carpet wools—Imports at Philadelphia last week totaled 1,822,211 pounds, compared with 3,664,574 in the preceding week.

Tin plate—Mill operations are said to be holding at an average of close to 95 per cent of capacity. In view of codification the trade is inclined to look for an advance in prices for shipments during the first half of next year. The present quotation is $4.25 per box of 100 pounds.

Wool goods—Trade quarters report that mills are showing no disposition to cut prices in spite of a slowing rate of operations.

U. S. Bond List Holds Firm in Uneasy Sales

Carriers Move Cautiously Despite Earnings' Rise; Sales, $10,399,000.

New York, Aug. 29 (AP).—While United States Government securities maintained a fairly firm tone in today's rather listless bond market, other loan groups were irregular throughout.

The turnover was only slightly larger than yesterday, with sales totaling $10,399,000, par value. The average for 60 domestic corporate issues was off 3-10 of a point.

The Government section apparently continued to reflect the expansion of open market purchases by the Federal Reserve System. The new Treasury 3¼s were the most active with a gain of 2-32 of a point at 101.5, a new closing high.

Rail liens moved rather cautiously, as a whole, notwithstanding the cheerful July net earnings reports of the principal carriers which showed a gain of 424.8 per cent over the figures of the same month last year. Unimportant gains and losses in the transportation category were the rule, although Western Pacific 1st 5s, rallied 4 points on hopes that the company would be able to raise sufficient funds to meet September 1 interest payments.

The utilities and industrials were highly mixed. American Metal 5½s were up a point, but Armour & Co. 5½s lost 2. Goodrich 6s sagged 1 and Houston Oil 5½s were a point higher. Republic Steel 5s were up 4⅞ on a few transactions and Remington Arms 6s gained 1. Loans of International Telephone, Postal Telegraph and Western Union eased.

British 5½s were heavily traded for a gain of 1¼ points. Issues of Dutch East Indies and France were firm. Some of the Argentines, Australians and Austrians were off 1 to around 4.

Late Stock Recoveries Slash Earlier Declines

Gold Issues, Engendering Rallies, Prove Brightest Spots, With Gains Up 16 Points; Rails Finish Higher; Turnover, 3,117,950 Shares.

The break in corn and wheat was the cue for rather lively offerings of shares which caught a thinly supported market for many favorites, and at one time losses of 1 to 6 points were general. However, grains firmed moderately from their lows and stocks staged a late recovery when President Roosevelt's gold order became public. Closing changes averaged into a small net loss. Turnover reached 3,117,950 shares.

Wheat's extreme decline was 5 cents a bushel, the limit allowed by current regulations. Liquidation was brisk and, as was the case in stocks, found buyers rather scarce. Perhaps reports that Argentina was still withholding her assent to the recent London agreement had something to do with the break.

Control In U. S. Hands.

The new order effecting gold, Wall street decided, left control of that metal in Government hands. While the new arrangement might be called a restricted market, it does not constitute a "free" market in the sense that one exists in London.

Some bankers saw no inflationary implications in the step and thought the order would result in but small exports of the metal, pointing out that the arts would doubtless absorb a large proportion of the offerings.

Gold shares were the brightest spot in the late recovery by stocks. Homestake led the procession with a rise of 16 points to a record high above 300. Alaska Juneau, Dome, McIntyre and U. S. Smelting also perked up, the last named more than cancelling an early break of some half dozen points.

Losses Reduced to Fractions.

At the finish U. S. Steel, American Telephone, Bethlehem, Westinghouse, Chrysler, General Motors, Case, Harvester and a number of other leaders had cut their losses to fractions or a point, a sizeable inroad into extreme declines. Rails actually finished higher, with Santa Fe and Union Pacific around a point higher. Wet shares were soggy to the close.

The market's slump, prior to the turn, had professional aspects. Rails tried to lead an early advance, but got a lukewarm response and by afternoon the whole list was sliding as buyers temporarily took to the sidelines. Brisk short covering and other speculative purchases appeared when financial news tickers carried the Hyde Park gold announcement.

Business news was rather scarce. American Metal Market, in its survey of the steel industry, said the past week had been unusually dull because consumers were mostly well covered by previous contracts, because seasonal influences were asserting themselves and owing to hesitancy, on the part of buyers who wanted "time to study the code and consider the practices to be followed under it."

Better Tobacco Selling for Less

Inferior Grade Nets More Than in 1932 as North Carolina Sales Start.

Raleigh, N. C., Aug. 29 (AP).—With inferior tobacco bringing more and better grades less than a year ago, the bright leaf tobacco belt opened today to be greeted, at most warehouses, by silent farmers who had hoped for higher opening prices.

Offerings consisted mainly of sand lugs and first primings, with average prices ranging from an estimated $9 to approximately $14 a hundred, depending on the market. Farmers generally were silent but few turned their tags. O. L. Boyette, sales supervisor at Smithfield, said prices were "not as good as he hoped for, but just about what he expected."

Domestic and export companies were buying freely on most markets. In some of the smaller markets, the "independent" or small tobacco manufacturers were particularly active bidders.

A drizzling rain over most of the bright belt section served to cut down the poundage on floors and it was not considered likely that today's breaks would be as large as a year ago.

The Markets at a Glance

	Tuesday.	Monday.
Advances	176	294
Declines	462	326
Unchanged	136	146
Total issues	774	766

Stocks.

Gold stocks were the brightest spot in the day's trading. They were pushed upward by the reaction to President Roosevelt's gold monetary declaration. Homestead led the group with a rise of 16 points, moving up to a record high of more than 300. The gold shares' upturn engendered late rallies in other listings which largely erased earlier losses. Rails finished higher. Sales rose to 3,117,950 shares. The composite price was ¼ point off at the close.

Bonds.

United States Government securities remained steady in a comparatively dull bond market. Other groups were irregular. Rail changes were cautious, despite the 425 per cent increase in earnings during July of this year over the same month in 1932. The turnover jumped to $10,399,000. The average price lost 3-10 of a point.

Curb.

The curb market was subject to recurrent selling waves. A last-hour rally reduced or canceled losses of 1 to 3 points. Gold mining shares spurted on announcement of the President's views on that metal. Trading increased 58,000 shares to 364,000.

Wheat.

All grains sank in a listless day. Wheat lost 5 cents. The United States acreage reduction plan bolstered quotations temporarily. Wheat closed 3⅜@3⅝ lower. September liquidation sales were blamed. September wheat sold at 84⅛; May at 92¼.

Cotton.

Cotton rallied to gain up to 4 points at the close after dropping $1 a bale earlier in the day. The late recovery in stocks aided. December sold at 9.82; October, at 9.63.

Rubber.

Sugar.

Raw sugar was unchanged at 3.60, as also was refined at 4.70.

Coffee.

Silver.

Gold.

Dollar.

The United States dollar lost on foreign exchanges. It stood in New York, with reference to other currencies, $4.56 to the English pound, 5.59 cents to the French franc and 34.01 cents to the German mark.

Foreign Markets.

London—The excitement in the gold share section of the stock exchange today lessened profit-taking and caused some irregularity in prices. Gilt-edged securities were weak on scattered selling, while the recent rise in home rails was halted, awaiting further traffic returns. International issues held generally steady in sympathy with the Wall street market. The market closed steady.

Paris—Trading on the bourse was indecisive, with traders cautiously following the fluctuations of the dollar. However, the tendency was generally steady. Rentes and French industrials were firm. The closing was steady.

Berlin—Prices on the boerse continued cheerful, with trading active. The market averaged one point higher, with some issues rising as much as 4 points. The market closed somewhat irregular.

Metal Market.

New York, Aug. 29 (A.P.).—COPPER—Quiet; electrolytic, spot and future, 9 asked.

TIN—Firmer; spot and nearby, 48.12; future, 46.37.

Baltimore NRA Codes Result in 11,007 Jobs

Baltimore, Aug. 29 (AP).—The Baltimore Association of Commerce announced today that 11,007 employes have been placed on pay rolls here as a result of the President's emergency reemployment campaign.

This figure is in addition to 6,354 employes who were given work during the period from June 1 to July 27, when the reemployment campaign began here.

In addition, the Association of Commerce reported that 4,008 employes have been advanced from part time to full time since the reemployment campaign began.

The first report from the Maryland counties was made today, A. P. Underhill, campaign chairman for Hagerstown, reporting that a labor survey there showed an increase of 366 employes as a result of NRA.

Wall Street Briefs.

New York, Aug. 29 (AP).—Adrian D. Joyce, president of the Glidden Co., says loss for the first half of August aggregated $1,110,674 compared with $771,529 in the same period of this month last year.

Stockholders of National Distillers Products Co., at an adjourned special meeting today, approved the proposal to increase the authorized capital stock to 829,587 shares from 629,587 shares.

Pan-American Petroleum & Transport Co. reports net loss of $611,511 for the quarter ended June 30 compared with loss of $1,245,194 in the corresponding 1932 period.

The Waco Aircraft Co. had a net profit of $55,756, equal to 38 cents a share on the capital stock, for the six months ended June 30, compared with a deficit of $61,213 for the like period last year, C. J. Bruckner, president, announced today.

Standard Statistics Co. says that considering the substantial recent decline in grains and cotton, the relative stability of nonspeculative commodities has been encouraging. Action of the latter, it asserts, "during the trying period of readjustment to operations under the NRA provides conclusive evidence of the underlying strength in the industrial situation."

Wall street hears that the leading tobacco companies will advance cigarette wholesale prices soon after Labor Day.

Buying Power On U. S. Farms Drops Sharply

(Associated Press.)

After mounting steadily month by month since March, farm purchasing power received a sharp setback between July 15 and August 15, the opening of harvest seasons for many crops.

The Bureau of Agricultural Economics reported yesterday that purchasing power of farmers as of August 15 was 64 per cent of the average for the prewar period, 1909 to 1914. In June it was 62 per cent, then moved up steadily to 71 per cent of prewar on July 15.

There were two reasons. Prices of products farmers sell fell, while the cost of materials they most commonly buy went up, the latter reaching a point on August 15 where they averaged 12 per cent over prewar prices.

Materials' Price Increases.

Using the figures 100 to represent prewar prices, the bureau's index showed farm prices on August 15 as 72, compared with 76 on July 15 and 64 on June 15. The price of materials farmers buy was 103 June 15, or 3 points over prewar. This moved to 107 on July 15 and reached 112 on August 15.

For the major types of farm products the index numbers for midmonth in June, July and August were:

Product	June 15	July 15	Aug 15
Grain	63	94	81
Fruits and Vegetables	74	103	120
Meat animals	86	66	63
Dairy products	65	71	72
Chicken and eggs	55	67	67
Cotton and cottonseed	69	84	71
Unclassified	48	51	54

As of mid-August the bureau reckoned the farm price of wheat at 74.7 cents a bushel compared with the prewar average of 88.4; cotton as 8.8 cents a pound compared with 12.4; corn 48.8 cents a bushel compared with 64.2; hogs at $3.79 per hundredweight against $7.24; beef cattle, $3.79 per hundredweight against $5.20, and lambs, $5.26 per hundredweight against $5.90.

Consumer Paying More.

It showed that on the average the dairy farmer is receiving less for his milk, while the consumer is paying more than in prewar times. It listed the average price paid farmers wholesale for milk at $1.39 per hundredweight on August 15 compared with $1.79 during the prewar period.

Meanwhile the retail price of whole milk per quart to consumers was listed as 8.8 cents in mid-August compared with 6.8 cents during the prewar years.

One farm product, which has risen in price in recent months, continued to return farmers more than in the prewar period. This is wool for which the bureau reckoned the mid-August price as 22.5 cents a pound compared with 17.8, the average farm price from 1909 to 1914. Another is potatoes, now averaging $1.31 to the farmer compared with 69.7 cents a bushel during the prewar period.

Curb Gold Mine Shares' Spurt Causes Rally

Other Issues' Losses of 1 to 3 Points Canceled as Sales Total 364,000.

New York, Aug. 29 (AP).—The curb market was subjected to recurrent selling waves today, but pressure abated in the last hour and earlier losses of 1 to 3 points or more were canceled or reduced. The list rallied in the last hour under the leadership of the mining exchange.

Gold mining issues spurted on the President's order removing the embargo on exports of the red metal. Pioneer Gold and Lake Shore Mines advanced more than a point each. Newmont, owners of Copper Company Shares, rose 2 after canceling a 4-point loss.

Utilities finished steady to slightly lower. Alcohol shares were in supply most of the day, but extreme losses of 1 to 4 points were considerably reduced. Oils were under slight pressure, Humble yielding 2 points. Aluminum Co. of America reduced a 4½ point loss to 1½. Dow Chemical and Parker Rust Proof were soft spots.

All Grains Sink In Price During Light Turnover

Wheat Declines 5 Cents in Liquidation Sales as Rally Weakens.

Chicago, Aug. 29 (AP).—Grains ignored generally bullish developments today and liquidation forced all cereals sharply lower in price.

Led by wheat with a decline of 5 cents a bushel, the maximum allowed in one day's trading, the grain market displayed a weak and uncertain tone. Announcement that Secretary of Agriculture Wallace had tentatively ordered a 15 per cent reduction in the United States 1934 wheat acreage imparted some strength to wheat at the outset, but persistent liquidation of September contracts finally led to a sharp break near the close.

Wheat closed weak and 3⅜ to 3⅝ cents below yesterday's finish, corn also weak and 2¼ to 2⅝ down, oats 1@1⅜ off, rye 3@3⅝ lower and provisions at declines ranging from 2 to 35 cents.

Gains Quickly Dissipated.

Initial strength ran wheat prices up around a cent a bushel, but the gains were quickly dissipated. Traders owning contracts calling for wheat to be delivered in September evinced reluctance to accept the wheat and sold persistently all during the session. The market was thin and easily influenced by orders on either side.

Comparatively light selling late in the session by two commission houses found the market vulnerable and prices gave ground swiftly, the execution of stop-loss orders accelerating the decline.

The downward swing was checked only when prices had reached the lowest levels permitted in one day, 82⅝ for September, 86⅜ for December and 90¾ for May. A moderate rally of about 1⅛ cents a bushel lifted prices from the bottom.

Volume Proves Small.

The feeble response to the overnight announcement of a reduction in wheat and strength in the pound sterling was regarded as disappointing and led to some of the liquidation by tired owners. The volume of dealings was small.

September corn was also under pressure of liquidation with the yellow cereal lower from the start. Corn gave ground grudgingly, though, and at the bottom was not quite off the fall 4 cents a bushel permitted. There was no change in the growing-crop situation, although some below-normal temperatures were recorded over the corn belt.

Oats, rye and barley moved backward in sympathy with the leaders, although trading was comparatively light.

Provisions eased with hogs and grains.

U. S. Dollar Sags On Foreign Marts

New York, Aug. 29 (AP).—The American dollar lost ground today in foreign exchange markets after showing some resistance to European gold currencies in early transactions.

The British pound sterling jumped more than 5 cents at one time, lost most of this, then rallied for a net advance of 4½ cents at $4.56 for cables. Other gainers included French francs, up .02 of a cent at 5.59 cents; Dutch guilders, up .15 of a cent at 57½ cents; Swiss francs, up .03 of a cent at 27.55 cents, and Belgian belgas, up .07 of a cent at 19.92 cents. German marks, the Scandinavians, Canadian dollars and Japanese yen firmed 1-10 to ¼ of a cent.

While the dollar sagged in final dealings, following issuance of administrative orders for a restricted "free" gold market in the United States, banking circles were of the opinion that the removal of the gold export ban would ultimately have little effect on the foreign exchange situation generally.

French francs and other gold funds were moderately lower at one time, due probably to renewed reports that some European nations were considering shelving the gold standard in the near future. These reports, however, had no comfirmation and the various gold exchanges, consequently, rallied later.

Little Stock Speculators' Ban In London Held Stability Help

London, Aug. 29 (AP).—You can't speculate on a shoestring in the London Stock Exchange, and London financial authorities believe this is probably the chief factor in the greater stability of prices, as compared with New York.

The boosting of marginal requirements in New York—to 50 per cent in the case of small accounts—it is pointed out, should also have a steadying effect in that market, but in London the little fellow finds it almost impossible to get any credit with which to speculate.

In the first place, transactions in London are settled twice a month, instead of daily as in New York, and with two weeks in which traders can buy and sell before settlement need be made, greater conservatism is called for, inasmuch as it would obviously be easier to get over extended under such an arrangement than one in which settlement is always due the next day.

No Marginal Trading

London has no such thing as marginal trading. New York knows it, although a trader can arrange to be carried over from one settlement day to the next by his broker, if he has proper credit standing, and does not want to pay up for the shares he has purchased.

For a client of established standing and excellent credit this is a very simple operation. His broker will probably ask for no percentage margin at all. When settlement day comes the broker will ask him to pay the difference between the current price of the stock and price at which the purchase was made, if it has gone down, and will charge him interest on money which the broker must borrow to take up the shares and hold until such time as the client may wish to sell.

Credit Balance Often Needed.

Some brokers may demand that the client have a certain credit balance with them as a measure of protection, but this will not necessarily be required of an old customer who is known to be sound. More conservative brokers, rather than be put in the position of taking business from a trader from whom they might feel that a 50 per cent margin was necessary, would prefer not do the business.

Furniture Plants Speed Production

Factories at Martinsville Increase Output; Order 45-Hour Week.

Martinsville, Va., Aug. 29 (Spl.). Forced by demands of increased business, several local furniture factories have moved up the schedule of working hours from 40 to 45 hours per week for all employes.

This plan of increased hours has been adopted in lieu of putting on an extra shift, owing to the uncertainty of the markets. When new prices are established for furniture products, the necessary adjustments will be made, it is expected. This change does not affect the office force and department heads, as they were never subject to the 40 hours per week limit, it was said.

Martinsville and Henry County furniture industries are furnishing employment to more than 3,000 men.

Supply of U. S. Cotton Promises to Be Smaller

New York, Aug. 29 (AP).—Indicated world supply of cotton of all growths this season is 39,407,000 bales, which would compare with 40,066,000 bales last season, the New York Cotton Exchange service reported today.

"The indicated supply of American cotton, says the service, "promises to be smaller this season than last season, but the supply of foreign cottons is expected to be larger. The supply of American for this season is put at 24,253,000 bales against 26,184,000 last year. The supply of foreign is estimated at 15,154,000 against 14,482,000 last season.

Cotton Rallies To Rise After Heavy Losses

$1-a-Bale Break Changed to Gains of 4 Points as Dec. Brings 9.82.

New York, Aug. 29 (AP).—After ruling quiet and steady in the early trading, cotton broke more than $1 a bale under liquidation but recovered the loss in the later trading on buying influenced by the late rallies in wheat and stocks and a bullish interpretation of President Roosevelt's order with respect to the gold market.

December, after selling off from 9.84 to 9.57 closed at 9.82 with the general market ending very steady net 1 point lower to 4 points higher.

After a narrow opening there was some buying on the relatively steady showing of Liverpool. This was supplied by Southern selling. Offerings increased later owing to the weakness of grain and stock markets.

Rally in Late Trading.

Active months sold about 24 to 27 points net lower under the pressure, but offerings tapered off at the decline, and the market rallied in the late trading on covering or rebuying coupled with a moderate demand from the trade and scattering sources. Active months sold back to about the best levels of the day and the close was within a point or two of the top.

A private crop report placed the yield at 12,608,000 bales as of August 25, compared with the official August 1 crop indication of 12,314,000 bales. It made August 25 condition 68.8 compared with 72.5 at the same time last month. It was pointed out that the deterioration indicated by this report was less than usual for August.

Liverpool cables reported the early market there featureless with prices steady on some local support and said the cotton goods market at Manchester was quiet with buyers expecting lower prices.

Seasonal Drop Pushes Output Of Steel Down

Cleveland, Aug. 29 (Spl.).—Steel consumption continues to decline, a further reduction of 3 points in the steel works' rate to 48 per cent accurately gauging the downward trend during the past week, states the magazine Steel.

With seasonal influences operating in practically all consuming fields, the market still lacking the stimulus of higher prices, and the Government's public works program maturing with slowness, it appears this trend will extend into September. Some time in that month the downward swing is expected to collide with a general rise in prices, which steelmakers hope will arrest the decline.

Uncertainties over the NRA's effect on the steel industry are being dissipated. Steelmakers are filing prices which will apply under their code for the remainder of this quarter. It is indicated that on many heavy finished steel products no changes will be made from present official levels, though advances are impending in some of the lighter products.

Mill Specifications Drop.

Mill specifications are diminishing and for some of the leading producers new orders so far in August are only 25 to 50 per cent of the tonnage in the comparable period in July. Meanwhile, stocks are being reduced, another hopeful indication for an early revival in buying. In tin plate, releases already in hand for October insure a continuation of mill operations near 95 per cent.

In heavy finished steel, the outstanding new project of the week is an 800-mile pipe line from the mid-continent field to Chicago, plans being formulated by a group of independent oil producers, which will require 75,000 to 100,000 tons of steel.

Rail makers are confident of a substantial demand by November, and expect the eight months following will be a period of expanding railroad activity. Fruit Growers Express, New York, is in the market for 673 underframes, requiring 3,300 tons of steel.

Projects Are Delayed.

Construction projects requiring thousands of tons of steel in many cities are being held up pending efforts to obtain Federal loans. In some important instances, however, it is announced the projects will proceed eventually regardless of whether loans are obtained.

The first price increase in raw material for immediate effect and application under the code is $1 a ton on pig iron in all Eastern districts, likely to be followed by producers in Southern and other markets. Pig iron and foundry coke shipments are setting a new high record for the year, and though the increase in merchant iron demand in the Ohio-Michigan territory is reflected in the lighting of another Toledo blast furnace, the decline in steel requirements has led to the banking of four Carnegnie stacks.

Alabama Mines Reopened.

Responsive to increased buying, foundry coke is up 50 cents a ton in some districts. Scrap is quieter, and at Pittsburgh prices are easier. Republic Steel Corporation is reopening some of its Alabama iron ore mines idle seven years.

Iron and steel exports for July dropped 14,270 gross tons, to 88,311 tons, while imports increased 18,437 tons, to 52,802 tons. For the seven months this year exports, 615,579 tons, compared with 374,287 tons last year; and imports are 205,283 tons, against 227,491 tons.

The decline in the national steel works average to 48 per cent wipes out all the gain since the second week in June. The rate is down 5 points, to 72 per cent, at Cleveland; 7 points, to 53, at Youngstown; 12, to 41, at Buffalo; 3, to 43, at Pittsburgh; 1½, to 39, in eastern Pennsylvania. In New England it advanced 2 points, to 85.

Steel's iron and steel composite is up 8 cents, to $30.10; finished steel composite holds at $47.50, while the scrap composite is up 4 cents, to $11.58, on an adjustment on compressed scrap at Pittsburgh.

Baltimore Tobacco

Baltimore, Md., Aug. 29 (Spl.).—The Maryland tobacco market has been closed since August 23, and will probably remain closed until September 5, to allow a complete check-up of the approximately 1,200 hogsheads damaged in the warehouses or the serious flood of the past week. The majority of these hogsheads damaged were new shipments from farmers which had not yet been inspected.

All of these damaged hogsheads must be cleaned and repacked. Most of the damage occurred in State Warehouses A and C, the first floors of which were flooded to a depth of from 4 to 24 inches. Damage was also sustained at the Locust Point Inspection Warehouses, the first floors there also being flooded about 21 inches.

Crop prospects—Maryland: Only about 10 per cent of 1933 crop was damaged seriously or ruined by the recent storm, and about 10 per cent partly damaged, but which will probably be harvested.

Fairbanks Planning British Film Venture—New September Plays—Two Previews

Expatriate to Make London a New Hollywood

Despite his emphatic denials in the American press, there is evidence quite as credible that Douglas Fairbanks, sr., not only contemplates British citizenship, but plans to launch extensive film enterprises in London as well.

It is further reported with seeming authenticity in the British press that associated with him on the other side will be his son, Douglas Fairbanks, jr., and a number of other notables of the screen whose major successes have been achieved under the Hollywood aegis.

The Express goes on to say that Douglas Fairbanks, pere, is at the back of the scheme, which, it is estimated, will cost something like a million pounds a year—a sum which to the casual observer seems just a trifle exorbitant even for so pretentious a venture as Mr. Fairbanks is said to have in mind.

The Express, further, makes this flat statement: "He (Douglas Fairbanks) has decided to seek naturalization and settle in this country with his son, Douglas Fairbanks, jr."

To Eclipse Hollywood.

Fairbanks is reported to be convinced—and this seems to be laying it on a bit thick—that the million-a-year organization he is forming, a British United Artists Co., will eclipse Hollywood in two years.

Negotiations, the Express points out, are already being carried forward for the world-famous British screen artists, whose names heretofore have been almost inseparably linked with Hollywood, to return to London to make their films in the future. Among those listed to be invited to join the scheme are such players as Charles Laughton, Leslie Howard, Ronald Colman, Clive Brook and, possibly, Charlie Chaplin.

The program, now tentatively mapped out by Fairbanks and those he is said to have interested, calls for the production of from six to eight films a year. Three are said to be scheduled for immediate production, although none of the three is named.

Each picture, according to the rosy prospectus disguised as a news story on the first page of the Express, will cost in the neighborhood of £100,000 and 90 per cent of it will be expended on British labor.

It is the statistician's further roseate dream that the films will return something like £3,000,000 a year to Britain.

The senior Doug's first British picture, which is said to go into production immediately, will disclose a new angle on the Prince of Lovers, Don Juan. It will be called "Exit Don Juan"—which from the viewpoint of Pickfair, no doubt, seems eminently appropriate.

The two Fairbankses then, and our authority is still the dear old London Express, will play together in a talkie based on the paternal Doug's famous silent picture, "The Mark of Zoro."

What About That Money?

A considerable portion of this coincides with earlier rumors that have been persistently denied; much of the rest of it, to American ears, falls outside the pale of probability, the contractural obligations of several of the artists involved to American producers being what they are.

Such domestic debacles as each of the Fairbanks has recently either precipitated or encountered might very easily give rise to editorial beliefs in London that only time will be able to prove or disprove.

But then, there is the seemingly reliable report that the senior Doug has transferred all of his funds to England, for reasons not specifically disclosed on this side.

So what?

If you happen to see the LeRoys, father and son, Hal, coming out of the stage entrance of Loew's Fox, or the Timbergs, father and son, Herbert, coming out of the ditto of the Earle, do not think that you have the gollywobbles, or something equally as amusing. It will be only a little between-shows visiting on the part of old friends. Hal LeRoy and young Herbert Timberg are close friends and spend a good deal of spare time lounging around each other's dressing rooms, playing cards, checkers, harmonicas, zithers and whatnot. Their dads get along alright, too.

A Busy September.

If all the theatrical productions scheduled for early presentation, laid end to end, should come anywhere near up to expectations, September should be an extremely busy month in the New York theater.

According to the office comptometer, Broadway will see fourteen new plays and musicals in September.

Two major musical attractions are the opening salutes of the new season, as seen from this distance. The first will be Joe Cook's musical melange of New York in the '80s called, "Hold Your Horses," in which Dave Chasen, Inex Courtney, Harriet Hoctor and Ona Munson, recently of the National Theater Players, lead the support; the other is Irving Berlin's satiric story of news of the day, "As Thousands Cheer," with Clifton Webb and Marilyn Miller starred.

Irving Kaye Davis, a somewhat profuse author, will have two openings, "Life Wants Padding," with Fay Bainter and A. E. Matthews in the leading roles, and later in the month, "Blow Out The Stars."

Miss Bankhead Again.

Tallulah Bankhead, returning from her Hollywood vacation, will be the first dramatic star of the new season in Owen Davis' new play, "Jezebel," already celebrated modestly in this space.

Other September premieres—and the month is only two days away, mind you—will include "Murder at the Vanities," with James Rennie, Olga Baclanova and Bela Lugosi; "Crucible," "The Mountain," opening production of the Provincetown Players; "Fit as a Fiddle," by Kenyon Nicholson; the "Ziegfeld Follies of 1933," with Everett Marshall and Jane Froman; "Crisis," a drama with its locale for the most part in a hospital; "Carrots and Peas," an intimate revue, and "Gaily I Sin," starring Helen Menken, who first is to be seen in Panjandrum Stephen E. Cochran's brief preliminary season of guest-star revivals at the National in "Seventh Heaven."

In such manner has the theater died!

Such overwhelming response has been received by the National Theater management to the announcement of the plays and dates of the guest-star series of dramatic revivals to be inaugurated on September 11 by Corinne Griffith in Noel Coward's "Design for Living," and so many inquiries have been received by the dramatic desks of the local press relative to the National's new season, that Manager Stephen E. Cochran announces the opening of the box office today, and an attendant at the switchboard of the theater, to answer inquiries and book reservations. The actual seat sale will not open today at the box office, although mail orders are being received. The National's phone number is National 0501. This box office and switchboard service will be maintained from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m.

Extra! Extra!

Speaking of the West Coast, as we should have been, even if we weren't, the lowdown from a Hollywood "extra," who has served in that capacity over a period of 13 years, should be enough to put the quietus on many an uninformed ambition to take up a screen career.

If the investigators ever should get around to the topic of extra work in the films, they would be amazed, no less, to learn that there are fewer than 200 men and women who work regularly in the extra ranks. There are the Class A dress extras who maintain such excellent wardrobes that casting directors prefer to call them. "Regular work," even to these people, means a three-day week average, at $15 per day.

The professional life of an extra, it is revealed, is comparatively short. He usually gets discouraged after a year and, so says the veteran, seldom stays in business longer than two years. This old-timer was able to recall no more than 50 men and an equal number of women who have been making a satisfactory living "in the army" for 10 years or more.

Here again, by reading between the lines, one might cull an impression that this 13-year extra regretted having given up the oil business in Waco, Tex., in 1920!

"The Greater Show Season" has got off to so overwhelming a start at RKO-Keith's that there is every indication that the five-week schedule of super-releases will be knocked out of kilter at its very outset by a forced extension of the run of "Morning Glory," starring Katharine Hepburn, supported by Douglas Fairbanks, jr., Adolph Menjou and C. Aubrey Smith. The second bill of the season, however things may go with "Morning Glory," will be "One Man's Journey," starring Lionel Barrymore, to be followed by United Artists' picturization of the Noel Coward musical, "Bitter Sweet," and, later, by Columbia's "Lady For a Day," adapted from Damon Runyon's "Madame le Guimpe," which, it has been definitely determined, will not be road-showed in Washington.

A Critics' Field Day.

City Manager Carter Barron of the Loew interests in the Capital gave a preview field day for the dramatic desks yesterday in the private projection room of the Fox Film Exchange by running off both Jesse L. Lasky's production of "The Power and the Glory" and "Dr. Bull," two Fox features of imminence on the loewcal screens.

These films, if the suggestion may be permitted despite its close resemblance to looking a gift horse in the mouth, were unwound in the wrong order.

"The Power and the Glory," a drama of considerable weight and a distinctly novel form of screen treatment, was unreeled first and by its superior pith caused Master Will Rogers' "Dr. Bull" to seem a little feeble in comparison. Taken in broken doses, however, with the right one first, both of these pictures should prove of substantial box-office worth.

"The Power and the Glory" is, first of all, notable for the impressive "come-back" it permits Colleen Moore to make in a role that is reminiscent of her youth-and-old-age performance in the silent version of Edna Ferber's "So Big."

The little actress, who has matured appreciably since she set frenzied box-office records as star of Warner Fabian's flamboyant "Flaming Youth," does a fine piece of work as the young school teacher who makes a financial giant of an illiterate track-walker, only to be driven to suicide by his later goings on. If she had survived a little longer, she would have seen her husband also a suicide, goaded to self-destruction by his second wife's intrigue with his own son.

New Narrative Form.

But it is no purpose of this column to review "The Power and the Glory" ahead of its proper time and place.

It may, with propriety, be said, nevertheless, that in this picture Mr. Lasky has made some new and heretofore untried experiments with the use of both voice and the familiar camera cut-back in the telling of his story. The result is an odd, but not confusing, disarrangement of chronology that lends an especial and peculiar flavor to the relation of a story which in itself is neither new nor dramatically overpowering, but which, now and again, takes on almost the character of a radio broadcast. More of this later.

A slight annoyance at Master Rogers' "Dr. Bull" no doubt resulted in the case of this typewriter from a recent reading of James Gould Cozzens' novel of "The Last Adam," from which it was not too skillfully adapted.

The movement, motivation, "moral" and intent of the book are almost wholly lacking from the screen play. There is nothing of the "last Adam" about the character of Dr. George Bull as Mr. Rogers plays him. He is entirely Will Rogers.

Impossible to Picturize.

It is admitted, of course, that Mr. Cozzens wrote himself a novel that could only be literally translated into terms of celluloid over Will H. Hays' dead body.

It is a fiction written in that utter frankness and unrestrained devotion to what some term an admirable "realism" that characterized, say, Ernest Hemingway's "A Farewell to Arms."

It is packed with language of a sort that gets its users socked in the mouth and kicked out of the company of polite people; its characters are often involved in intrigues and mesalliances that are not countenanced by the better usages, and its whole tenor is of the eventual triumph of rugged vigor over mere social amenities.

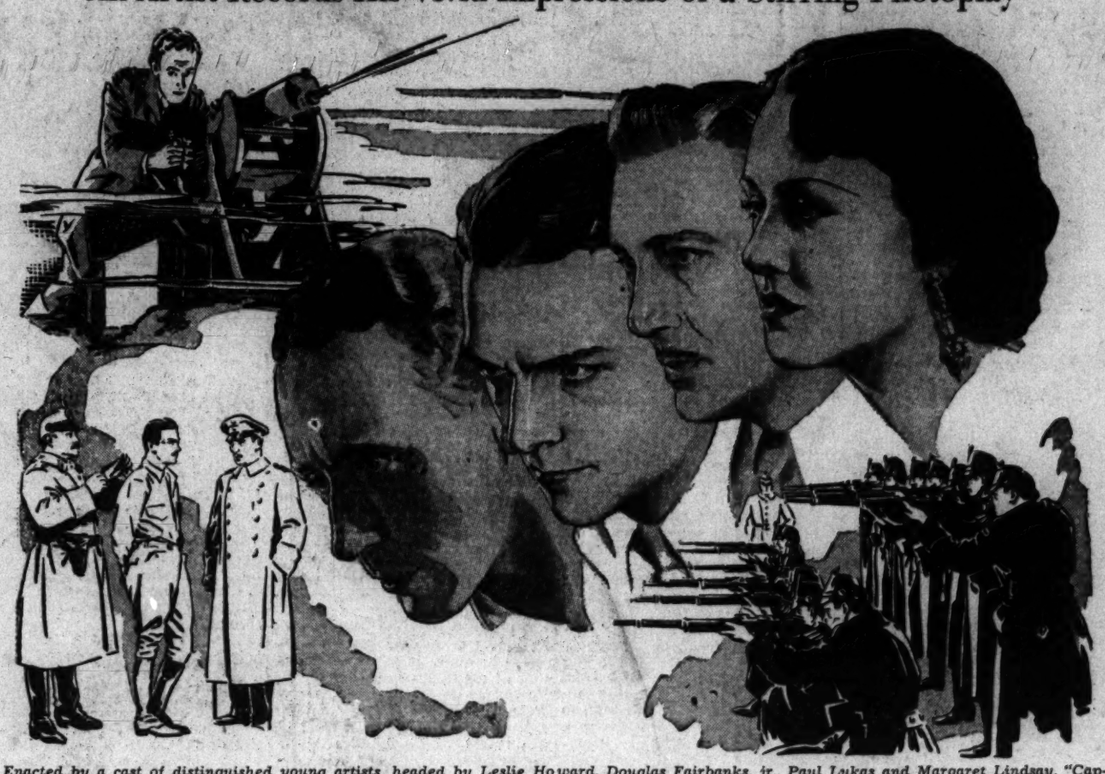
As it has been converted to the amusing uses of the screen's foremost cowboy-comedian, "The Last Adam" becomes a homely and innocuous comedy-drama that could not have been given a better name than "Dr. Bull."

Which we trust will not prove to have been a bum steer!

Genevieve Tobin to Wed Los Angeles Socialite

Santa Barbara, Calif., Aug. 29 (AP). Announcement of the engagement of Genevieve Tobin to Felise Chappellet, member of a prominent Los Angeles family, will be made soon, Mrs. G. H. Tobin, mother of the film actress, said today. Mrs. Tobin and her daughter are visiting here.

An Artist Records His Vivid Impressions of a Stirring Photoplay



Enacted by a cast of distinguished young artists, headed by Leslie Howard, Douglas Fairbanks, jr., Paul Lukas and Margaret Lindsay, "Captured," the first of Mr. Howard's screen plays for the Warner Brothers, bids fair to take its place among the most discussed releases of the season. The locale of the picture is a German prison camp during the great war, and its action moves with exciting speed. It is the feature of the current screen bill at the Earle Theater.

Espionage Charged To French Engineer

Strasbourg, France, Aug. 29 (AP). A young French engineer, Roger Jacques, employed on fortifications in Lorraine, was arrested today charged with espionage.

Police reported that they found five detailed plans of an important section of the works which were inspected over the week-end by Premier Edouard Daladier. The authorities alleged that the engineer intended to turn the plans over to a German woman agent at Saarbruecken, in the Saar territory.

Pollard Signs Beer Measure

Brew Legal on Labor Day; Repeal Election Also Approved.

Richmond, Va., Aug. 29 (AP).—Virginia will have legal beer on Labor Day and will vote on State prohibiton repeal October 3.

Gov. Pollard signed the beer legalization bill tonight, two hours after it had been placed on his desk. Then he signed the Staples-Eggleston bill giving the electorate a choice on October 3 between retention of State prohibition or a liquor control system.

The bill, which becomes a law as the governor's signature was affixed, marked the completion of the second objective of the extraordinary session of the Virginia General Assembly. The first was the setting up of machinery for a referendum on the eighteenth amendment to be held October 3.

The beer bill was signed tonight after adoption of a conference committee report by both Houses late today. The presiding officers in the respective Houses had signed the bill in a night session.

Compromise on Tax.

The excise tax schedule, adopted was a compromise—$2.75 per barrel and 1 cent per bottle. The House had adopted a schedule of $3.10 per barrel and 1 cent per bottle, as recommended by the governor, but the senators lowered this to $1.50 per barrel and one-half cent per bottle.

The retail local license tax maximums, adopted by the Senate, were rejected, and a compromise was adopted on this also. The local license maximums as the bill passed were: City, first class, $50; city, second class, $25; counties and towns, $10.

The license in an incorporated town would cost the retailer $20 in event both town and county imposed licenses.

Senate Votes Unanimously.

The conference committee, after three lengthy sessions, reported late this afternoon at recessed meetings of the two houses. The Senate acted immediately, adopting the report, 32 to 4.

The Senate action was announced amid applause in the House, which shortly afterward adopted the conference report without a dissenting vote, 94 to 0.

Half Million Tonight to See Hitler's National Convention

Nurenberg, Germany, Aug. 29 (AP). All roads converged today upon this ancient free city where Adolf Hitler's National Socialist Labor party tomorrow night opens its biennial national convention, lasting five days.

To house the brown-shirted storm troopers, of whom 350,000 will file by their leader next Sunday, 75 big tents have been erected outside the city.

On the outskirts of a neraby forest 14 groups of tents for 60,000 Hitler youths have been pitched. Ten thousand storm troopers will be housed about the municipal slaughter house.

Hitler himself has declined to live in an ancient castle; he will bivouac with his troops.

The march will take four hours.

Bleachers have been erected on a meadow for 50,000 spectators and on another meadow for 35,000.

To handle the crowds of 500,000 spectators, 340 special trains have been pressed into service.

New York Central Shops Will Add Workmen

New York, Aug. 29 (AP).—The New York Central Railroad announced tonight that it plans to increase its repair shops personnel next month to 8,213, as contrasted with 7,825 on the pay roll at present. Up to August 5 the railroad said it had 19,341 employes in all departments since June 1.

Court Support Bolsters Farm Surplus Action

(Associated Press.)

Its power bolstered by a ruling yesterday in the District of Columbia Supreme Court upholding the constitutionality of the agricultural adjustment act, the Agriculture Department stepped ahead with formulation of new milk trade agreements.

A further test of the validity of the law was promised, however, attorneys for the Chicago milk dealers who brought the suit serving notice of appeal and asserting they would take it to the supreme court if necessary.

The dismissal by Justice Daniel W. O'Donoghue of the suits for injunction gave farm administrators a free hand to revoke the licenses of the so-called wayside milk dealers.

A Nation in Peril.

O'Donoghue said, "The court finds that a national emergency exists and that the welfare of the people and the very existence of the Government itself are in peril.

"The day has passed when absolute vested rights in contract or property are to be regarded as sacrosanct or above the law.

"Neither the necessities of life nor commodities affected with a public interest can any longer be left to ruthless competition or selfish greed for their production or distribution."

New Pact Approved.

Secretary Wallace approved a milk trade agreement for St. Paul and Minneapolis, affecting producers in Minnesota and western Wisconsin.

Wallace asked that consumers "who are skeptical about any of the details of this emergency measure will give due thought to its necessity and the idea of giving it a chance to demonstrate what it can do for producers before they take any hasty action or draw any unwarranted conclusions."

NRA's Protection Of Buyer Defended

Recovery Counsel Replies to Charge of Labor Partiality.

(Associated Press.)

Critics who contend the Recovery Administration is neglecting consumers were denounced last night by Donald R. Richberg, counsel of the NRA.

"The consumers of the Nation are primarily the workers and their families," Richberg said. "The interests of all the American people are being promoted by the NRA.

"Those who spitefully gossip or solemnly proclaim that the Recovery Administration is 'taking care of labor' and 'neglecting the general public' are exhibiting either an ignorance, for which there is little excuse, or a desire to deceive and misrepresent the facts, for which there is no excuse."

Richberg pointed out that the agricultural adjustment act and special railroad legislation had been provided and said the recovery act was designed to take care of 25,000,000 workers who support 60,000,000 others.

Mexican Laborers Seek Help of NRA

Claim Japanese Growers Sweat Employes on West Coast.

Los Angeles, Aug. 29 (AP).—Three representatives of 7,500 Mexican workers in southern California truck gardens today filed with the State NRA Recovery Board an appeal to end what they described as the exploitation of labor by Japanese employers.

They charged that 7,500 men, women and children engaged in berry picking, truck gardening and fruit raising are being paid 6 to 15 cents an hour.

They demand a hearing to set minimum and maximum hours and abolition of child labor. The Central Japanese Association members, Marcus said, controls about 85 per cent of the truck gardening and fruit raising industry in Los Angeles and Orange Counties.

Drive Against Jews Opened in Hesse

Berlin, Aug. 29 (AP).—A large number of Jews were arrested in Worms today and taken to a concentration camp.

Police explained that this was a defensive measure because Jewry recently had been conducting itself in "a provocative manner against the state and its institutions."

The Hessian police president warned that Jews were beginning to neglect the reserve due from them and that impudent utterances against Nazis, attempts to approach German girls and like action had caused justifiable anger among the populace.

Lindberghs Shun Woman Clairvoyant

German, Avoided, Declares She Knows Heir, Not Killed, Is Secreted.

Copenhagen, Denmark, Aug. 29 (AP).—A German woman clairvoyant vainly sought to confer with Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, American fliers, at their hotel here today, insisting she knew their baby was not killed when kidnaped last year.

She asserted she was able to tell where he was being held alive. The Lindberghs refused to see her.

Pollard Urges Virginia Bank Law Revisions

Facilitation of Mergers and Liquidation Plan Suggested.

Richmond, Va., Aug. 29 (AP). While the General Assembly today was marking time as the beer bill conference committee worked over its difficulties, the governor sent messages to both houses. These invited legislation to permit voluntary liquidation of banks, and opening the way for State banks to take stock in the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation; to facilitate the merger of banks, and to change the route of Highway 236 in Arlington County to conform to Federal boulevard plans in northern Virginia.

Another message allowed introduction of a bill to permit four counties which voted themselves outside the Byrd road law, setting up a secondary highway system, to come within the provisions under terms equal to those already in the system.

The bill was introduced by Delegate Hugh Reid, of Arlington; C. M. Waldrop, of Amelia, and Charles E. Ford, of Newport News. The counties are Nottoway, Arlington, Warwick and Henrico.

WEDNESDAY AUGUST 30, 1933 Sports

Nats Trim Tribe, 2-1, in 1st, Drop Finale, 7-2, Pearson Giving 2 Hits

This Morning

With Shirley L. Povich.

Cleveland, Ohio, Aug. 29.

THIS guy Monty Pearson, who dealt 'em off the arm to the Nats this afternoon so cleverly that Washington had only two hits to show for its efforts in the second game, is by way of being the rookie sensation of 1933.

He joined the Indians seven weeks ago, fresh from Toledo, a Cleveland farm, where they said he was only a fair pitcher and warned Walter Johnson that he was wild. Well, he has won eight games in those seven weeks since he joined the Indians, and I have it straight from Johnson that he's the best young pitcher to come into the big leagues in half a dozen seasons.

Better than Monte Weaver, said Johnson, and the Big Train is the man who brought Weaver up to the big leagues late in 1931 and watched him become the rookie sensation of 1932.

Lost to Crowder Here.

Washington fans got a look at young Pearson when he attempted his first starting role in Griffith Stadium and lost a 3-2 decision to Alvin Crowder one Sunday when it should have been a 2-0 win for the rookie. Two errors in the first inning by Indians kicked the game out from under him and made all of Washington's three runs possible. He shut the Nats out over the rest of the route.

That wildness Toledo warned Johnson about hasn't cropped up in Pearson's pitching in the majors. Today he walked only one man, even under the stress of a bid for a no-hit game and he was ahead on most of the batters with called strikes that broke out of his fast curve with an eccentric dip.

Even when there was a chance to lose his no-hit game, with a three-and-two count on Fred Schulte in the seventh inning, Pearson didn't shirk the issue by walking Schulte. He had to lay the next pitch in there and he did. Schulte popped up.

Nice Change of Pace.

For a young fellow, Pearson showed a nice change of pace this afternoon, mixing his fast curve with a slow ball and a half-speed pitch that had the league's leading hitting club popping up, grounding out and striking out.

For the most part, Pearson was keeping the ball around the hitters' knees and getting away with it. Those six strikeouts are testimony that he had his stuff with him.

The worst beating he has taken this year, according to Johnson, is a 4-2 defeat by the Browns. In his other defeats, the Indians simply haven't gone out and gotten any runs for him. He's a finished pitcher, declares the Big Train, who ought to know whereof he speaks, when he speaks of pitching.

Runs, Hits and Errors.

Joe Cronin is still in the midst of the most terrific hitting slump of his entire big league career that started in 1928. . . . Today he was again hitless in eight times at bat. . . . He has made exactly three hits in his last 26 trips to the plate. . . . Dave Harris played first base in the ninth inning of the second game and received no chances, as good luck would have it. . . . Cronin showed no sentiment for Pearson when he sent Bolton in to pinch hit for Berg in the eighth inning. . . . There's no sense in cheapening a no-hit game by not trying to get a hit, said Joe. . . . But the scorer had already cheapened Pearson's bid for a no-hitter when he called Cronin's pop fly in the fourth an error by Second Baseman Hale, who didn't even get his hands on the ball after a run into the next county. . . . The Nats entrained for Washington and an off day.

Georgetown's Girls Win Post Cup

Liegus Sisters Are Stars; 2,000 Boys Compete in Games Today.

GEORGETOWN PLAYGROUND annexed its third consecutive victory and The Washington Post Trophy in the Department of Playgrounds tenth annual track and field meet for girls yesterday. The victors scored 32½ points, leading Hayes, runner-up, by 12½. A record-breaking number of 29 playground teams figured in the point scoring.

It was by far the most colorful meet ever held for girls in Washington. From the opening ceremony, a parade of the 1,800 girls that took part, to the closing event, the 100-pound class shuttle relay in which 24 teams raced down the green Central High School gridiron, the day was a riot of color and enthusiasm.

Miss Maude N. Parker, director of girls and women's activities, conducted the meet and so planned it that each of the 62 teams competing wore varied colored uniforms. As the 1,800 lassies gathered in the stands before the parade it resembled a richly and well arranged flower garden.

Bladen Sets Record.

Despite the fact that Miss Parker scheduled the day as an occasion when her young charges would appear to demonstrate the improvement made by them during the summer months in physical development, with no idea of individual stardom, Zella Bladen, of Virginia Avenue, broke all previous records when she jumped 4 feet 5½ inches in the 100-pound class high jump.

The Liegus sisters, of Georgetown, did the unusual family act of taking first and second places in the unlimited 60-yard dash. Anna was first by a few inches ahead of her sister, Mary. Anna also took a second place in the basket ball throw for distance, which made the Liegus family account for 11 points, nearly the margin of victory.

After the parade Miss Sibyl Baker, supervisor of playgrounds, and Miss Parker awarded tennis trophies to girls who had won victories in double and single tournaments.

Boys' Meet Today.

Today the title meet for boys will be held at Central Stadium, starting at 10 o'clock. The National Training School Band will lead a gigantic parade around the track. Playground officials estimate that more than 2,000 youngsters will be on hand.

The new playground oath will be

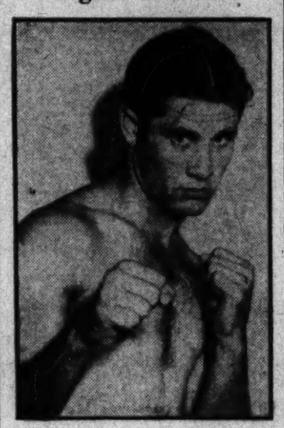
Fights Godwin



JOE KNIGHT, who battles his rival tonight at the Twin City Arena for the southern light-heavyweight crown.

Ada Mackenzie Beaten at Exmoor

EXMOOR COUNTRY CLUB, Highland Park, Ill., Aug. 29 (AP). Canada's lone threat fell in the heavy shelling over the fairways of Exmoor today, but the single hope of England and the brightest stars of America went sailing on with impressive victories in the struggle for the women's national golf championship.

Enid Wilson, England's queen of golf and tournament medalist with her record qualifying 76, marched into the second round, a serious threat to take the title away from this country for the first time in 20 years. Miss Wilson survived by disposing of Mrs. Marion Turpie Lake, of New York, 3 and 2.

Joining the English champion in the second round was the American title holder, Virginia Van Wie, of Chicago, who turned in the most decisive victory of the initial 18-hole round, crushing Elizabeth Dunn, of Indianapolis, 7 and 6.

Helen Hicks, of New York, 1931 champion, who applied the pressure on the last eight holes to defeat Edith Begg, of Cleveland, 4 and 3.

Mrs. Leona Cheney, of San Gabriel, Calif., who tied Lucille Robinson, of Des Moines, as the lowest score of the day by clipping par two shots and submerging Mrs Mildred Green, Culver City, Calif., 6 and 5, for the second most one-sided margin.

Foe Acted Wisely, Helen Jacobs Says

Marblehead, Mass., Aug. 29 (AP). Helen Jacobs, women's national tennis champion, today said Mrs. Helen Wills Moody had acted wisely in defaulting in their championship match at Forest Hills last Saturday when the latter felt her physical condition would not permit her to continue. At the same time, Miss Jacobs expressed a liking for her opponent and denied any personal feud existed between them.

Resting at the summer home of Miss Alona Friend after her arduous court competition, Miss Jacobs said she told Mrs. Moody when the latter decided to default that it was all right.

"I really didn't know before the match that she was sick," said Miss Jacobs. "She was the only judge of her condition, and if she believed she should have defaulted I think she was quite right in doing so. I told her that at the time and said it was all right with me. She might have permanently injured herself. I don't believe Mrs. Moody would have defaulted unless she really was sick."

Knight Faces Godwin at Laurel

Have Met Seven Times; Bob 7-5 Favorite in Battle Tonight.

WITH blood in his eye and thunder in his gloves, Joe Knight squares off with Bob Godwin tonight at Twin City Arena to settle an old and bitter feud between the two. The bout will be over the ten-round route. It headlines a card comprising 30 rounds of fisticuffing.

A record crowd for professional prize fighting in this vicinity is expected to jam the wooden stands of the little country stadium on the Baltimore highway. All reserved seats for the show were sold out Monday, original date for the fight. A brisk sale of unreserved seats is reported but a plentiful supply of tickets will be available for this section tonight at the box office.

Both in Good Shape.

Rain forced a postponement of the fight Monday night, and the entire show was reset for tonight. Godwin went through a light workout at his Herald Harbor camp, while Knight limbered up at the Mohawk Club. The two are in good physical condition and ready for the opening bell.

Knight will come in at close to 168 pounds. Godwin will scale approximately 164. Despite this weight handicap, the latter rules a 7-5 favorite over his rival, and many are wagering that the bout will terminate in a knockout. It is the seventh meeting between the two. Honors are about even. Godwin won three decisions, lost one, was knocked out once, and earned a draw.

An attractive supporting card has been arranged. Roy Bailey and Billy Strickler are the principals in a 6-round semifinal. Bailey is from Knight's camp and Strickler from Godwin's. Henry (Popeye) Irving will meet Big Boy Smith in another six.

Baltimore Harry Groves and Doug Swetnam tangle in a four, with Pete Bevens and Carl Phillips listed for another bout of the same duration—or less.

Chisox 16-Hit Attack Routs Mackmen, 11-5

Cochet Announces Decision To Become Professional

PARIS, France, Aug. 29 (AP). Henri Cochet, one of the world's best known tennis players, announced tonight he planned to turn professional.

Formal announcement of his decision will be delayed until next week, when he will begin training for the Franco-American professional tournament starting September 22.

There have been persistent rumors for several years that Cochet would turn professional, but the great Frenchman evidently preferred to remain an amateur so long as France retained the Davis Cup.

Now with the cup lost to Great Britian, Cochet has decided to join big Bill Tilden and other well-known former amateurs in the professional field.

Cochet for several years was regarded as the world's greatest tennis player, but his game showed a big decline this season. He was beaten by Jack Crawford in the final round of the French hard court championships and by Ellsworth Vines in the semifinals at Wimbledon. His most costly defeat, however, came on the opening day of the Davis cup challenge round against Great Britain when Fred Perry outlasted him in five sets. That victory enabled England to win the series, three matches to two, since the second-string French singles star, Andre Marlin, was no match for either Perry or H. W. (Bunny) Austin.

British Girl of 22 Is First To Swim Channel Since '30

DOVER, Eng., Aug. 29 (AP).—Two men and a woman, after hours in the water tonight, abandoned attempts to swim the English Channel, after Sunny Lowry, a 22-year-old English girl, earlier in the day made a successful crossing from Cape Gris Nez, France.

The men, Charles Zimmy, legless American, and E. H. Temme, of England, started from here this morning with Miss Mercedes Gleitz, British woman swimmer, in a race for the Dover Town Gold Challenge Cup.

Zimmy gave up when 9 miles from South Foreland. He had been going 13 hours. Temme was 4 miles from Sangatte, between Calais and Cape Gris Nez, when he climbed into his boat after 11½ hours afloat. In 1927 he was successful in 14 hours 29 minutes.

The Dover Cup will be awarded the man or woman who swims from Dover to France in the shortest time this year.

Miss Gertrude Ederle holds the record of 14 hours and 31 minutes made in 1926.

Yankees Down Tigers, 11-9, On Rallies

Score Nine Runs in Last 2 Innings; Lazzeri Star With Homer, Triple.

DETROIT, Aug. 29 (AP).—Tony Lazzeri's two extra-base hits, one a home run and the other a triple, today enabled the New York Yankees to come from behind with nine runs in the last two innings and defeat the Detroit Tigers, 11 to 9, in the champions' final game of their Western invasion.

Lazzeri put the Yanks in front in the eighth when he cracked out his seventeenth homer of the season with Ben Chapman on base. After the Tigers had tied the count in their half of the eighth, Tony came through with his triple in the ninth, this time with the bases loaded, to climax a five-run uprising.

Giants Win, 3-0, Then Lose to Cards, 2-0

NEW YORK, Aug. 29 (AP).—The pennant surge of the New York Giants lost no further ground today, thanks to the southpaw skill of the great Carl Hubbell, but another ex-Giant meanwhile came back to roost at the Polo Grounds and harass the hard-fighting men of Bill Terry in their current struggle with the St. Louis Cardinals.

Hubbell added another masterpiece to his collection of pitching gems for the year by blanking the Red Birds, 3 to 0, for his ninth shutout of the season, but the Giants then were unexpectedly handcuffed and whitewashed by their old college chum, Bill Walker, to the tune of 2-0, in the last half of the doubleheader.

4,000 Fans See Jockey Cruz Ride Axentea to Win Feature at Marlboro Opening

District Boy Is Hero of 1st Day

Golden Princess Takes Fourth Race Under Sage's Guidance.

Mordrom Victor in 3d and Is 1st Longshot, Paying $14.80.

RACING returned to Washington's doorstep at Marlboro yesterday. Some 4,000, including former Vice President Curtis and the majority of whom were from the Capital, visited the historic Prince Georges County track to have their fling at the horses denied them since the close of Bowie last spring. Although there was a noticeable drop-off in the betting, the customers attacked the $2 windows in goodly numbers. Both favorites and semilongshots scampered down the stretch in front.

The Washington touch extended right out on the track. It was little Harold Cruz, whose home is out on New York avenue, who proved the day's riding hero. He topped off his successful day with a popular victory on Axentea in the feature. The superiority of the rider and horse made it anything but a race.

Axentea Far Behind.

Aside from the usual charge to the first turn, Axentea was on what the turf followers call the "Bill Daly." Cruz did not look back. He rode hard to the finish and yards of daylight were between Axentea and Sambo G., the place horse. Sublevado was the well-beaten third.

The secondary feature, The La-Plata, contested over the six-and-one-half-furlong route, provided the vehicle for a victory of Golden Princess and the Prince of Umbria filly, owned and operated by Dick Pending, proved to be pretty much horse. Jockey Sage rode the ultimate winner all over the track, pulling up at least three times. However, at the all-important finish he came to the outside to take the decision by a head from En Passant. The disregarded Saucy Victor was third.

Cruz Rides Winner in First.

Cruz gave Bohemian Grove a rousing ride from start to finish to take the first race, a five-and-one-half furlong dash. Bohemian Grove, racing for the first time in months, went to the front at the break and was never headed. Nora's Grace, virtually an even choice with the winner, was always second. Small Change was third.

The Red and Black of the Labrot Stable flashed home in front in the second race when Stimulaw, from a slow start, cut across to lead his field from after reaching the judges' stand the first time around. Shanks was hustling the favorite at the finish to beat the closing rush of Crossing Over. Scotty Don took the overland route and was third.

The first long shot of the meeting developed in the third race. The veteran Mordrom, son of the great Morvich, came from in back of the pace-setting Noajoyce to win by half a length from Rustic Cuba. Noajoyce was third. Seaworthy, the favorite, was nowhere. The winner rewarded the faithful with $14.80 for the usual deuce.

Flageolet went to the post at odds on and ran that kind of a race to take the sixth from Gunther and Nemerc. The seventh went to McDonald H in a stretch drive that saw Electric Gaff second and Do Tell third.

Strange as It Seems —By John Hix

SEVENTY-FIVE yards is no distance at all to send a golf ball with a mashie—but to send a ball that distance with somebody's head is a feat few golfers can claim to have performed. Just such an incident happened, however, when Edward Sladward's South African caddy got in the way of a hard hit ball.

The ball caught the caddy on the head, glanced off and bounded 75 yards farther down the course before it came to rest. A blow like that might knock some people out, but not this caddy. He did not even suffer a headache.

Harold G. Lentz, surf casting, cast a little four-ounce weight the incredible distance of 465 feet with a rod and reel. For comparison, this distance is about 50 yards longer than a football field, it is seven times farther than the distance between the pitcher's box and home plate, and farther even than Babe Ruth's longest hit.

Up to a certain point the heavier the bait the farther it can be cast. Even with small bait, however, casts of amazing distance have been made. Using a quarter-ounce bait, Fred Abrogast made an average cast of 240 feet, in 1926. The longest cast, 258 feet, was made by W. C. Newcomb the same year. The three-eighths ounce record was set in 1931 by Fred N White, with a cast of 294 feet. The half-ounce distance record was broken in 1927 by W. C. Newcomb with a cast of 306 feet. He also set a record the year before with an average cast in this class of 293 feet.

Dear Mike: Marlboro Race Track.

I see by the papers that you were in no better form at Hawthorne yesterday than I was in here. However, stick to your guns, pal You know that phrase the Salvation Army has for it. Well, friend, Marlboro is a real race track now. Yes, sir, loud-speaker system and all. Harold Cruz, the Capital youngster, is down here and promises to become almost as popular a jockey as was Pat Remillard last season. Remember how Pat swept the cards? I'm telling the Bennings' customers that he's the best bet for the remainder of the meeting. Be seeing you on Monday. BILL.

First Race—Big Dipper got a poor start at Cumberland and then came with a rush that just missed taking the purse. Eddie Ambrose had the mount in that race but another boy will be up. A hustling get-away will put this one in the bag. Mon Nuage has shown form at times. Sly Haste to take care of the others.

Second Race—Bohemian Grove showed yesterday that he can run. Needs only an encouraging ride to repeat. Holland and Clear Knight figure close. Transgressor is a possible longshot winner. Still a maiden, but is reported fit.

Third Race—Ruth Tidings scored an easy victory at Hagerstown last spring. Loves a half-mile track. May go to the front at the start and lead all the way. Gayly Boy is the possible upsetter. Dunora for the rest.

Fourth Race—Little Wing is a front runner and will be hard to catch in this. Threw the boys down last time at Cumberland. Will appreciate this shorter distance. Noajoyce hardly wants to go any farther than this. Was speedy yesterday and may make this close. Steelton to show.

Fifth Race—A shift in jockeys may send us to the pay window for a good price on Foul Tip. This one was well played yesterday. Was run into the ground. Far down the list, however, Rhodius appears the best of the others. Helen's Alibi, winner over a cheap lot, to show.

Sixth Race—Sand Bell likes his Marlboro. Had a tune-up race up State and I'm going to him today if assigned even a fair rider. The ancient Crasher for the place and Rod Rack to show.

Seventh Race—Aella gets in a very cheap field in this and I can't imagine a miss. Sandy San and Noisy Miss for the rest.

Forestville After Games.

Games for Saturday and Sunday are sought by the Forestville A. C. Phone District 9553.

Rippy Downs Will, 1 Up, on Sixth Extra Hole of Feature Match in "Uptown" Golf

Connelly's 69 Also Marks Tourney

Barrett and Baer Also Gain Semifinals of Annual Event.

COMING to grief on the twenty-fourth hole of one of the most spectacular and longest overtime matches in municipal golf history, Harlan Will, gangling District public links champion, was abruptly eliminated by Claude Rippy in the quarter finals of the "Uptown" tournament yesterday at Rock Creek.

Rippy's 1 up triumph after six extra holes proved the most spectacular feature of the first day of match play, and came as sweet revenge for the defeat by a similar margin handed him by Will in the finals of the recent District championship.

Rippy easily won his morning duel from Jack Keele, 6 and 5, while Will had to erase a 2 up deficit at the turn to nose out Bob Sibley, 2 and 1.

4 Up at One Time.

Playing a safe game in the afternoon, Rippy led Will 3 up at the turn. A few holes later he was 4 up. Meanwhile, Will fought back, and, with Rippy dormie two, showed class in winning the seventeenth and eighteenth to level the match.

They halved the next five holes 4-3-4-4-3—even par.

On the twenty-fourth, which is a one-shotter, 216-yards, Will slammed his drive into the woods, being stymied by branches. Playing a low ball, Will hit his second to the side of the bank in front of the green, and the ball hopped into a "washout" in the trap. There was some dispute as to whether Will could remove his ball from the washout, but no official ruling was given.

Will blasted out over the green; his fourth hit the limb of a tree, and he conceded the hole after Rippy, short with his drive, pitched stone dead, with a sure par-3 facing him.

Following Rippy into the semi-finals were John Connelly, medalist; Walter Barrett and John Baer. Connelly provided the morning sensation by shooting a brilliant 69, 1 over par, in crushing W. J. Nealis, 5 and 4. His 69 came within a few shots of equaling George Voigt's record for competitive golf. In the afternoon Connelly put out Serge W. Folk, 3 and 2. Baer tripped S. C. Wimsatt and Harry Saunders, while Barrett conquered Andy Oliveri, 4 and 3, after winning his opener by default. This morning Connelly meets Barrett and Rippy faces Baer.

Cubs Take 1st Game, Lose 2d in Brooklyn

Brooklyn, Aug. 29 (AP).—The Chicago Cubs and Brooklyn Dodgers again broke even in a double-header today, the Dodgers slamming out a 13-5 decision in the opening contest and bowing in the second, 6 to 2.

An 18-hit assault upon four Chicago pitchers made Walter Beck's path to victory easy in the curtain raiser, but Lonnie Warneke was master of the nightcap, holding the Dodgers to seven scattered hits and scoreless until the ninth inning.

Red Sox and Browns Divide Double-Header

St. Louis, Aug. 29 (AP).—The six-hit pitching of Bob Weiland gave the Boston Red Sox a 9-to-4 victory over the St. Louis Browns in the second game of a double-header today, after they dropped the first, 8 to 10.

After the Browns scored a single tally in the second inning, the Sox pounded George Blaeholder for four runs in the fifth inning, and Ed Wells for five more in the last three frames before the Browns crossed the plate again. Cooke and Reynolds hit homers.

In the first game the Browns made two three-run inning rallies to overcome a four-run lead. Werber and Johnson, of the Red Sox, hit for the circuit.

Nats and Indians Split Double Bill

sentiment for the young pitcher and he sent Cliff Bolton in to bat in the eighth for Moe Berg. Bolton walked and was the third Nat to reach base.

Then Bluege, in the ninth, got his single and Manush followed with the second and last hit off Pearson—a screaming triple into center, scoring with the Nats' second run on Cronin's fly.

Four straight hits off Burke with two out in the third inning delivered by Pearson, Porter, Cissell and Averill, gave the Indians three runs, and a pair of triples by Hale and Boss in the fourth gave them two more, which were entirely superfluous in view of the clever fast ball and the nice change of pace that Pearson fed the Nats until grim reality overtook him in the ninth.

In that first game the Indians raised a rumpus in both the second and third innings, but Stewart calmed them by getting Hildebrand out in the second with the bases full and he struck out Cissell in a tough spot in the third.

The Nats had given him a one-run lead in the third when Sewell singled to center and Stewart sacficed him to second. Then Ossie Bleuge slashed a hot grounder through the box for a single to score Sewell.

Stewart and Hildebrand then settled down to an absorbing duel. Kamm's double with one out in the fourth came to no good, and Hildebrand held the Nats to one lone hit from the third to the eighth.

The Injuns tied it up in the seventh, aided by extreme good fortune on a couple of scratchy hits. Boss led off with a single through the box, but Stewart got rid of Pytlak and Hildebrand, the latter forcing Boss at second. Then Porter looped a single over second base just out of Schulte's reach and Cissell got a hit on another drooping pop over Boken's head, scoring the tying run.

That was the last hit off Stewart.

Junior Golfers Vie for D. C. Crown

A FIELD, numbering 15, made up of few outstanding young golfers, will compete today at Beaver Dam's course in the 36-hole medal battle for the District junior championship.

The latest entries are Joseph A. Jones and Bill Dillard, both of Belle Haven Club, Alexandria. They will tee off at 10:05 and again at 2:35.

Billy Dettweiler, 15-year-old Manor star and 1932 national amateur qualifier, is paired with Harvey Johnson at 9:45. Dettweiler recently scored a 76 in a practice round at Beaver Dam, and is favorite to capture the crown. Johnson, Junior Slater, of Columbia, and Willis Hurd, of Indian Spring, are others calculated to give the Manor ace a good fight.

Beloved Coach Cavanaugh Dies at 57

'Iron Major' Unconscious Since Sunday; Last Job Was at Fordham.

MARSHFIELD, Mass., Aug. 29 (AP).—Major Frank W. Cavanaugh, one of the most dynamic and beloved football coaches of a generation, died today.

Unconscious since Sunday, the "iron major"—an appellation he acquired because of the sturdy, black derby he invariably wore and the indomitable courage he exhibited both on the gridiron and the battlefield—lost a courageous fight; kept alive to the end, his physician said, "only by his iron constitution."

Forced to relinguish the reins of football at Fordham because of failing health and fast-dimming eyesight, the square-jawed major, who was 57 years old, underwent an abdominal operation last month and partially recovered.

Suffered Shock Sunday.

From Sunday until today, his wife and nine children hovered close to the bedside, but the major grew weaker; kept alive only by stimulants administered by his physician, Dr. Donald Peggs. The last rites of the church were administered yesterday.

WE INVALIDS should cling to hope, and not let fear congeal us; if we have faith in any dope, that dope is bound to heal us. I once had faith, with all my soul, that Bildad's Beeswax Bitters, if freely taken from a bowl, would cure all ailing critters. And while that simple faith endured (the recollection pleases!) I found I was completely cured of forty-nine diseases. And then the bitters were exposed by some benign muck raker; they were—the details were disclosed—compounded by a faker. Since then they fail to bring relief, although with ills I'm loaded, and it has caused me bitter grief to see my faith exploded. I bought a large electric belt that had much virtue in it, its healing influence I felt with every passing minute. "It is a blessing in good sooth," I murmured, buoyant-hearted; "it will restore my joyous youth that long since had departed." And then my faith received some welts; a scientist got busy, and proved that all electric belts are phoney things and dizzy. Just now I'm feeling pretty bad, but hope is never ended; I just have bought a liver pad that's highly recommended. My faith in this is firm and strong, my feet will not be chilly, till some "exposer" comes along to prove all pads are silly.

New Yorker Today

By Mark Barron.

New York.—From the trivia in the day's news of the metropolis are gleaned such items:

Commuters on a Long Island train were more than a little amazed to see a snowball come sailing through a car window on a sultry August afternoon. On an adjacent sidetrack was a string of refrigerator cars from which a gang of youngsters were pilfering crushed ice for their snowball battle.

A lanky fellow, attired in cowboy costume and 10-gallon sombrero, was hawking men's garters on a Broadway street corner. He attracted crowds with a new idea in shills. In one hand he held an ice cream cone and in the other was a white rat contentedly nibbling away at the confection.

Just Poifect.

Seeing that Coney Island is in Kings County, the barkers on the midway out there think it the height of humor to boast: "We use poifect grammer. We talk King's English."

The boys at the West Forty-third street fire station boast that they have the only authentic fire dog left in Manhattan. Remember the days when every station had a dog to run ahead of the horse-drawn hose cart?

The Forty-third street dog, however, has become an old softie in this mechanized age. He refuses to run to fires anymore. When the side the driver. Less work to ride.

A book publisher took his 8-year-old son to a luxurious restaurant for the first time the other day. After the meal, he congratulated his offspring on his excellent public manners.

"I'm practicing for when we go to the World's Fair," explained the youngster.

Still Primitive.

They don't take to modern gadgets at some of the obscure beaches on Long Island. A shoe merchant out there reports he has quite a run on empty shoe boxes, still the most popular receptacles for picnic lunches.

There was a time when steamship companies went to extra efforts to provide special accommodations for famous authors sailing on their boats, with the understanding that the writers would give the ship publicity in their magazine articles or books. This has been discontinued since it was discovered that only about two out of every 100 authors made good their promise.

In lower Fifth avenue a crying beggar is nightly staging a tearfully dramatic act. He is a young fellow, about 20 years of age, and attired in new, fashionable clothes.

Walking up beside a car stopped by traffic lights, he first demands: "I've got to have a job. You got to give me a job."

Then he bursts out sobbing, loudly weeping. People he approaches are so startled that nearly every time they hand him a coin.

How to Keep Well

The Bump of Location.

THERE is a natural variation in what we common people call "the bump of location." Homing pigeons are supposed to have this mental quality developed to the ultimate degree. When they are loosed for a test of homing they fly in circles around the place of loosing for a few minutes as they decide on the direction of home, and then they strike out on a straight line for destination. Sight is not a factor of importance in the decision.

Dogs and horses have something of the homing instinct. Bees have it even better developed, but for short distances only. When a bee has gathered his load of honey he flies straight to his hive. He requires no circling to get his bearings.

People vary greatly in their bump of location. One man knows, we say instinctively, where he is and what is the way out. Another is always lost. If he is self-dependent he is constantly discovering that he is so. In a well organized community there are so many guides and guide posts that the man with a poor bump of location is seldom embarrassed by his defect.

Double Vision.

M. L. B. writes: I have had a funny experience twice in the last two months. My eyes seem to cross and I have double vision. My right eye seems turned in and moved up and down. What would cause the eyes to do a "jig" for about three to five minutes?

Reply.

Have your eyes carefully examined as to astigmatism, size and shape of the eyeball as affecting curvature of the cornea, correctness of the lens, accommodation, and strength of the muscles which pull the eyeballs in different directions. You may need properly fitted glasses, or you may need to have some of the fibres of one of the orbit muscles cut. Among the other possible causes are brain tumor, encephalitis, and meningitis.

And then, a tic is possible. Tics cause the eyebrow to jerk, pull up or down the corner of the mouth, screw up the face in other ways, pull the head to one side or the other, pull up one shoulder, and various other freaky stunts. A neuralgic tic, for want of a better name, may pull one eye out of plumb.

Lamson Moved As State Points To Blood Stain

San Jose, Calif., Aug. 29 (AP).—The story David A. Lamson told Memorial Day, shortly after his wife had been found with crushed skull in the bathroom of their cottage on the Stanford University campus, was put into the records of his murder trial here today.

As Assistant District Attorney A. P. Lindsay pointed to blood on the floor under the head of the attractive 28-year-old Y. W. C. A. secretary, Lamson's faced twitched and his lips quivered. He closed his eyes and hung his head.

Chief of Police Howard A. Zink, of Palo Alto, first brought into the records the story as told by Lamson.

Pictures of the trap door in the hallway outside the bathroom, where Zink said he found a spot of blood, were also introduced in evidence.

Bridge Experts in Year's Trip Hope to Play With Cannibals

Culbertson - Sims Group Will Bid Grand Slams Near Giant Lizards.

Papeete, Tahiti, Aug. 29, (U.P.). Hopeful of obtaining real cannibals for partners and of bidding grand slams in the presence of the giant lizards of Komodo, contract bridge enthusiasts will start a world "Culbertson-Sims" cruise aboard the schooner White Shadow this week.

Every person aboard the ship will be a bridge player, including the cabin boys, all of whom adhere to the Culbertson system of play. Three silver cups will be awarded. The cruise will last for more than a year and will take the players to the cannibal islands of the South Pacific. The cruise will end at Cannes, France.

Chinese Cook a Player.

"Our purpose," said Henry N. Whitney, Glen Cove, N. Y., an owner of the ship, "in taking only bridge players on the cruise is purely psychological. There is nothing that disrupts a cruise more quickly than boredom and petty quarrels. That is why we have enlisted a paid crew and guests from the ranks of contract players.

"Tong Foo, our Chinese cook, and Joe, a Tahitian sailor, are the best Culbertson system players in the forecastle."

The White Shadow was chartered by Whitney, Morton G. Clark, New York; Philip S. Carr, Dubuque, Iowa, and Frederick C. Hixon, Pasadena, Calif., all recently graduated from college.

Expect to Meet Cannibals.

Among the guests will be Count Noel de Villeneuve-Quengo, Paris; Dr. Edward Swift, author of a Tahitian dictionary, Glendale, Calif.; Sabine Carr, former world's pole vaulting champion, Dubuque; Robert Cunningham, chess expert and poet, Sydney, Australia; Reynolds Packard, newspaperman, Atlantic City, and his wife, Eleanor Cryan Packard, fashion writer, Paris.

Cannibals will be encountered in the New Hebrides, New Guinea and the Solomon Islands. Dr. Swift, who is making ethnological investigations, hopes to induce a cannibal to return to America with him.

"I want to find out," he said, "if it is possible to make a cannibal go vegetarian."

Claire Windsor, Sued, Confident of Winning

New Residents Swamp School Entry Board

Bulletin Issued Directing Pupils in Methods of Admission.

With the great influx of new residents, due to the change of administration, officials of the District school system have been swamped with inquiries about entrance to primary and secondary schools.

A bulletin issued by S. E. Kramer, first assistant superintendent of schools, announced that all applicants for entrance in the high schools must secure admission through the Board of Admissions.

Howard Directs Placements.

Dr. A. L. Howard, principal of Roosevelt High School and chairman of the board, directs the placement of the students applying for admission.

The normal number of new students enrolled from other localities is about 300. School officials said yesterday that the number is expected to be almost doubled this year.

Members of the board, composed of representatives from high schools will meet at the Thomson School to pass on entrance qualifications September 13-15. Pupils will be located as near as possible to their residences, but the allocations will be governed by the number of students already enrolled in the schools.

Will Allow Examinations.

Pupils who can not present acceptable credentials, but who are able to convince the admission board that they are prepared to enter high school, will be given an entrance examination.

Applicants for admission to junior high school should apply to the principal of the school nearest their residence. For entrance to elementary schools applications should be made September 15 and 16.

Building Firm Agrees to Pay Disputed Wage

Threatened cancellation of the Catalano Construction Corporation's contract to build the Phelps Vocational School blew over yesterday when the District Commissioners accepted the firm's agreement to pay back wages to bricklayers.

The Catalano company had twice been given an extension of time to pay wages to workmen they admitted had received less than the $1.50 per hour required by the Bacon-Davis act.

The agreement yesterday was that $3,000 was to be held back from the September and October payments on the contract and that this $6,000 was not to be paid to the firm until it has adjusted the workers' claims.

Representatives of the bricklayers agreed to the plan and it was approved by the Commissioners. The workers are to receive the difference between what they were paid and the Bacon-Davis rate. The total due is less than the $6,000 to be held back.

Bigger Harbor Needed, Wharf Group Reports

Commitee to Draw Up Plans for Enlarging Anchorage Area.

Increase in the anchorage area of Washington channel because of crowding during the boating season is necessary, the report of the District wharf committee to the Commissioners stated yesterday.

The committee reported the proposed pier is much needed, as many aplications for unloading of steamers and barges have been made, but could not be considered because of meager facilities.

A gradual betterment of conditions along the waterfront was reported. Removal of unsightly structures also is contemplated this year, the committee said.

The report contained the committee's indorsement of the District application to the Public Works Administration for improvements along the north side of the Washington channel.

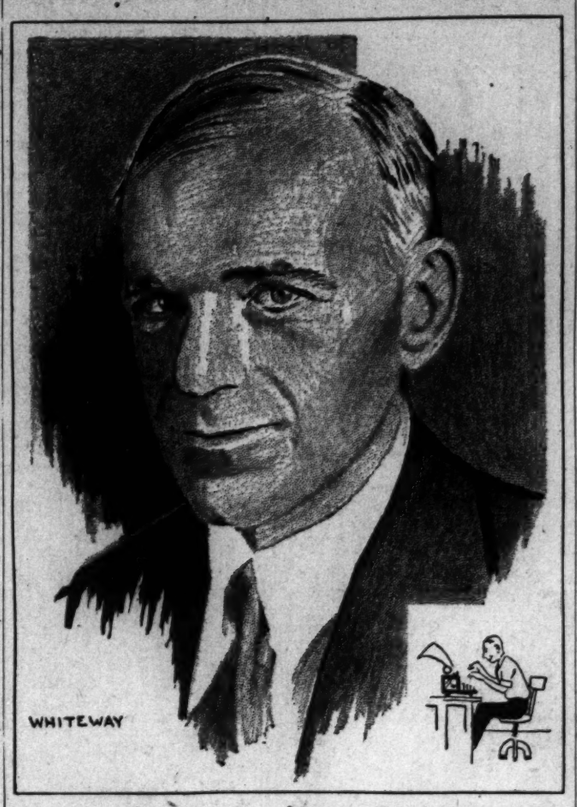
D. C. Engineer Has Ambition To Write on U. S. History



Many Famous Incidents Are Not Truly Pictured, Says Maj. Gotwals.

Maj. John C. Gotwals, U. S. A., District Engineer Commissioner, would choose another calling if the opportunity to live his life again were offered.

But as he knows such an opportunity is purely speculative, he has made that other profession his hobby and profited toward it while an engineer.

Maj. Gotwals would like to be a writer. His many years as an engineer—some years of loneliness in far-flung surveying and construction camps—have given him opportunity for reading, strengthening and aiding his ambition to write.

He has chosen history for his field—because he believes American history to be most glorious and magnificient, and most misunderstood.

There are many things, he says, in the history of the United States which are either misunderstood or are not presented in their true significance by historians.

One example he cites is the battle of New Orleans. Most Americans believe, he says, that this conflict was just a mistake, fought uselessly after the War of 1812 had been ended by treaty.

However, the winning of the battle was the clinching of the Nation's title to the Louisiana Purchase, he says. If it had been lost, American history might have been greatly altered.

Although an engineer, Maj. Gotwals plans to devote his efforts to his hobby of clearing up controversial and significant phases in the Nation's past.

Bride, Roper Still Undecided On Bread Quiz

U. S. Price Investigation Sought; Two Other Probes Planned.

Whether the Corporation Counsel or the United States District Attorney will conduct the bread price investigation asked by Senator King, chairman of the Senate District Committee, had not been determined yesterday.

Corporation Counsel William W. Bride said he would assign his assistant, Robert E. Lynch, to the work should the United States Attorney's office decline it.

Bride asked that United States Attorney Rover direct the investigation because of the drain it would impose on Bride's staff.

Meanwhile, Senator King requested the Attorney General's office to cooperate with the Corporation Counsel in the study of the recent 1-cent boost in bread prices here to determine whether it was justified.

Mr. Lynch, who will get the job if Rover's office does not take it over, is the corporation counsel's trial lawyer.

Another investigation of the price rise has been started by the Consumers Council of the District. It was learned yesterday that the Central Labor Union was willing to pay half the cost of this inquiry.
